he Associated Press.

ASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—A brief porting the administration's program was filed in the Su- Court by the American Farm eau Federation today in the c Mills case challenging the nstitutionality of the Agricultural tment Act.

The federation presented the brief friend of the Court." It ar- ed that its members had "as ex- sive an interest in the act, even measured solely by pecuniary andards, as have the processors bject to the taxes."

he federation said it represented mbers in 36 states.

AAA Tax and the Tariff.

The brief insisted the farm act ulted from a congressional study ch began in 1924, and argued t the protective tariff obtains for dustry a higher price for prod- cts in domestic consumption, while rocessing taxes have the same ob- ective with respect to surplus agri- ultural commodities, "regarding hich the protective tariff system wholly ineffective."

The federation insisted that the axes were intended to provide for e general welfare, and asserted at the determination of Congress to what constitutes the general l'are "is one for which courts rarely, if ever, substitute their judgment."

Arguments in the case are sched- led for Dec. 9.

The Hoosac attorneys said their rgument would be along five main es:

"Congress exceeded its limited owers and trespassed upon pow- s reserved to the states and to e people in authorizing and ap- lying the taxes under the AAA.

"The processing and floor stock axes are levied in violation of the fth amendment." (Taxing one ass for benefit of another).

WIFE KILLS HUSBAND OVER 'OTHER WOMAN'

Says She Didn't Believe in Divorce; Did It for Sake of Son.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30. — Mrs. John H. Dumbrell, crying, "I don't believe in divorce," was arraigned today on a charge of murdering her husband, a bond salesman, in a quarrel over another woman. "You see what I am—short and fat," she said weeping. "That's why I lost my husband." She admitted shooting Dumbrell, 59 years old, today as they argued over his alleged attentions to the other woman.

"I went to the woman's apartment and had a showdown with her," Inspector William Stanton said Mrs. Dumbrell, 50, told him. "She refused to give up my husband. I suffered in silence for 20 years but I should never have gone to that woman's house. I knew she was living in a luxurious apartment that she certainly was not able to provide for herself." The Dumbrells were married 27 years ago and have a 19-year-old son, John Jr.

She said she shot her husband "for the boy's sake, just as I have spent 20 years in torment."

Mrs. Dumbrell said she learned of the "other woman" whom she said, was Mrs. Gladys Jones, telephone operator, three years ago through an anonymous telephone call.

"I don't believe in divorce," she explained as she appeared before Municipal Judge George Schonfeld. "I believe divorce cuts the child astray. This outcome was inevitable."

Mrs. Dumbrell collapsed after returning to her cell and became hysterical. Prison doctors quieted her while her son put his arms around her, saying: "Don't worry, mother. I'll stand by you."

The son, a student at San Mateo Junior College, preparing for a medical course, said: "I'm sorry for my father, but I think mother was justified in killing him. A person can stand only so much."

Dumbrell was a former officer of the Bank of Italy, and a former State Traffic Commissioner.

PARAMOUNT THEATER STRIKE

Illinois Operators' and Stage Hands' Walkout Called Off in Hour.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. — Strike of motion picture operators and stage hands darkened Paramount theaters in many Illinois cities for an hour or more tonight. The strike was ordered and then called off in telegrams from Washington, said to have been signed by George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical, Stage and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada.

Striking operators said the walkout was part of a national strike against theaters in the Paramount chain, and was called over a disagreement between Hollywood studios and theatrical circuits. Members of the union in Chicago refused to talk about the strike.

MAN ARRESTED ADMITS BOMBING STORE NOV. 23

Prisoner Taken in Front of Manchester Av. Grocery Tells Police of Damaging St. Louis Av. Building.

NAMES THREE AS ACCOMPLICES

Two of Them Held for Questioning—All in Custody Are Former Employes of Kroger Co.

A man arrested by city detectives in front of a Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. store on Manchester avenue admitted to police yesterday that he lighted the fuse of a dynamite bomb which wrecked the front of a Kroger store at 5473 St. Louis avenue Nov. 23.

He named three accomplices, two of whom were arrested by detectives last night and taken to the Magnolia Avenue police station for questioning. Police are investigating information given them by the man first arrested as to where the dynamite for the bomb was obtained.

The first man arrested was taken into custody with four others yesterday morning in an automobile in front of the Manchester avenue Kroger store. Detectives questioned them after noting that the license number of their car was one of several license numbers of automobiles which the detectives had observed frequently recently in the vicinity of Kroger headquarters at 1311 South Thirty-ninth street.

After none of the five was able to explain the presence in the machine of five bricks and a small bottle of gasoline, all were taken to the Magnolia Avenue Station for further questioning. There one of them confessed bombing the St. Louis avenue store.

Detectives have had the Kroger headquarters under observation, particularly in early morning hours, since warehouse employes went on strike Nov. 7, seeking increased wages and the retention of the seniority clause in their agreement with the company. The man who confessed the bombing and the two arrested later as accomplices were formerly employed by the Kroger company.

In the explosion Nov. 23, at 1:30 a. m., a hole about 12 inches in diameter and six inches deep was torn in the concrete vestibule of the store. The door was blown in and plate glass windows on both sides were broken. Nine smaller windows in the store were shattered and windows in nearby shops and residences were broken.

3 ARRESTED AFTER PASSING OF COUNTERFEIT HALF-DOLLAR

Man Quoted as Saying He Took Spurious Coins From His Slot Machines.

A man and two women arrested by police yesterday at the Commodore Apartment Hotel, 5316 Pershing avenue, after the man had passed a counterfeit half dollar, were turned over to Federal authorities for questioning.

In the apartment occupied by the man, police found 27 spurious coins. They arrested his wife and a woman occupying an adjoining apartment. Leo Smugai, operative in charge of the St. Louis office of the Secret Service Bureau, quoted the man as saying he had been a slot machine operator and had taken the counterfeit coins from machines at various times, inadvertently confusing one with his pocket change.

The police investigation was made after a lead half-dollar had been passed at the Dudley Tap Room, 5312 Pershing.

BANKER RELEASED FROM JAIL

K. V. Painter Served 39 Days at Cleveland; Goes to St. Joseph, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—Kenyon V. Painter, former principal stockholder of the closed Union Trust Co., and big game hunter, was released from county jail tonight after serving 39 days and 15 minutes of a 40-day sentence for contempt of court.

Painter, who said he was "a sick man," left immediately for St. Joseph, Mo., his residence during the last two years. He was sentenced by Common Pleas Judge Samuel Silbert when he refused to answer part of the questions of a court referee during a hearing concerning his dealings with the Union Trust Co. Painter also paid a fine of $2000.

ROBBERS WITH GUNS GET $120,000; COW UNARMED POLICE

Kill One Man, Wound Two, in Madrid, in Sight of Hundreds.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Nov. 30.—Five men with sub-machine guns held up and robbed two city employes of $120,000 today in front of the city hall, killed one man, wounded two others, and escaped in a taxicab. Hundreds of persons in the neighborhood saw the robbery.

The city police, who do not carry firearms, stood helpless before the armed robbers, but Francisco Morales, a member of the City Council, opened fire with his pistol from a window of the city hall at the robbers' taxicab, which, when found later, contained several bullet holes. The driver, who was detained, said he had been kidnaped by the robbers.

Alvaro Fernandez, a street cleaner who tried to prevent the flight of the robbers was shot to death. One of the city employes who carried the money and another man were wounded. The two city employes were carrying $240,000 into the City Bank, when the robbers appeared. The city employes resisted, but the robbers got two sacks containing half the money.

NAZI GETS DIVORCE BECAUSE WIFE WON'T BEAR CHILDREN

Court Ruling in Line With Changes in Marriage Laws as Yet Unannounced.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The District Court in Koeslin granted a farmer a divorce today because his wife refused to bear children. The Court held the farmers are the mainstay of German blood, which wives must help to perpetuate.

The decision conforms with changes proposed in laws regarding divorce by Hans Frank, Nazi Commissioner of Justice. Nazi jurists say the changes in the law, still unannounced, are based on the principle that "the family is the trustee of the people."

Dr. Frank said the laws would make the "misfortune of the illegitimate child more bearable" and hinted all the statutes would be lightened in keeping with the Reich's intensive campaign for more babies.

Increasing grounds for divorce will be recognized, it was said, among them failure to bear children, sterility and non-acceptance of Nazi teachings.

The new amendments also are expected to provide financial help, if not subsidies, for unmarried mothers and care for illegitimate children in state homes if the mothers cannot provide for them.

An "institute of marriage" is said to be planned to supply information on the selection of mates.

ROOSEVELT THOUGHT TO WANT SHORT SESSION OF CONGRESS

Trimming of Appropriations Appears to Be Dominant Desire of Administration.

By the Associated Press.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 30.—A short session of the approaching Congress, to be dominated principally by the announced intention to trim appropriations, appeared definitely today as the administration plan.

President Roosevelt talked during the day with Charles West, under-Secretary of the Interior, who was liaison officer last session between the White House and Capitol Hill.

Mr. Roosevelt has expressed hope for a short session. In declaring a "breathing spell" last August, he asserted the New Deal legislative program was substantially completed. Since August Secretary Roper has declared the "breathing spell" to be permanent.

Congress will reconvene a month hence. To date all considerations for the session have related to the budget.

One outstanding topic appearing to be on the administration calendar for the session is neutrality legislation. The present neutrality law expires in February.

PAIR IN AUTO ILL FROM FUMES

Miss Louise Luckey and Escort Found at Columbia, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 30.—Two former students at the University of Missouri here, Miss Louise Luckey of Columbia, who now teaches at Alton, and James Scammon of Rockport, were taken to a hospital here today, ill from carbon monoxide poison. Both will recover. The pair was in an automobile parked on a city street with the motor running when found early today by police. They were not unconscious but were too ill to speak.

Miss Luckey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Luckey of Columbia, was a leader in religious circles while in school. Thirteen months ago while speaking at an All-Southern Baptist student conference at Memphis, Tenn., she gained publicity with charges against the morals of university students here and a statement that a faculty member taught classes while intoxicated. She failed to substantiate the charges.

STATE HAS LEFT $1,700,000 FROM U. S. RELIEF FUNDS

Last Federal Payment Available for December Needs —After That, Situation Is in Doubt.

$1,000,000 A MONTH TO BE REQUIRED

Legislature Provided Missouri Allotment Could Be Spent Only at Rate of $500,000.

Missouri will have a balance of about $1,700,000 of Federal relief funds available for use in December, State Relief Director Wallace Crossley said yesterday in Jefferson City. In addition, about $500,000 of State funds will be available.

The balance of Federal funds represents a supplemental November allotment of $1,200,000 received Friday, and about $500,000 previously allotted, which will not be required to meet November commitments.

It was announced in Washington that the $1,200,000 payment would be the last to be made to the State by the FERA. Harry Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, said that organization would be liquidated, as of Dec. 1, and that the Works Progress Administration would constitute the Federal Government's relief unit.

Needs $1,000,000 a Month.

After December, Crossley said, the State, despite lightening of the relief rolls by the WPA, will need at least $1,000,000 a month for direct relief. About $2.000.000 remains of the $6,000,000 appropriated by the last Legislature for relief, but under the law this can be expended at a rate not exceeding $500,000 a month.

While the decision to end Federal appropriations for direct relief has been announced, with the assertion that it would be up to the states and local communities to provide help for those of the unemployed not put to work on WPA or PWA jobs, the impression prevails that after Congress meets in January, some way will be found to continue direct relief with Federal funds.

Crossley said the estimated relief case load in Missouri at present was 140,000, including many assigned to WPA jobs, still on relief because they have not yet received their first pay checks. On Jan. 1, he thought, it would still be necessary to carry 60,000 to 65,000 cases on the direct relief rolls. Not more than half of the $1,000,000 a month necessary to do that is presently available, he said.

Federal Expenditures in State.

Figures compiled by Crossley's office indicated that total expenditures of the Federal and State governments for relief in Missouri from November, 1932, to date have been $93,188,618, including $67,322,982 in Federal funds for direct relief; $19,266,808 for Federal money spent through the CWA, and $6,578,828 of State relief funds. These figures do not include the unexpended balance of $1,700,000 in Federal funds now on hand.

St. Louis, which has been appropriating about $149,000 a month from bond issue funds for relief, has about $2,328,500 remaining of the $3,600,000 bond issue authorized last April, sufficient, at the present rate of expenditure, to last until March, 1937. It is estimated that St. Louis, with about 40,000 cases now on the relief rolls, will have about 17,000 in need of direct relief after the WPA program is in full operation.

Crossley announced the appointment of Robert J. Crump, an accountant, as the new St. Louis Relief Administrator, succeeding Peter Kasius, who has become director of United Charities, Inc.

Crump recently has been in charge of the express business of American Airlines at Chicago. He is a St. Louisan and was recommended for the job, Crossley said, by W. C. Connett, chairman of the St. Louis Relief Committee. Since Kasius' resignation the acting relief administrator in St. Louis has been R. O. Hagerty.

Jobs for Skilled Union Men at Union Scale Sought.

Representatives of the Building Trade Council and the Central Trades and Labor Union conferred yesterday with Mayor Dickmann, Howard S. Drew, regional WPA engineer, and Paul E. CHIEF OF STAFF FIRED AT COUNTY HOSPITAL

Dr. Leith Slocumb Was With Institution Since Its Founding, 3 Years Ago.

Dr. Leith Slocumb, surgeon and chief of the medical staff at St. Louis County Hospital, was dismissed yesterday by Dr. Edwin L. Sheahan, superintendent of the hospital. Dr. Slocumb has been a member of the hospital staff since it was opened three years ago.

A letter from Dr. Sheahan, postmarked Nov. 29 and received by Dr. Slocumb yesterday said, "Dear Doctor: Your services at the St. Louis County Hospital are no longer required." No reason was given for the dismissal.

Dr. Slocumb at first declined to comment on his dismissal. When asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter if he had resigned, he replied, "Resigned nothing, I've been fired." Asked if Dr. Sheahan's action was a surprise, Dr. Slocumb said that "It was not entirely unexpected."

Dr. Sheahan declined to discuss Dr. Slocumb's dismissal other than to say there had been "a lack of co-operation" on the part of Dr. Slocumb. When informed of this statement, Dr. Slocumb told a reporter: "You cant' mix good medicine and politics and if you don't agree with their politics, apparently you just don't co-operate."

Dr. Sheahan said there would be "a few" other changes in the hospital staff announced next week.

The dismissal of Dr. Slocumb is the latest in a series of changes in the administrative staff of the institution, since Dr. Sheahan was appointed Superintendent by the County Court last January. He was ousted from his position by the Court on June 28, but reinstated Sept. 28. Presiding Judge Thomas Thatcher and Judge Emil Wohlschlaeger voting for reinstatement and Judge Eugene Tighe voting against it.

Removal of the hospital from control of the County Court has been recommended by the health committee of the League of County Municipalities.

GREEK KING OPPOSES VIEWS OF MAN WHO RESTORED HIM

His Choice of Premier and Amnesty to Rebels Against Gen. Kondylis' Wish.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Nov. 30.—King George, newly re-enthroned monarch, won the first round tonight in his fight with Gen. George Kondylis, who led the move for his restoration. In forming a neutral Cabinet which immediately adopted a measure granting amnesty to all Greeks, the King succeeded in his first move to make himself a full constitutional ruler of the whole country. Murmurs against the King were heard in quarters close to Gen. Kondylis, when Constantine Demerdjis, professor of law and former Minister, was made Premier.

The King is expected to sign the new Cabinet's amnesty proclamation, despite the opposition of Kondylis.

EXPLOSION WRECKS UNOCCUPIED HOME

Bomb Apparently Thrown Through Window of Bungalow in County.

An unoccupied frame bungalow on Dietrich road about one mile south of Manchester road in St. Louis County was wrecked at 8:45 o'clock last night by an explosion, apparently of a bomb thrown through a window.

Deputy sheriffs said the bungalow, valued at about $3000, was occupied until two weeks ago by Emil Hagemann. They said Hagemann lost the place by foreclosure recently. The present owner is the Etzkorn Lumber Co., of Manchester, Mo.

One wall of the house and part of the roof were blown out by the explosion. A hole was torn in the basement floor and all the windows were shattered.

George F. Etzkorn, president of the lumber company, said he knew no reason why the building should be bombed. He foreclosed on the bungalow last Sept. 17, he said, under a $2500 deed of trust after he had suggested Hagemann obtain a Government loan. Hagemann, foreman at a rock quarry at Des Peres, Mo., did not act on the suggestion, he said.

Etzkorn said he was not sure whether a fire insurance policy on the bungalow covered explosions.

HOOVER ACCEPTS INVITATION TO SPEAK IN ST. LOUIS DEC. 16

Bid Made by John Marshall Republican Club Composed of Attorneys.

Former President Hoover has accepted an invitation of the John Marshall Republican Club of St. Louis to speak here Dec. 16. Time and place of the address, which will be broadcast over a nationwide hookup, will be announced later. The John Marshall Club is an organization of about 70 local Republican attorneys.

Mr. Hoover notified the club of his acceptance of their invitation in a telegram to Rodney M. Fairfield, secretary, received yesterday from Palo Alto, Cal. The St. Louis speech will be the third the former President has made in recent weeks, and like the first two, will be devoted to a criticism of the policies of the Roosevelt administration. He spoke previously before the Steuben Society in Ohio and the Ohio Society in New York.

This will be the first of a series of talks by prominent persons to be sponsored by the John Marshall Club.

BARS TOBACCO PROCESS TAX

Federal Appeals Court at New Orleans Suspends Collection.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.—Judge Rufus E. Foster, of the Fifth District Federal Circuit Court of Appeals here today issued a decree staying collection of tobacco process taxes pending determination of constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment administration act by the United States Supreme Court.

The collection was stayed on petition of three New Orleans firms who failed to obtain an injunction against collection of the taxes.

MUSSOLINI'S CABINET PUTS THROUGH 88 WAR DECREES

Economic and Financial Measures Voted — $5,600,000 for Refinery to Process Oil From Albanian Fields.

DEFENSE COUNCIL MUCH ENLARGED

Men Less Than 32 Ordered to Join Shooting Society After Release From Compulsory Training — Secrecy on Munitions.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

ROME, Nov. 30.—The Cabinet rushed through measures to strengthen the Italian war machine today. It took only two and one-half hours to approve 88 defense, economic and financial decrees.

Membership in the Supreme Council of defense was enlarged.

An appropriation of 70,000,000 lire (about $5,600,000) was made to set up a refinery for crude oil. It will be turned over to a company which has been developing oil production in Albania, the Azinda Italiani Petroli.

A measure was approved requiring all men under 32 to enroll in the National Shooting Society after they have been released from compulsory military training.

The Cabinet adopted 22 decrees smoothing off spots in existing financial regulations, including one to save paper by halving the supplies of taxed sheets for legal use.

Some of Other Measures.

Other measures included:

Extension of laws against publication of military information, designed to make secret the activities of factories engaged in making war materials or experimenting with new military devices;

Extension to survivors of the East African war victims the same provisions applying to relatives of soldiers killed in the World War, including pension benefits.

Extension of credit for speeding up gold mining in Eritrea.

Approval of a concession for the establishment of a cement factory in Eritrea.

Extension of limited loans to non-commissioned officers in financial difficulties.

Among those to be added to the defense council are the ministers of justice, education, public works and press; marshals, air marshals and grand admirals; the chief of staff of the Fascist militia and the chief inspector for pre-military and post-military training.

"This modification," said a brief communique, "is designed to assure to the deliberative committee the invaluable assistance of the participation and experience of the hierarchy mentioned."

Women Told to Fight Sanctions.

Widows and mothers of Italy's World War dead gathered in Rome today to hear Premier Mussolini's call for a fight against sanctions. They came from 94 provinces, where they will carry on house-to-house canvasses to organize resistance

The task was placed in the hands of women bereaved in the World War by Mussolini himself as a reproach to the allies with which Italy fought and which are now numbered among the sanctionists.

After paying homage at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the women will parade to Venezia Palace, home of Mussolini, tomorrow. Pope Pius will receive the committees Monday.

ROOSEVELT MAKES SPENDING AN ISSUE OF 1936 CAMPAIGN

Accepts G. O. P. Challenge in Atlanta Speech, Leaving to Congress the Delicate Budget Problem.

SOME POLITICAL DYNAMITE AHEAD

Cash Bonus, Processing Tax and Relief Issues Likely to Wreck the Best-Laid Plans.

BY RAYMOND P. BRANDT.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—President Roosevelt's Atlanta speech not only opened his personal campaign for re-election; it also drew attention to the fact that the House subcommittees on appropriations will start Monday the delicate task of drafting the 1936-1937 budget. His were the words; Congress will have the deed to perform.

Most of the President's working hours in Georgia have been spent in paring down the appropriation requests submitted to the acting Director of the Budget by the various regular departments and independent agencies of the executive establishment. The President has repeatedly warned Washington reporters, sometimes rather acidly, that they should not write about the forthcoming budget because neither he nor anyone else could tell before Jan. 1 how much money would be spent for various items. Certain facts, however, are well known and when these are compared and contrasted with the President's statements and those of his immediate advisers on the budget, certain conclusions are inescapable.

Caches of Political Dynamite.

Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee, commenting on the President's speech, said that "the prospective smaller deficit for next year is sheer political propaganda" and that the speech was "an obvious build-up for a future fake balancing of the budget by New Deal sleight of hand." The President has accepted the challenge of the Republicans to make his wholesale spending an issue in the presidential campaign, yet the leaders of both parties seemingly have ignored three caches of political dynamite that might blow all budget balancing prospects skyhigh.

These political high explosives are: (1) The possibility that Congress will pass a $2,000,000,000 veterans' cash bonus bill; (2) the possibility that the United States Supreme Court will hold the Agricultural Adjustment Administration processing taxes unconstitutional, and (3) the possibility that private industry and local government will continue to fail to lighten materially the Federal Government's relief burden by permanent employment.

Because of the millions of votes that might be affected by any one of these three possibilities, the leaders of both parties are cautious about discussing, let alone taking a definite stand on these propositions.

Buchanan's Budget Idea.

Representative Buchanan of Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, announced in Washington this week, after a talk with the President at Warm Springs, that he personally favored a 1936-1937 budget of $5,000,000,000 to $5,800,000,000, in which there would be "not another nickel" for dole purposes. That is in line with the demands of the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers, but it is in direct contrast with President Roosevelt's promise to the Mayors assembled in Washington that the Federal Government could not let people starve now any more than it could last year.

Buchanan said that he favored payment of the bonus by the issue of negotiable bonds to the veterans rather than cash. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau after a conference with the President said that he believed the Roosevelt attitude on the bonus was unchanged. Asked whether he thought the President would again veto a bonus bill, Morgenthau replied: "The bonus question is not up at this time, and I do not care to discuss it further."

That is the attitude of most national politicians, Democratic and Republican. Although the leaders of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars who fought each other last session have indicated that they will work together at the next session for immediate payment of a cash bonus, the politicians would rather not discuss the possibility "at this time."

Buchanan's spread of $5,000,000,000 to $5,800,000,000 was based on the possibility that $800,000,000 might be appropriated for relief for the fiscal year July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937. He said that he thought that the President's advisers would ask for $1,000,000,000 for relief of unemployment, and added, "I will try to make it less."

Buchanan conceded that a large relief appropriation would be sought despite the fact the $4,880,000,000 voted last year to the President was expected to last two years, that is, until 1938. This fund, however, is now said to be virtually all allocated, although the actual funds have not left the treasury and have not been added to the national debt.

Question of Unemployed.

In his speech, the President emphasized that the Government had put more than 3,000,000 persons to work with the billions at his command. He did not mention that the latest estimates of unemployed are between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 workers. Administration officials in Washington do not disguise their feelings over the fact that unemployed rolls have not decreased proportionately with the increased Works Progress Administration and Public Work Administration workers, and that local governments have not taken care of the so-called unemployables. It will be recalled that the President's formula for spending the $4,880,000,00 was that the Government should hire 3,500,000 workers, which would cause another 3,500,000 to be called back to private industries. The remaining persons, the unemployables, were to be taken care of by the States, the city and county governments and private charity.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration announced today that 3,500,000 had been put to work, but this same agency has letters and telegrams from Governors, mayors, county commissioners and private relief workers that the Federal Government cannot "quit this business of relief," meaning direct relief.

These officials say that their local governments do not have the funds to take care of the unemployables, and when the Senators and Representatives return to Washington in January, there will be a concerted movement to keep the Federal Government in the direct relief business, although it may be disguised by allocations to states. This probably will be a non-partisan issue, with Republicans demanding Federal funds as loudly as the Democrats. Even the National Association of Manufacturers realizes that this relief cannot be cut off absolutely. In the program submitted this week by its Committee on Governmental Finance, the first item was: "use of Federal funds for absolutely necessary relief only when private, local and state resources are actually inadequate." The Congressmen and perhaps the FERA will be ready with statistics to show that the local resources are "actually inadequate." If they are successful, the budget will be raised.

Republicans and AAA.

As yet, the Republicans have not said what they will do if the United States Supreme Court finds that the AAA processing taxes should be thrown out the window. Some administration leaders have declared that the AAA plan must be retained in one form or another and have indicated that, if the AAA taxes are held unconstitutional, the administration will pay the farm benefits out of the general tax fund. That would run into several hundred million and would cause a commensurate increase in the budget.

In his speech, the President elaborated on the "recoverable" assets available for reduction of the national debt. These items have long been a debatable question in politics, and Chairman Fletcher hastened to say that they could not be used so long as the Government continued to have deficits. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation alone is supposed to have recoverable assets of more than $2,000,00,000, of which the National Manufacturers' Association estimates that $1,250,000,000 could be collected during the next fiscal year if the RFC were liquidated.

There is no doubt that these items are available for what Chairman Fletcher calls "fake balancing of the budget." There has been much talk that the ordinary budgets of the general departments have been balanced, but scrutiny of the daily treasury report shows that these general departments—War and Navy Departments, Agriculture and Interior—have received millions from the relief and recovery funds, money that in previous administrations was considered with the regular running expenses of the Government.

The budget and governmental spending will be wordy issues in Congress and in the forthcoming campaign. The President has given the cue, and it is up to Congress and the Supreme Court to say whether his words will come true.

Bausch Co. Drops Anti-Trust Action Against Aluminum Co. of America.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Settlement of the $9,000,000 suit of the Bausch Machine Tool Co. against the Aluminum Company of America under the anti-trust laws, was announced today by counsel for the two companies.

The amount of the settlement was not made public. The suit brought by the Bausch company, Springfield, Mass., has been in the courts seven years.

The Bausch company sued for $3,000,000, charging it had lost that amount as a result of monopolistic practices by the Aluminum company. The Sherman anti-trust act provides for treble damages.

The case was tried twice, each side winning once, but both decisions were reversed by the Appellate Courts.

Attorneys indicated the cost that a third trial would involve was largely responsible for the settlement.

MORE MEDALS TO MUSSOLINI

ROME, Nov. 30.—The Directorate of the Italian National Association of Combatants decided today to give the Government all medals its members received from allied nations in the World War.

Every World War veteran in the country blongs to the organization. The action was taken because the medals "lost their value as a symbol of the solidarity which the sacrifice of the dead for a common cause should be assured among survivors," the announcement said.

HAILE SELASSIE JOINS ETHIOPIAN CHIEFS AT DESSYE

Sets Up Military Headquarters and Announces He Will Go to 'the Trenches' If Necessary.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

DESSYE, Ethiopia, Nov. 30.—Emperor Haile Selassie established Ethiopia's military headquarters here today, after telling his subjects that, if necessary, he would "join the warriors in the trenches."

The populace of this city, 175 miles northeast of Addis Ababa, received the Emperor with enthusiasm as he completed his long journey by motor caravan.

All along the route, Ethiopians cheered as the Emperor, accompanied by many chieftains and aides, sped toward his new headquarters, riding some of the time through rugged mountain country.

Immediately after his arrival, Haile Selassie conferred with his military leaders, including Gen. Tecle Hawariate, who will command the Ethiopian troops. Hawariate, Ethiopia's former delegate to the League of Nations, recently returned to Ethiopia and pledged much of his fortune to his country's cause.

Halting last night at Debre Birhan, about 75 miles from the capital, the Emperor told his followers:

"I am now going north to the front headquarters at Dessye. If necessary, I will go farther, joining the warriors in the trenches.

"I have already visited the southern front, where I found the spirit of the soldiers excellent."

The psalms of David were sung throughout last night in religious services by members of the Emperor's party at Debre Birhan. The King slept in a tent.

At Dessye, Haile Selassie will occupy the palace where his son, Crown Prince Asfa Wosan, formerly resided.

Strong Ethiopian Forces Advancing Toward Italian Lines.

By the Associated Press.

ADUWA, Ethiopia, Nov. 30.—Strong forces of Ethiopians were said to be moving toward the Italian lines on the northern front today.

The Italians, said dispatches, have repulsed many rear guard attacks, made by warriors of Ras Seyoum, Ethiopia's northern commander, on the first division of Italian native troops.

One Eritrean soldier and 10 Ethiopians were reported to have been killed in fighting near Abaro Pass, controlling the eastern gateway to the Tembien region.

Airplanes scouting in advance of an Italian column were attacked by anti-aircraft guns, the Italians announced. Scouting planes confirmed reports that strong bodies of the enemy were moving northward, between Amba Alaji and Lake Ashangi.

Mountainous Tembien Region in Italy's Hands.

By the Associated Press.

MAKALE, Ethiopia, Nov. 30. — Practically the whole of the difficult and mountainous Tembien region of Northern Ethiopia, which was the stronghold of Ras Seyoum, northern commander for Haile Selassie, today was in Italian hands.

Three complete divisions and three light Italian columns penetrated the Tembien area. Ras Reyoum's men continued to harry the Fascist flanks and rear.

Despite the fine combing of the territory by Italian patrols, the mountainous nature of the terrain still permits some Ethiopian units to conceal themselves and make sudden attacks upon the advance European troops.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the Italian commander, remarked that Tembien, as large as an Italian Province, "contains only mule paths." Therefore military activity of a complex order is necessary to guarantee an effective conquest.

Beacon Dedicated to Rogers, Post.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. — Nine Coast Guard planes flew through threatening clouds today as a new 1,800,000 candle-power air beacon atop George Washington Bridge was dedicated to the late Will Rogers and Wiley Post. Mrs. Post, the flyer's widow, spoke briefly.

BRAZILIAN INDUSTRIALIST HELPING MUSSOLINI WIN WAR

Italian Count, Once Poor, Has Annual Gross Income of $21,000,000 Exceeding That of Any State.

By the Associated Press.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Nov. 30.—One of the vaster personal fortunes in South America, if not the world, is here at the service of Italy to help her cause in Ethiopia.

"Young men make war, old men must support it," said the master of the fortune, Count Francisco Matarazzo, Italian nobleman, by dispensation of King Victor Emmanuel and director of the United Matarazzo Industries, considered here South America's largest industrial empire.

He was 82 years old a while ago and is recalled in Sao Paulo as a poor Italian immigrant 50 years ago.

The count employs 15,000 persons. Among his men are many Italians, and to those who enlist for the Ethiopian campaign he promises care of their dependents in Brazil and their jobs when they get back.

The count's factories are in five states, Sao Paulo, Parma and Rio Grande do Sul in the south and Espirito Santo and Parahyba farther north. He also is an extensive lumber and grazing landholder. His five coastline freighters go as far as Buenos Aires to the south and to Curityba in the Brazilian north.

While there is no reliable estimate of his wealth, officials of the industrial empire said its annual gross earnings were about $21,000,000. That is more than the yearly revenues of any state in the Brazilian union of 20, says Sao Paulo.

The count, a widower, has 12 children. He lost a son in a Paris automobile accident several years ago.

PLEA ON AAA MADE IN SUPREME COURT BY FARM BUREAU

keep proceeds of these taxes whether they are legal or not."

Whether or not the Supreme Court will consider the amendments, which were not contained in the lower court record, was a question for decision by the nine Justices.

On "General Welfare" Argument.

Answering arguments in the Government brief advancing the "general welfare" clause of the Constitution in support of the AAA, the Hoosac brief asserted:

"It seems clear to us that it can not poossibly include a power to control through the use of money the conduct and activities of citizens in spheres otherwise beyond Congressional control."

The Agricultural Adjustment Act and "its companion statute, the National Industrial Recovery Act," were termed "an insidous effort to transform the Congress of the United States from a Federal legislature with limited powers into a national parliament subject, as respects control over both industry and agriculture, to no restraint except self-restraint."

The brief said Government attorneys were attempting "to persuade the court to ignore altogether the existence of the scheme of production-control," and to "focus attention upon two points only, first, that the statute levies a tax, and second, that the citizen has no standing to question an appropriation."

Hoosac Mills also questioned that the act was "an emergency measure," adding that "for over two years the enforcement of this measure has continued without any suggestion that its policies were to be changed or withdrawn."

President Roosevelt recently, Hoosac counsel said, "has openly declared that this agricultural control program is a part of the permanent policy of his administration."

Shaw Rails at Britain's Backing African Autocrat

Urges Sense of Proportion on League in Dealing With Italy's Claim for Expansion —Prefers Fascism to Party System.

(Copyright, 1935.)

LONDON, Nov. 30.—George Bernard Shaw, in an interview today, pleaded for a "little more sense of proportion" on the part of the League of Nations in dealing with Italy's claim for expansion. He had barbed comment for the contradiction he found in Great Britain's defense of Emperor Haile Selassie, "the complete autocrat."

He said the British parliamentary system shared the faults of all party governments and had "enslaved and paralyzed Britain," and that anything, including dictatorship of the Fascist kind, is better. But in the last analysis Shaw remained a staunch Briton. He will permit his plays to be produced in Italy only:

"Provided it becomes clear that the exception was not granted on the quite mistaken assumption that I am anti-British."

Put Besides Shakespeare.

This in comment on the fact that Mussolini has barred all English plays but those of Shaw and Shakespeare.

Asked if he was flattered at being ranged alongside Shakespeare, Shaw—who has called himself a greater playwright than Shakespeare—answered: "I am quite satisfied with the juxtaposition. I am in the Shakespearean tradition as a playwright. Our methods are essentially the same and, as Shakespeare is a very great master in the craft, association of my name with his is highly complimentary to me."

"Did you regard it as a slur on the literary and dramatic merits of your plays when Il Duce said they will be permitted in Italy only because you are the most anti-British of British authors?" Ehaw replied: "I take the exception made in my favor as a tribute to my literary and dramatic abilities, not as a slur on them; and, provided it becomes clear that is not granted on the mistaken assumption that I am anti-Brtish, I shall take advantage of it most gratefully."

"Intelliectual Counter Sanctions."

Seeking Shaw's reaction to the "intellectual counter sanctions" invoked by Italy in retaliation against the nations participating in League of Nations economic sanctions against her, measures that are barring foreign opera stars, and playwrights from the Italian public, asked: "Do you think any nation could exist artistically solely on its own productions, whether in painting, music or the theater?" "Of course it could," said Shaw. "The Moaris, cut off from all European art, tattooed themselves and made war drums. Their canoes and wooden houses were much prettier than the stuff we have imposed on them.

"As to Italy, you cannot starve Italy artistically; Italy can starve you by shutting you out of sight of her inexhaustible treasures of art. Italy can wipe the floor with us when it comes to sanctions of that sort. As to music, painting and the theater, her difficulty has always been that she has been so productive that she has not had foreign contracts enough for healthy cross-fertilization."

Denounces Party System.

"In view of Mussolini's latest pronouncement, do you still regard the Fascist form of one-man govern ment as superior to the British parliamentary method with its large cabinet?" "Anything is better than the British parliamentary method which has nothing to do with the size of the cabinet," Shaw replied. "It is to the party system that I object. The party system is the pons asinorum (bridge of asses) of political science. It has enslaved and paralyzed England because no Englishman will take the trouble to understand it; he thinks he has disposed of it when he has said there will be parties. Then he will cackle about one-man government and proceed to deplore the abandonment of czarism in Russia and call for sanctions in aid of the Negus of Ethiopia, the complete autocrat."

"Is Italy losing its artistic reputaion or merely losing its sense of proportion, or either, in your opinion?"

"Humor and sense of proportion are not compatible with a state of war," Shaw replied. "The League of Nations could do with a little more sense of proportion in dealing with Italy's claim for expansion. But the situation is not a sum in the rule of three, and if Italy is unable to handle it in a purely mathematical spirit, let any nation that can, throw the first stone."

U. S. SCRAP IRON FOR ITALY

Comprises More Than Half of October Exports of Metal to Europe.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. — The Commerce Department made known today that shipments of scrap iron and steel to Italy in October—the month in which hostilities began in the Italian-Ethiopian war—totaled 44,301 gross tons, more than half of all European purchases in the United States.

This compared with 40,432 tons sold to Italy in September and 18,021 tons in October, 1934.

Previously, the Commerce Department had announced that the dollar value of scrap iron and steel exports to Italy increased to $472,455 in October from $179,458 in the corresponding month last year. Large increases in exports of oil, copper, tractors and trucks, airplanes and engines also were reported.

DR. SCHACHT DEFENDS CAPITALISM IN SPEEC[illegible]

Declares Masses Confound [illegible] With Riches and Develop [illegible] Hatred for It.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Dr. Hjalm[illegible] Schacht, Germany's "economic di[illegible]tator," defended capitalism in [illegible] address before the Academy f[illegible] German law today.

"In a time when desirable tra[illegible]tions and things like folk danc[illegible] spinning looms and the like a[illegible] being called into life again," [illegible] said, "let us not forget that capi[illegible] goods, like grain silos, harvest[illegible] machines and motor plows are [illegible]dispensable in an agricultural pr[illegible]ess which aims to feed 65,000,00[illegible]

Dr. Schacht, Minister of Econo[illegible]ics, prised what he called "the lea[illegible]ership principle" as applied [illegible] by Adolf Hitler. Although asserti[illegible]ng even leaders must be controlled, he said:

"The leadership principle is the best and happiest idea under one condition, namely, that the leader be a real leader. If all who were being named as leaders were truly leaders, what a paradise we would live in!" Hitler, he said, was a true leader.

"In the sub-consciousness of every mass psychosis," Schacht continued, "there are anti-capitalistic feelings, because the mass, without being aware of it, confounds capitalism with riches.

"Nothing more imperatively [illegible]mands a capitalistic sub-structure than a modern defense force. Cannon, airplanes, submarines—everything belonging to modern defense—are things that are unthinkable without industrial super-efficiency in the capitalistic sense."

He expressed the opinion that the "urge to earn" must ever remain the foundation of economic[illegible] and that the state must interfere only if this urge develops into mere lust for gain at the expense of the common good. He declared "the great part of our population has no c[illegible]ception of the pauperization [illegible]at has taken place in Germany."

He disclosed that there were [illegible] than 45,000 persons in Germ[illegible] with an annual income of over $[illegible]000 each.

Schacht pleaded that laws g[illegible]erning shares of stocks should be so liberal that a change of ha[illegible]nds could be effected easily.

"It would be ideal, of course, if stockholders never sold their sha[illegible] but unfortunately the realitie[illegible] life are different," he said.

Only by keeping shares in [illegible] liquid state and making possib[illegible] their quick sale can investors [illegible] encouraged to place their savin[illegible] at the Government's disposa[illegible] pointed out.

"'Whoever can today divest hi[illegible]self of money for three months m[illegible] have the assurance that after th[illegible] period he can get his money back," Schacht declared.

MRS. LIVERMORE PUT IN JAIL FOR SHOOTING SON

Transferred From Hospital to Cell—Will Be Held Pending Outcome of Boy's Wound.

Youth in Grave Condition —Tells of Quarrel Over Mother's Drinking and 'Other Things.'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Nov. 30.—Mrs. Dorothea Livermore, divorced second wife of the Wall Street plunger, was transferred from a hospital to the county jail today and booked "on suspicion of assault to commit murder" in the shooting yesterday of her 16-year-old son, Jesse Livermore Jr. Authorities said she would be held pending the outcome of the boy's wound.

Mrs. Livermore, who had been kept under the influence of opiates at the hospital, appeared calm as she posed for photographers at the jail. Her house guest, D. B. Neville, who said he was engaged to marry Mrs. Livermore, accompanied her and remained with her for half an hour after she was put in a cell with a white woman accused of drunken driving and a Mexican vagrant.

Livermore With Son.

Livermore arrived with his third wife at Glendale by airplane early today and motored at once to the bedside of his son here. At that time, the boy was reported to have "rallied slightly."

The elder Livermore refused to comment. He and his present wife were in St Louis yesterday when he heard that his son had been shot. He took a plane immediately.

Between spells of unconsciousness, young Livermore attempted to absolve his mother, whispering, "she didn't mean to hurt me. It was my fault, I guess. It was an accident."

The boy, who said he spent most of Thanksgiving day away from home "because there was so much drinking going on," returned at midnight and remonstrated with his mother for her drinking, District Attorney Heckendorf said he learned.

"We quarreled about it. There were other things, too, I didn't like," the wounded boy said.

Neville, house guest of Mrs. Livermore, said the boy announced, "I'm going to get sodden drunk so mohter will know how it looks and she will stop her drinking." The boy raised a bottle of whisky to his lips and his mother answered, "I'd rather see you dead than drinking."

Hands Mother Rifle.

The boy then got a .22-caliber rifle and handed it to his mother, saying, "well, here you are."

Neville heard a shot. He ran into the room and found the boy on the floor and Mrs. Livermore beside him, crying, "I've shot my boy! I've shot my boy!"

The bullet hit him in the chest and ranged down, near his spine. The boy was beiing kept alive by an artificial lung as surgeons prepared for an emergency operation as a last resort. Little hope was held for his recovery.

Before leaving the hospital, Mrs. Livermore blamed her ex-husband for the tragedy. She said she shot the boy while "unstrung" by a letter Livermore had written her, received Thanksgiving day.

"He accused me of many false things," she was quoted as saying. "He said I kept his letters from our sons, too. He said a lot of things. I got the letter Thanksgiving day. It upset me, unstrung me. That's what it did. I didn't intend to kill my son. My son just dared me to do it, and I guess I did it. That's all."

She told officers she could not remember firing the shot.

MAIL CARRIER SAYS HE LEFT 143 LETTERS IN BASEMENT

John O'Connor, Employe for 23 Years, Asserts He Forgot to Return for Them.

John O'Connor, a mail carrier for 23 years, admitted yesterday, postoffice inspectors said, that he had left 143 letters in the basement of an apartment building at 4396 Maryland avenue, where they were found by a janitor Tuesday.

The postoffice inspectors, who arrested O'Connor on a charge of delaying the mails, said he told them he put the letters in the basement Nov. 4 and intended to return for them, but forgot to do so.

O'Connor is 55 years old and lives at 5244 Maffitt avenue. A warrant was issued and he was held under $1000 bond.

Before leaving the hospital, Mrs. Livermore blamed her ex-husband for the tragedy. She said she shot the boy while "unstrung" by a letter Livermore had written her, received Thanksgiving day.

"He accused me of many false things," she was quoted as saying. "He said I kept his letters from our sons, too. He said a lot of things. I got the letter Thanksgiving day. It upset me, unstrung me. That's what it did. I didn't intend to kill my son. My son just dared me to do it, and I guess I did it. That's all."

She told officers she could not remember firing the shot.

MAIL CARRIER SAYS HE LEFT 143 LETTERS IN BASEMENT

John O'Connor, Employe for 23 Years, Asserts He Forgot to Return for Them.

John O'Connor, a mail carrier for 23 years, admitted yesterday, postoffice inspectors said, that he had left 143 letters in the basement of an apartment building at 4396 Maryland avenue, where they were found by a janitor Tuesday.

The postoffice inspectors, who arrested O'Connor on a charge of delaying the mails, said he told them he put the letters in the basement Nov. 4 and intended to return for them, but forgot to do so.

O'Connor is 55 years old and lives at 5244 Maffitt avenue. A warrant was issued and he was held under $1000 bond.

WOMAN KILLED BY FALL FROM THIRD STORY WINDOW

Divorced Eight Weeks Ago by New York Banker; Suffered From Nervous Disorder.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Mrs. Helen Moran Fahnestock injured by a fall from a third story window Thanksgiving night, died yesterday.

Col. Snowden Fahnestock divorced her Oct. 7., in Newport, R. I., and obtained custody of their two daughters.

Mrs. Fahnestock had been a patient in New York hospital for a nervous disorder. She was permitted to go to the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Spring Knapp, for Thanksgiving dinner. After dinner she left the table, ostensibly to visit a cousin who was sick in bed. Soon afterward she was found fatally injured in the areaway. Members of the family did not report the case to the police.

Papers in the divorce suit were not made public. In the custody dispute, Col. Fahnestock charged his wife was infatuated with another man, whose name he did not disclose.

REAL ESTATE MAN GIVES BOND, DEALS UNDER INQUIRY

Several School Employes Complain of Transactions Involving $10,000 in Loans.

A real estate dealer was placed under $10,000 bond yesterday and the grand jury was ordered to investigate several transactions he had with employes of two Catholic schools, who reported lending him about $10,000.

Joseph Hamilton, employed at Loretto Academy, 3407 Lafayette avenue, reported to the Circuit Attorney that the real estate man sold him subdivision property more than 10 years ago and recently suggested a resale. During the negotiations the dealer mentioned another deal for which he needed cash, and Hamilton lent him $500 cash and $5000 in bonds, including two United States Treasury bonds, according to the complaint. Hamilton said he had not been repaid.

Charles Duffy, elderly employe of St. Louis University, said the real estate man sold him lots in a subdivision and subsequently proposed a resale at a higher figure. Early this year the real estate man spoke of another deal and borrowed $4300, according to Duffy, who exhibited canceled checks for the amount. Duffy said he had since been unable to get in touch with the man.

M. Bristol, the city's contact man with the WPA, to Jefferson City tomorrow to see Matthew S. Murray, State WPA Administrator, and learn what could be done. They will ask Murray to confer with union spokesmen if he should be unwilling tomorrow to make a ruling of the sort wanted by the unions.

Under the WPA regulations at least 90 per cent of those employed must have been on the relief rolls last May. There is provision for employed up to 10 per cent at a wage higher than the monthly "security" WPA wage, under certain circumstances.

Baltzell said his interpretation of this provision was that if possible all employed for WPA work should be taken from the May relief rolls, but if skilled workers were needed to complete an undertaking, up to 10 per cent of the total employed on the project might be hired without regard to the relief requirement or the "security" wage.

ANNA WARE BABY CASE TRANSCRIPT FINISHED

1500-Page Record Filed With Court; Decision Expected Soon.

The filing yesterday of the transcript of the testimony in the habeas corpus suit of Anna Ware to recover her baby indicated a decision might be announced soon, probably this week.

The transcript, consisting of 1500 typewritten pages, was filed with the clerk of the St. Louis Court of Appeals by Herman DaCosta, court reporter. The hearing of the testimony before Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh of the Court of Appeals was concluded Nov. 6. Filed with the transcript were about 100 exhibits, consisting of documents and photographs.

The baby Anna Ware is seeking to recover is one of two figuring in the Muench baby hoax, exposed by the Post-Dispatch. It was represented by Dr. Ludwig O. Muench and his wife, Nellie Tipton Muench, as having been born to Mrs. Muench, and was surrendered by them into custody of the court on the Commissioner's order. It is now in the Children's Hospital, held as evidence. Another baby procured earlier for the Muenches, died at the Jewish Hospital after it was taken there from the Muench home, 4736 Westminster place.

ST. CLAIR COUNTY TAX RATE UP FROM 49 TO 70 CENTS

Board of Supervisors Increases Levy Because of Pauper Relief Transfer From Townships.

The 1936 tax rate on $100 valuation for St. Clair County general purposes will be slightly more than 70½ cents, an increase of 21½ cents over the 1935 tax rate of 49 cents. The figure does not include rates of school districts, towns and other taxing bodies which together make the total rate.

An appropriation ordinance for 1936 on which the county tax rate was based was passed yesterday by the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors. It totaled $966,983, or $12,466 less than the 1935 appropriation.

The increased 1936 rate results from the transfer of pauper relief taxes from townships to county administration, a special tax for the widows' pension fund, and a bond issue of $169,000 to retire accumulated bills.

TWO WOMEN HURT WHEN STREET CAR HITS THEIR AUTO

Machine Had Stopped at Street Intersection to Make Turn When Struck.

Mrs. Agnes Brickey, 3930 Cora avenue, and Mrs. Viola Summerville, 2521 University street, suffered skull injuries yesterday afternoon when a west-bound Cass avenue street car crashed into the back of the automobile in which they were riding. They were taken to Christian Hospital.

The automobile was being driven by Mrs. Brickey's husband, John. He was going west in St. Louis avenue and had stopped to make a left turn into Bacon street when the street car hit his automobile.

BOTH BOYS HELD AFTER INQUEST IN HIGGINS MURDER

Coroner's Jury at Edwardsville Urges Everett Rambo and James Jarrett Be Denied Bond.

A Coroner's jury at Edwardsville returned a verdict of homicide yesterday in the fatal shooting of John C. Higgins last Monday night and recommended that Everett Rambo and James Jarrett, 15-year-old Edwardsville boys, be held for the grand jury, without bond.

The jury's recommendation will be carried out and the case will be presented to the next grand jury, which will convene Jan. 13, State's Attorney M. L. Geers of Madison County said. If indictments are returned a setting for trial may be obtained during the January term of court, he said.

Geers, the first inquest witness, read statements made by the boys Thursday, in which they admitted breaking into the Higgins home at Edwardsville to commit burglary and that Rambo fired the fatal shot when Higgins overtook him as he fled from the house.

No Coercion, They Say.

Sheriff H. Simon Henry and Deputy Sheriff Paul Taylor testified they witnessed the statements and that they were obtained without coercion.

The next witness, Mrs. Louise H. Higgins, widow of the victim, who was a deputy in the Madison County Treasurer's office, told her story of events before and after the shooting.

She said that after she, her husband and their 7-year-old daughter, Margie, had retired between 10:30 and 11 o'clock Monday night, she was awakened by the crying of her daughter. "I always wake up when the baby cries, but this time it was a different cry, a pitiful cry," she testified.

Hit Her With Fist.

"I got up and went to her room and saw a terrible figure over her bed," she continued. "I could see he was beating her to death. Then he turned around like a flash, hit me with his fist and ran out. I called to my husband and as I went out I bumped into him in the hall.

"I told my husband the man had run out the back way and then I went back into the baby's room and turned on the light. She was covered with blood—her head, arms, shoulders and gown. I was so hysterical and I didn't realize where my husband had gone and I didn't hear any shot. Then I went out and saw him lying on the porch. I held him in my arms and tried to get him to talk."

Didn't See Intruder.

The witness burst into tears. After a pause Coroner W. W. Billings asked her if she saw the intruder after the lights were turned on. She said she had not.

The Coroner testified briefly as to the cause of death, a bullet penetrating the heart and lodging in the spine.

The revolver with which Higgins was shot was found Friday evening where Rambo had said he hid it, on the farm of his foster father. Verne Rambo. Beside it was a paper bag containing $11.10, which, with the weapon, Rambo and Jarrett admitted stealing from a warehouse earlier on the night of the shooting.

Jarrett, an Edwardsville High School student and son of William Jarrett, an oil refinery laborer, retracted his confession Thursday night after talking to his mother. She said the boy was subject to nightmares and that she knew he was asleep at the time of the shooting, as her husband had seen him in his room about that time.

TO DEMAND DEATH FOR KILLER OF EX-WIFE AND PATROLMAN

Idaho Prosecutor to Try Douglas Van Vlack on Two Murder Charges If Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Nov. 30.—Prosecutor Edward E. Babcock announced tonight he would demand the death penalty for Douglas Van Vlack, killer of his ex-wife and a highway patrolman.

"If I fail to obtain a verdict for hanging at the first trial," he said, "I shall proceed with the second." He has filed only one murder charge so far, in connection with the officer's death.

Van Vlack repeated to Sheriff E. F. Prater today the story of the killing of his divorced wife, 22-year-old Mildred Hook of Tacoma, Wash., whose body was found yesterday in a culvert near here. Her skull was crushed and she had been shot through the left eye.

Two brothers today took Miss Hook's body to the Tacoma home from which Van Vlack kidnaped her last Saturday.

Van Vlack shot Highway Patrolman Fontaine Cooper, when Cooper and another officer sought to question him about the kidnaping. The other officer was wounded.

CITY MAY START GRADE SEPARATION WORK IN SPRING

U. S. Roads Bureau Chief Writes He Will Approve $1,890,000 Program When Submitted.

Baxter L. Brown, president of the Board of Public Service, expressed hope that work on six proposed railroad grade crossing separations to cost about $1,890,000 might be started next spring after receiving a letter yesterday from Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, stating the projects would be approved by him when formally submitted.

The proposals, already approved by the Missouri State Highway Department, which will be in charge of the work provide for the expenditure of about $560,000 by St. Louis for acquisition of land, the remaining $1,330,000 for construction to be provided from Federal public works funds.

The proposed constructon and estimated costs are:

Missouri Pacific at Kingshighway, probably over tracks, construction, $360,000; land, $200,000.

Missouri Pacific at Chippewa street, United States highway No. 66, over tracks; construction, $300,000; land, $60,000.

Missouri Pacific at Ivory avenue, under tracks; construction, $200,000; land, $150,000.

Wabash at Waterman boulevard and De Baliviere and Hamilton avenues; construction, $470,000; land, $150,000.

Brown said MacDonald also expressed approval of another Wabash grade crossing project at Florissant road in Ferguson. It has been approved by the State Highway Department.

The Missouri program for grade crossing separation was delayed when officials of the Bureau of Public Roads in October objected that there was an "improper distribution" as to various railroads operating in the State. The State plan called for 33 separations at a cost of $4,923,500.

MAN KILLED; ST. LOUISAN, 5 OTHERS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Cars Collide Head-On Near Rogers, Ark., Injured Treated at Fayetteville Hospital.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROGERS, Ark., Nov. 30.—Kirby Williams, 21 years old, native of Rogers, employed by the C. S. Tull Transfer Co., Kansas City, who was spending Thanksgiving with his mother, Mrs. Hattie Williams, here, was killed today in a head-on collision near here between an automobile driven by C. S. Stocker, college student, residing at the Branscome Hotel, St. Louis, and Williams' car.

Riding with Stocker was his mother, Mrs. E. C. Stocker of Shanghai, China, who received a cut on the head; his aunt, Mrs. G. O. Stocker of Fayetteville, Ark., who suffered an injury of the hip and a head gash, and Wilbur S. Kopp of Plattsville, Wash., who was reported to have received a fractured upper jaw. Edward Stocker, cousin of the driver, and Mrs. Robert Kopp of Plattsville, were bruised. They were taken to Fayetteville Hospital.

A Coroner's jury returned a verdict of accident.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Percival Chubb of St. Louis was elected president of the American Ethical Union at the closing session of its annual convention today.

Other officers elected are: Mrs. Samuel S. Fels of Philadelphia, Eastern vice-president; Henry W. Olschner of Chicago, Western vice-president; Charles Sonfield of New York, treasurer, and George E. Odell, New York, secretary. It was voted to hold next year's convention in St. Louis.

CHARITY FUND LACKS $1,000,000 OF GOAL

Campaign Leaders Appeal to Residents to Give Without Being Called On.

With the United Charities fund lacking more than $1,000,000 of the $2,850,000 sought, campaign leaders yesterday appealed to residents of the city and county to make contributions without waiting for a solicitor to call on them.

The drive is to end next Friday. Contributions announced after the last report meeting, Wednesday, totaled $1,820,508, about 64 per cent of the goal. The next report meeting will be held Tuesday noon at Hotel Jefferson.

Oliver F. Richards, campaign chairman, emphasized that even a small gift can accomplish much. He mentioned that $2.36 would provide the money needed to keep a boy off the streets for a month, by making the facilities of a settlement house available to him. For $16.24 a child may be maintained for a month in a foster home, Richards said; $4.81 would maintain a sick person for one day in a hospital; $7.70 would enable a child to spend a week in a summer outing farm; $14.05 would supply rehabilitation service to a crippled person for 15 days, and $30.52 would provide the necessities of life for an unemployable family for one month.

"It is an unfortunate fact," Richards said, "that the average prospective subscriber does not know just what his money would accomplish when translated into terms of human service. We feel that by showing them just what their subscriptions, however small, would accomplish, there would be little difficulty in raising the amount needed by the 89 United Charities agencies.

DR. M'BRIDE CALLS DRYS TO NEW FIGHT TO PROHIBIT LIQUOR

Aggressive Campaign May Restore Prohibition in 40 States by 1945, He Says in Report.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TO CONVENE TODAY

Superintendent Asserts Wets Have Not Kept Their Promises and Repeal Has Failed.

If prohibition forces fight hard enough, a majority of the states will be dry by 1940, and with an aggressive campaign 40 states may be dry by 1945, the Rev. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, predicted in a report to the league's directors at Hotel Statler yesterday.

He expressed doubt that prohibition could be adopted again until "the people are back of it in at least 40 states and until large portions of the other states are dry." The directors' meeting preceded the opening, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, of the league's twenty-eighth national convention, which will have as its principal objective "a new nation-wide advance against alcohol."

"What we are contending for," Dr. McBride said, "is prohibition with the people back of it." He said that no promise of the wets had been kept, adding: "No scheme of theirs has contributed a single thing worth while looking toward the solution of the alcoholic liquor problem. The wets do not deny that there is a decided increase in drinking and drunkenness. They claim exculpation but offer no worth-while remedy. It is conclusive that repeal has failed."

Against Changing Name.

His report made it clear that the league had encountered difficulties in keeping alive with the end of prohibition, but he said the experience of the last two years had convinced him a proposal to change the name of the league was foolish, because "the contest is rapidly going back to the old fight of saloon or no saloon" and "most of the prejudices against the league have dissipated or are disappearing."

A report to the board by Dr. McBride and Edward B. Dunford, attorney of the league, said: "Events during the past two years clearly demonstrated that the real objective of the opponents of the Eighteenth Amendment was not merely to change the Constitution in order that nonco-operating states desiring to legalize liquor might do so, but rather repeal of prohibition as applied to any unit of government, national, state or local."

Report Reviews Record.

The report reviewed the legislative and administrative record of the Federal Government on liquor since repeal, as well as the record of state liquor legislation, popular votes on liquor questions and court decisions. It continued:

"An examination of the state liquor laws enacted following the repeal of national prohibition discloses little new in any of them. There is a tendency to make liquor taxes or profits from liquor sales an important item in state revenue. As first enacted, there was a very general effort to prevent the premises upon which liquor was sold from having the appearance of the former saloon. Package stores were provided. Restrictions were enacted, allowing the sale of liquor by the drink only in premises where food was sold. In some, customers were required to be seated when served. The use of the words 'saloon' or 'lounge' was prohibited, as was also the existence of bars.

"The amendments in 1935 tended very generally toward a relaxation of some of these restrictions. Congress allowed the re-establishment of the bar in the District of Columbia. New York did likewise. Connecticut permitted the sale of liquor by the drink. There was, on the other hand, a very general movement toward strengthening the provisions to prevent evasion of taxes by liquor dealers. Congress also made certain concessions in favor of the brewers by exempting them from the requirements of obtaining a basic permit under the Federal Alcohol Administration.

"In other sections of the country there were evidences of a growing resentment and dissatisfaction where the sale of liquor was attempted to be forced upon communities which did not desire it. In states allowing local option, already a number of small communities have voted against the sale of liquor.

"In some of the states which voted in 1934 and 1935 upon some phase of the liquor question, there was also a very noticeable increase in the size of the dry vote as compared with the elections held in connection with the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment."

Advertising Censorship.

Turning to another phase, the report said:

"The censorship established by the Federal Alcohol Administration over liquor advertising is undoubtedly to be preferred to leaving the subject unregulated, but the present Federal policy conflicts with the interests of the states; violates the spirit, if not the letter, of the Twenty-First Amendment and is not conducive to temperance. The primary purpose of liquor advertising is to stimulate sale and consumption of liquors. Much of it is intended to induce non-users to become consumers, particularly appealing to women and youth.

"The Federal Government is responsible for the use made of the radio, the mails and the movement of liquor advertising across state lines in interstate commerce. No state can adequately regulate or prohibit the circulation of liquor advertising within its borders as long as the Federal Government permits the facilities which it controls to send such advertising into the state in disregard of its policy or law. The educational efforts of the state through its public schools to teach the physiological effects of alcoholic beverages is likely to be offset by the subtle suggestion of the ad writer."

Recommendations for state and Federal legislation made two years ago were repeated by Dr. McBride and Dunford.

A nominating committee was appointed by the league directors, to recommend officers for the next biennium. The board will hold the election at a deferred session during the convention.

Anti-Saloon League leaders and other visitors will fill pulpits of St. Louis churches at services this morning and evening. Sessions of the convention, which will end with a banquet Wednesday evening, will be open to the public.

DRIVER'S LICENSE APPLICATIONS TO BE TAKEN DEC. 9

Blanks May Be Filed on That Day and Afterward at Municipal Auditorium Exposition Hall.

ARRESTS TO BEGIN ABOUT JAN. 15

400,000 Permits Will Be Sought in City, Director of Streets and Sewers Declares.

Residents of St. Louis may begin applying for drivers' licenses at the Municipal Auditorium Exposition Hall on Dec. 9, Director of Streets and Sewers Frank J. McDevitt announced yesterday. Arrests of St. Louis motorists within the city limits for failure to have licenses probably will begin Jan. 15, he said.

Although he estimated there were 160,000 motor vehicles in the city, he expected about 400,000 applications to be made, as many persons not owning cars will need licenses for occasional driving or driving for employers. A force of 30 clerks will be prepared to issue about 8000 licenses a day, and the staff will be increased if necessary.

How to Make Application.

To save time, motorists must come with their application blanks already filled out, and, if possible, with 50 cents in change ready for the fee for a two-year period. They will enter the hall on the Fifteenth street side and leave on the Fourteenth street side. There will be five lanes chalked off, with an eye-testing machine at the end of each, two cashiers and two change booths. Derograph machines will take two pictures of the application, one for the files of the Traffic Vehicle Commission and one to be made a part of the license. The licenses will be mailed to the applicants if approved.

If the applicant has no serious mental or physical handicap, the only test will be for vision. Ability to read signs with block letters four inches high, three inches wide and with a three-quarter inch stroke 200 feet away will be tested on the machines, which will cut down the distance and letters to one-tenth scale. Ten words commonly employed in connection with traffic will be used.

Regular hours at the license bureau will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., but industrial firms wishing to have large numbers of employes tested at the same time may make arrangements to have it done out of hours. The Columbia Terminals Co. and Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. have already requested this privilege and have sent checks covering the license fees of employes driving company trucks and automobiles.

Postponement From Monday.

Issuance of the licenses was originally scheduled to begin last Monday, but was postponed because cash registers which were to have been used had not arrived. Applications and booklets containing traffic regulations are being given out at the Exposition Hall and at Room 321, City Hall. Distribution of 500,000 blanks and booklets through industrial plants, office buildings and retail stores was begun Nov. 13.

No licenses will be issued to anyone under 16 years old. Applicants between 16 and 18 must have the signatures of their parents or guardians. Licenses may be suspended or revoked for speeding reckless driving, or other serious violations of traffic ordinance, or upon conviction of automobile manslaughter, felonious wounding or felonious flight.

DEAD LINE FOR REGISTRATION OF HOLDING FIRMS TONIGHT

Majority of Big Companies Fighting Validity of Law; Several Test Suits Filed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Although tomorrow at midnight is the dead line for registration under the Wheeler-Rayburn law, major holding companies throughout the country maintained their virtually unbroken stand in refusing to register. Between 20 and 30 companies have registered, most of them small.

The New England Power Association and the New England Public Service Company, which registered today with the Securities Commission and the only big systems agreeing to obey the law. The New England Power Association said it was registering "under duress," declared the act to be unconstitutional and reserved full rights to attack its constitutionality.

Forty-one holding companies have filed suits for injunctions to restrain the enforcement of the law and 144 have sought exemption on the ground they are not holding companies. Injunction suits were filed today by the Central West Public Service Co., North American Edison Co. and American Utilities Service Corporation.

Shareholders today obtained temporary injunctions, set for hearing in New York Dec. 10, restraining the Central Public Utility Corporation and the Utilities Light & Power Corporation from registering.

The Government has instituted only one action, that against the Electric Bond & Share Co.

YOURSELF, Incorporated

The most important business in the world to you is—yourself! Worlds may be won or lost, wars fought, depressions ended, you still remain your own most vital concern.

Did you ever think of incorporating yourself? Of subjecting yourself to the same thoughtful planning you would give your business?

You, like a business, have certain assets. Maybe they read something like this:

TIME FAMILY ABILITY EARNING POWER
AMBITION CAPITAL
FRIENDS INCOME FROM INVESTMENTS

And, like a corporation, your success depends upon the use you make of them. We believe that saving plays an important part in successfully marshalling the assets of most people, that thrift is just as necessary a part of life today as it ever was in the past . . . And we believe the reasons why you save are of universal interest.

Therefore

we invite you to WRITE US A LETTER telling us WHY YOU SAVE. We plan to publish at least once each week from now until Christmas a letter of general interest on the subject:

"WHY I SAVE"

For each letter used we will pay $10. Because of the confidential nature of the subject, your name will not be used without permission.

Requirements for the letter are simple:

Residents of St. Louis, St. Louis and St. Clair Counties who are 16 years of age or over are eligible to submit a letter.

Only one letter will be considered from any one person.

Write plainly on one side of paper only, not over 300 words. Sign name and address.

All letters must be mailed to: Mississippi Valley Trust Company, Savings Department, Broadway and Olive, St. Louis, Mo. Letters mailed after midnight Thursday, December 19, will not be considered.

PROGRAM FOR TWAIN CENTENARY DINNER

Cousin of Humorist to Preside at Birthday Celebration Tuesday Evening.

The program of the public dinner at Hotel Jefferson Tuesday evening in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Mark Twain was announced yesterday.

Yesterday was the centenary of Mark Train's birth at Florida, Mo. The occasion was observed in various ways throughout the country and the world. Mark Twain (Samuel Langhorne Clemens), who was in St. Louis in his days as a Mississippi steamboat pilot, died at Redding, Conn,, April 21, 1910.

Cyril Clemens of Kirkwood, a cousin of Mark Twain, head of the Mark Twain Memorial Association and the International Mark Twain Society, will preside at the dinner. Guests expected at the speakers' table are: Gov. Park, Mayor Dickmann, Miss Josephine Johnson, author of the 1935 Pulitzer prize novel; Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, archivist of the Missouri Historical Society, and Casper S. Yost, Irving Brant and Charles G. Ross, editors, respectively, of the editorial pages of the Globe-Democrat, Star-Times and Post-Dispatch.

Dan Beard to Speak.

Speakers will include Dan Beard, founder of the Boy Scouts of America, who will tell of 20 years' acquaintance with Mark Twain, and Frederick C. Hibbard, Chicago sculptor, who made the statue of the author's famous boy characters, Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, at Mark Twain's old home, Hannibal, Mo. The Rev. Robert S. Johnston, S. J., president of St. Louis University, will deliver the invocation.

The only motion pictures ever made of Mark Twain and his family at Redding in 1908 will be shown through arrangement with President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, national chairman of the Mark Twain Centennial Committee, and Charles T. Lark of New York, attorney for the humorist's estate.

Spirituals and songs of the period of Mark Twain's life will be sung by the Missouri Pacific Negro quartet.

Contributions For Memorial.

Recently prepared incorporation papers of the memorial association will be read. A major purpose of the organization is to provide a suitable permanent memorial of some kind here. A committee headed by Isaac A. Hedges has received contributions of $1200 so far. Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel headed a committee which has considered a site for the memorial, which might be a park drinking fountain or a statue. Louis La Beaume, architect, was made chairman of the committee on design. The association has pointed out that St. Louis has not even a plaque in honor of Mark Twain.

Mayor Dickmann and President Thomas N. Dysart of the Chamber of Commerce have indorsed the movement. A memorial scroll signed by prominent literary and public figures of Europe will be displayed publicly for the first time at the dinner. It was obtained by Carroll Sibley of St. Louis, vice-president of the International Mark Twain Society, when lecturing in Europe last summer.

The dinner committee is headed by J. Hugo Grimm. Net proceeds will go to the memorial fund. The association has offices at 610 Rialto Building.

Message From Roosevelt, Talk by Homer Croy, at Hannibal.

By the Associated Press.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Nov. 30.—This Mississippi River town tonight ended its year-long centennial commemoration of Mark Twain's birth.

Hannibal's homage to its most famous son began Jan. 15, when President Roosevelt pressed a key at the White House that lit a perpetual beacon on Cardiff Hill.

The centennial commemoration ended with a banquet attended by 350 persons.

In a telegram from Warm Springs, Ga., today, Mr. Roosevelt said: "It is fitting that we should commemorate this anniversary of our beloved Mark Twain, who not only took part in a constructive period of American history but portrayed it in human and immortal prose. America will always be proud of him."

Homer Croy, native Missourian, author, was the principal speaker tonight. Greetings were read from Clemens' daughter, Mrs. Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch, and the humorist's biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine.

WIDOW SUES FOR ACCOUNTING ON HUSBAND'S PARTNERSHIP

Mrs. Clara B. Groves Alleges Architect Has Not Inventoried Collection of $31,805.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Clara B. Groves as executor of the estate of her husband, Albert B. Groves, an architect, against his former partner, Albert A. Aegerter, seeking an accounting of the estate's interest in the profits of the partnership. Aegerter was appointed administrator of the partnership estate after the death of Groves 10 years ago. He furnished a $200,000 surety bond signed by the London & Lancashire Indemnity Co., which is named as a co-defendant in the suit. The petition alleged there has been a breach of the bond.

Mrs. Groves charged Aegerter has failed to close the partnership estate and refused to pay over or account to her as executor of her husband's estate for its share of the business and also has failed to make a final accounting in Probate Court. The surety on his bond, it is alleged, has aided and abetted him in asserting an unreasonable demand based on a claim for premiums due on the bond. These premiums total about $14,000.

She said Aegerter had admitted collections of $104,432 and that he has collected on contracts due the partnership a total of $31,805, but failed to inventory the latter amount.

An attorney for Aegerter said yesterday that final settlement had not been made because of a suit pending before Circuit Judge Bader in which the bonding company demands payment of the premiums. Mrs. Groves filed a petition to have Aegerter removed as administrator of the partnership estate, but the suit was decided against her.

Chow Dog Breeders Organize.

Breeders of chow dogs have formed an association to get more uniform prices for puppies. Mrs. W. P. Thorson, a member of the association, explained that some breeders sell chows as low as $5, although the average price is $20 or $25. Herbert S. Ewing, 3739 Manola avenue, Pine Lawn, has been elected president of the association. Mrs. L. W. Scharrill is secretary and W. P. Thorson, treasurer.

BOY ADMITS KILLING FATHER HE SAYS THREATENED HIM

Confined in Same Virginia Jail With Teacher Convicted of Death of Parent.

By the Associated Press.

WISE, Va., Nov. 30. — Sixteen-year-old Haugemen Falin, charged with killing his father, L. N. Falin, in a family fight, was confined in the same jail today with Edith Maxwell, teacher, under a 25-year sentence in a similar case.

Falin told a story that was much like that of Miss Maxwell's defense in her trial two weeks ago. He told of stern parental discipline, accompanied by threats of violence, stubborn resistance, and violence which ended in the death of his father. He said his father had been drinking heavily.

The boy said he emptied both barrels of a shotgun as his father advanced with a pistol in his hand. The youth told a deputy sheriff he and his father quarreled over the breakdown of their automobile when Falin accused his son of letting the radiator run dry.

HOOVER ON AGNOSTICISM

Avoids Politics in Talk to Y. M. C. A. Gathering at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 30. —Avoiding politics, former President Herbert Hoover spoke here against agnosticism. "If ever a nation is to be founded on agnosticism," he said in an informal talk at a Y. M. C. A. gathering last night, "this civilization must fall for it is founded principally on religious faith.

"The influences which are spreading into the world are, many of them, agnostic."

MISS NANCY ANN HALL

OF 34 Kingston Drive with Hallcrest Pandora and Hallcrest Show Girl, who were entered in the Mississippi Valley Scottish Terrier Club's show by Miss Hall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hall. Hallcrest Show Girl took first place among puppies 9 to 12 months old and was named reserve winner over other females. Hallcrest Pandora was first in the American-bred classification.

'SCOTTIE' SHOW WINNER BEATS TWO CHAMPIONS

Carlyle (Ill.) Entry Best of Breed in Scottish Terrier Club Competition.

MacCrystal Besu Brummel, black son of two champion Scottish Terriers, owned by Daniel F. Moran of Carlyle, Ill., was judged the best of 48 dogs of the breed in the first annual show of the Mississippi Valley Scottish Terrier Club yesterday in the club's quarters at 411 Washington avenue.

MacCrystal, having defeated 22 other male dogs and the winner of the competition for females, won the best-of-breed title and supremacy in the show by outpointing two male "Scotties" which already had won champion ranking. Taking five points in yesterday's show, he must win six more before becoming a champion with recognition by the American Kennel Club.

H. Alvin McAleenan of New York City, who judged the dogs, said MacCrystal had one principal defect, a notched ear which probably was the result of a fight when he was a puppy. The dog was handled in the show ring by T. M. Gately of Hempstead, N. Y.

Pet Becomes Show Dog.

"Sandy," named Evertz Star Dust for show purposes, won the competition for male puppies between six and nine months old. He was shown by his owner, Mrs. Edith K. Evertz, 5100 Goethe avenue, who told a Post-Dispatch reporter she bought the dog for a pet and entered him in the show when friends insisted he was a better-than-ordinary dog. Second place went to Hallcrest Pendleton, owned by James B. Holston, 5869 Clemens avenue.

The class for puppies from nine to 12 months old was won by Craebert Commander. owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Roth of Kansas City. The brindle Hallcrest Dunbardine, belonging to Miss Anne E. Dunbar, 50 Glen road, Webster Groves, was judged first among six dogs shown in the novice class, for males which had never won except as puppies. Laddie Adair II, owned by Miss Alice Hospes, 3018 Henrietta street, was second in the novice event.

Other Ribbon Winners.

Barberry Knoe Brandy, another brindle dog, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Stalter of Hohokus, N. J., took the blue ribbon in the class for American-bred animals, with Hallcrest Dictator, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Oesterle, East St. Louis, second.

Hallcrest Dictator came back in the next event to win the class for dogs which had not won more than six firsts in previous showing. Second place in the class went to Scotsward Sultan, owned by Mrs. Louis Arivello, 4542 Gibson avenue.

Scotsward Mary, owned by Mrs. C. B. Ward of Florham Park, N. J., received the blue ribbon in the open class for females and then was judged best female in the show. She lost to MacCrystal for the best-of-breed title.

Three female dogs owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hall, 34 Kingston drive, East St. Louis, won events on last night's program. Their Hallcrest Show Girl, after taking first place in the class for puppies from nine to 12 months old, was named reserve winner over the other females.

Hallcrest Miss Chief won the event for puppies from six to nine months old, and Hallcrest Pandora was first in the American-bred classification, bringing two more blue ribbons to Mr. and Mrs. Hall. Hall is assistant general manager of the Illinois Power & Light Corporation.

First in the novice class for females went to Kearny Kitty Clyde, a brindle owned and exhibited by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moore of Bloomington, Ill. Gaynock's Black Target, shown by her owner, Mrs. Louis Arivello, won the event for female dogs which had not won more than six firts in other meets.

The fifth annual show of the Wire and Smooth Fox Terrier Club of St. Louis will be held today at the Gatesworth Hotel. The 57 entries will be on exhibit after 10 a. m. and the judging will be at 2 p. m. and at 7 p. m. Phillips S. Bondy Jr. of Golden Bridge, N. Y., will judge the dogs.

12,000-Year-Old Corn Won't Sprout.

By the Associated Press.

HERMOSILLO, Sonora, Mexico, Nov. 30.—Kernels of corn at least 12,000 years old, found buried with mummies in the Sierra Madre Mountains of Southeastern Sonora, failed to sprout in an experiment at the Hermosillo Agricultural and Industrial Exposition which closed today. Mexican agricultural experts were not prepared to say whether the failure was due to extreme age or a preservative which kept the grain through the centuries.

ST. LOUIS DEPARTMENT STORE SALES UP 12 PCT. IN WEEK

Holiday Buying Gets Early Start; Building Permits 38 Pct. Greater Than Year Ago.

B the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Commerce Department officials said today St. Louis department stores reported a 12 per cent increase in sales during the week ended Wednesday, compared with the previous week, while retail trade in Kansas City increased slightly.

Holiday buying in St. Louis, the report said, is getting an earlier start than during the last several years.

Principal St. Louis business barometers for October, as compared with the same month last year, follow: Building permits, up 38.39 per cent; value milk production, decreased 17.33 per cent; debits to individual accounts, increased 18.34 per cent; industrial gas consumption, decreased 18.37 per cent; postoffice receipts increased 4.03 per cent; local telephone calls increased 7.39.

WAR WITH CANADA INCREDIBLE

So U. S. Minister Armour Says in Address at Ottawa.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—Norman Armour, United States Minister to Canada, said today Canada and the United States need no treaty to bind them to the principle of the undefended frontier. He said resort to arms by either against the other was "unnecessary and unthinkable."

In an address to the Canadian Club, Armour referred to testimony of certain army officers in Washington before a Congressional committee in regard to border air bases. President Roosevelt, Armour said, "in forcible language, and he can be very forcible at times," repelled any suggestion that the bases might be for use against Canada.

George Wingfield Bankrupt.

CARSON CITY, Nev., Nov. 30.—George Wingfield, capitalist and Republican National Committeeman for this state, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today was adjudged bankrupt by Federal Judge Norcross. Wingfield was president of 12 Nevada banks which closed in 1932.

WIFE NO. 3 MEETS NO. 2 AT FUNERAL; MAN HELD

Conrad A. Goeddel Says He Neglected to Get Divorce—Last Marriage Nov. 20.

Conrad A. Goeddel, 32-year-old chauffeur, 1931 Branch street, was arrested last night after his brother-in-law, Walter Cox, told police that Goeddel married his sister, Irene Cox, at Waterloo, Ill., Nov. 20, without having obtained a divorce from Mrs. Dorothy Brckovich Goeddel, 5074 Wells avenue, his second wife, whom Goeddel married in 1920.

When Goeddel attended his grandmother's funeral last Thursday with his third wife, the second Mrs. Goeddel was also present and told Goeddel's relatives that, as far as she knew, she was still Goeddel's wife, as he had never obtained a divorce from her.

Taken to the North Market street station, police said Goeddel told them that he had neglected to obtain a divorce from his second wife before marrying his third. His first marriage, he said, was to Miss Loretta Steffen, in 1920. There was one child by this marriage, but he said he did not know the whereabouts of his first wife or child, although he recalled that the child's name was Bernice.

Six years later, he married Miss Dorothy Brckovich. When she learned he had been married before, she filed a bigamy charge against him, and he finally obtained a divorce from his first wife and the charges were dropped. There were two children by the second marriage, Laverne, 9 years old and Vincent, 8, both living with their mother.

Goeddel also told them, police said, that he had not told his third wife about his previous marriages. She is 19 years old. She accompanied him to the police station last night, crying, but declined to talk to reporters.

Mrs. Dorothy Brckovich Goeddel was not at home last night, but police will try to obtain her version of Goeddel's tangled marital affairs today.

WHITE HOUSE "GOT NOTICE"

Order of Electric Company Led to Remodeling of Kitchen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—According to the neighbors an electric company order led to the remodeling of the White House kitchens. The section of Washington, where the White House is, is fast developing and is being changed over from direct to alternating electric current.

So the electric company employes visited the consumers, saying there was no choice, the change had to be made. Even the President received notice. In making the change, the entire kitchen was remodeled.

18 ISSUES IRONED OUT IN LACLEDE LABOR DISPUTE

Lawyers for Union and Gas Company Accept Provisions to Be Included in Contract.

REASONS REQUIRED FOR FIRING MEN

Five-Day, 40-Hour Week and Time and a Half for Overtime Among Other Points Agreed On.

Eighteen issues which remained unsettled after the Laclede Gas Light Co. employes' strike ended July 17 have been agreed on by lawyers for the company and the Gas House Workers' Union. These points are expected to be approved by both parties and included in a new contract, retroactive to July 17 and extending to Jan. 1, 1937.

An arbitration board headed by former Gov. Elliott W. Major and including Prof. Joseph Klamon of Washington University, for the union, and A. E. Wyatt, for the company, took under advisement last Wednesday issues regarding wage increases and seniority. The board's decision on those points will be incorporated in the new contract.

Provisions Agreed On.

One provision agreed on by Munroe Roberts, attorney for the union, and William H. Woodward, attorney for the company, is as follows: "If a (union) member be discharged, he may demand, and his superior shall furnish him, the reasons for his discharge in writing. If upon investigation such employe has been found to have been unjustly discharged, he shall be reinstated and shall be paid for any time he may have lost at his regular rate of pay."

Another provision agreed on is that an employe who gives up his job to take an office in the union shall be reinstated in his former job after his term as an officer ends. It is also provided that he shall be entitled to full priority rights as though he had been employed by the company continuously.

An introductory paragraph in the proposed agreement states: "It is agreed between the parties that fruitless controversies must be avoided. To accomplish this the parties will in every instance give prompt attention to disputes as they arise and will in good faith endeavor to settle all differences by conciliation."

Five-Day, 40-Hour Week.

It is provided that a work week shall consist of five consecutive days or nights of eight consecutive hours each. Overtime is to be paid at the rate of time and a half. All work on Sundays and legal holidays, except when part of a regular schedule, will also be paid at the rate of time and a half.

Employes temporarily or permanently assigned to higher rated positions shall receive the higher rate of pay while occupying such positions, according to another proposal.

Union as well as company notices are to be placed on bulletin boards in each department. Another point provides that employes who serve on juries shall turn over their jury compensation to the company and shall receive their regular pay from the employer.

Employes shall be paid for overtime work, rather than taking additional time off, under another provision.

FUNERAL FOR ST. LOUIS MAN KILLED AT HUNTINGTON, IND.

Services Tuesday for Arthur H. Adams, Victim of Truck Accident.

Funeral services for Arthur H. Adams, 39 years old, 3612A Hartford street, who was killed when a truck he was driving struck an underpass pier and caught fire at Huntington, Ind., yesterday, will be held at 9 o'clock, Tuesday morning, at the McLaughlin parlors, 2301 Lafayette avenue. Burial will take place at St. James, Mo.

Adams was driving a long-distance hauling truck from Detroit to St. Louis. According to information received by his wife, Mrs. Madge Adams, the accident occurred when he swerved to the side of the road to avoid a car approaching from the opposite direction. A companion leaped from the truck and escaped injury.

Adams had been working in Detroit since last spring, making occasional visits home. Surviving also are a son, Wayne, 13; his mother, Mrs. Ella Adams, and three sisters.

CAT BITE FATAL AFTER YEAR

Man Dies in City Hospital of Infection of Foot.

A man who gave his name as True Robinson and said he formerly lived in Waynesville, Mo., died at City Hospital yesterday of an infection of his left foot, which, he said, was caused by a cat bite more than a year ago.

The man, who was 33 years old, was taken to the hospital Nov. 15, when police found him lying in a doorway in the 1000 block of Morrison avenue. He said he had not received any medical attention since he was bitten.

U. S. COMPLAINS TO JAPAN ON EXPORTS TO PHILIPPINES

Says Quantity of Cotton Textiles Shipped Indicate Agreement Will Be Violated.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Nov. 30.—The three-month-old United States-Japan agreement by which the Japanese agreed to limit exports to the Philippines of their cotton textiles to 45,000,000 square meters a year has already run into difficulties, officials disclosed today.

A Foreign Office spokesman confirmed reports that the United States State Department had called to the attention of Japanese Ambassador Hirosi Saito Philippines customs statistics showing imports of Japan-made cotton goods for the three months ending Oct. 31 amounted to 26,000,000 square meters. At such a rate the quota would soon be exceeded.

The spokesman said Foreign Minister Koki Hirota would instruct Saito at Washington to say the Japanese Government was investigating the situation.

EX-CONVICT GETS THREE YEARS UNDER DYER ACT

Julius Gruender Pleads Guilty of Charge; Companion Convicted in October of Killing.

Julius Gruender, former convict, was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge George H. Moore yesterday on a plea of guilty of violation of the Dyer Act.

Gruender was arrested last August in a house in St. Louis County when police found him suffering from a bullet wound of the leg. He told officers he had been shot in a drunken fight. Investigation showed that he had driven to St. Louis from Edwardsville, Ill., in a stolen automobile.

When officers went to 125 Mary avenue, Luxemburg, after receiving word that Gruender was there, Thomas Pohl, under indictment in Madison County for murder, ran out of the house, but was arrested later. Pohl was convicted at Edwardsville in October and his punishment fixed at 15 years in prison for killing Bryce Bolin at a clubhouse six years ago.

CONVENTION BUREAU SEEKING MEETINGS OF BOTH PARTIES

Representatives to Attend Republican and Democratic Committee Sessions.

The St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau has been active for several months in its efforts to bring both of the national political convention here next year, Charles F. Hatfield, secretary and general manager, said yesterday. Representatives of the bureau will be present at the meeting of the National Republican Committee at Washington Dec. 16 and at the National Democratic Committee meeting later.

"While it is true that the amount of money the city offers is an important factor in the selection of the convention city," Hatfield said, "other items such as the political situation, the accessibility and facilities offered by the city play an important part in the selection of the meeting place for both parties."

Both parties, he added, are considering the Middle West this year for tactical reasons. St. Louis, he said, was favored by its transportation facilities an dthe new Municipal Auditorium, with its seating capacity of about 15,000 and adequate rooms for committee meetings.

WARRIOR RAS SEYOUM CHIEF ITALIAN WORRY

Rome Communiques Show Fascist Leaders Respect His Skill as a Fighter.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Ras Seyoum, leader of Northern Ethiopian forces, is a warrior chieftain whom the Italians, their communiques from the front indicate, regard with deepest respect. Almost all the triumphs acknowldeged for Emperor Haile Selassie's forces are mentioned in association with Seyoum.

From Rome the repeated comment on the nearness of his capture or disaster finds frequent place in the official communiques, evidencing a deep preoccupation in him by the Fascist war leaders.

To a conceded military skill Seyoum brings to his fighting an abiding hate for the Italians. It was germinated when, a child, he stood beside his father, Ras Seyoum Mangasica, nearly 40 years ago, and saw Emperor Menelik's troops annihilate an Italian army at Aduwa. This hate is intensified by the present Italian invasion, and doubly so by the desertion to the enemy of his cousin, Haile Selassie Gugsa.

Was Head of Tigre Province.

Before the present conflict, Seyoum was Governor of Tigre Province. He is related by marriage to the Emperor, and is a descendant of a former King of Kings.

Equipped with a force variously estimated at from 15,000 to 50,000 men (the latter the most recent figure), Ras Seyoum has found shelter in the mountains and valleys of Tembien Province, west of the captured city of Makale, and practiced his favorite method of warfare—flank attack.

He objected to the counsel of the Emperor not to try to stem the Italian advance, but to unite his forces with the imperial army. Seyoum's pride urged him to meet the foe in combat.

Early in the conflict, after the Italian seizure of Aduwa and Aksum, Seyoum reorganized his staff for stiffer resistance. He directed a campaign against Italian propaganda, and imprisoned local rulers suspected of being friendly with Italy, in an effort to halt desertions. He also has won to the Ethiopian service deserters of the Italian Eritrean forces, according to Addis Ababa announcements.

How He Meets Air Attacks.

Under orders from the Emperor, Seyoum's early war maneuvers saw him scattering his men in small groups, frustrating aerial attacks on them. The strategy forced the Italian airmen to swoop low and expose themselves to machine-gun fire.

Latterly, however, Seyoum is reported in dispatches to have moved his full strength (of 50,000) on the northern front into the united army made up of the forces of Ras Kassa (70,000 troops), Ras Immeru (50,000 troops) and the 7000 imperial guardsmen.

EFFORT BEING MADE TO GET $75,000 CIRCUIT COURT FEES

Bills Have Been Accruing for Past 10 Years; No Notices Sent to Insolvent Debtors.

In an effort to collect about $75,000 in fees due the Circuit Court, H. Sam Priest, Circuit Clerk, is sending "reminder" letters to various litigants who have failed to make payment. The fee bills have been accruing for the past 10 years. Notices are being sent only to persons and corporations known to be solvent.

The costs include clerk's and witness fees, special commissioner allowances, fees incurred in the Justice of the Peace courts and expenses incurred in the taking of depositions. Priest cited a section of the law which provides costs shall be levied against the goods and chattels or other effects of litigants or their surety, if the costs are not paid within 30 days after demand for payment.

All fees in excess of the sum required for the administration expenses of the Circuit Clerk's office are turned over to the City Treasurer.

PERMITS ISSUED IN NOVEMBER FOR $710,000 IN CONSTRUCTION

$522,000 in Work Authorized in Same Month a Year Ago; Increase for 11 Months.

Three hundred and seven building permits were issued in St. Louis in November, involving estimated expenditures of $784,627. Of the total, 173 permits were for new buildings to cost $710,655, including $480,000 for the new Southwest High School. Others were for alterations costing $73,972.

There were 32 more permits in November, 1934, but they were for estimated expenditures of only $522,153.

Permits were issued in the first 11 months of this year for new buildings and alterations costing $6,678,884, as compared with $4,648,375 for the same period last year. Increases in the amounts of estimated building costs have been shown every month this year, over the corresponding months in 1934, except April.

Nevada (Mo.) Man Ends Life.

By the Associated Press.

NEVADA, Mo., Nov. 30.—S. C. Carter, 56 years old, a former Assistant Secretary of the Farm and Home Savings and Loan Association here, ended his life today by breathing carbon monoxide fumes through a hose connected to the exhaust of his motor car. He left a note giving ill health as the reason for his act. His widow, a daughter, Mrs. F. H. Trowbridge Jr., of St. Louis, and four sons, David, Gilbert, Nick and Bob Carter survive.

Are You a Victim of FURNACE "FRET"
End It Now With The NEW HOLLAND FURNACE REGULATOR!

● Now—thanks to an amazing new invention—the Holland Furnace people offer the way to end furnace "fret" forever. With the new Holland Furnace Regulator, your furnace can really be regulated . . . scientifically. Don't confuse this with devices of the past. Old regulators merely opened drafts when the room got too cold, and closed them when it got too hot. But the new Holland Regulator is almost like magic . . . it actually anticipates temperature changes, completely banishing the extremes of cold and heat . . . abolishing over-firing . . . keeping your home at a more level, even temperature twenty-four hours a day!

The Holland Regulator can be installed on any warm-air furnace—burning coal, oil, or gas—in a short time. And the price? You will be surprised to learn that you will save the cost of the Holland Regulator many times over by stopping fuel waste through over-firing. It costs nothing to investigate the new Holland Furnace Regulator, and to discover for yourself what it will save in time, health, and money.

JAPANESE READY FOR 'SELF RULE' IN NORTH CHINA

Troop Trains Made Up fo Quick Movement if Cen tral Chinese Governmen Opposes Scheme.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, Nov. 30.—Unrest i North China over the Japanese move to set up a so-called auton omous state in the area, under dom ination of Tokio, found expressio today in the pillaging of easter villages in the Province of Shang tung by large bodies of well-armed men, said dispatches from Chefoo.

Telegraph lines were severed an bus schedules were disrupted, said the reports, which quoted authorities as expressing the opinion the movement was political.

Autonomy agitators boldly proclaimed their cause in the streets of Peiping without police interference today. Fears of a possible clash between Chinese and Japanese in Northern Honan province were reported from Kaifeng. Handbills and posters urging the people to demand "self-government" were widely circulated.

Renewed Japanese military activity at the Great Wall of China has strengthened the impression prevailing among neutral observers that a showdown is approaching in the North China crisis.

Whether the Japanese will pour troops down the railway arteries into the rich North China plain of Hopeh Province is generally believed to depend on whether the North China leaders are able to agree on a program of self-government satisfactory to the Japanese.

Trains are being held in readiness for quick movement of Japanese troops to the southern frontier of Hopeh Province, if the Central Chinese Government should move troops northward.

Gov. Shang Chen, prominent Hopeh militarist, remained away from the autonomy discussions at Peiping, persistently refusing to leave his provincial capital at Paoting, where he is surrounded by his well-drilled army.

Authorities here express the opinion there is still hope that the Northern leaders will find a formula acceptable to both the Japanese and the Nanking Government.

Gen. Sung Cheh Yuan, Chinese commander of the Peiping-Tientsin garrison, told a delegation of educators protesting against the autonomy movement, "I have no ambition to become a second Yin Ju-Keng, and will not head an autonomous government." (Yin Ju-Keng is the self-declared head of the new autonomous government in 22 of the North China counties.)

(Yin Ju-Keng is the self-declared head of the new autonomous government in 22 of the North China counties.)

Independent State Would Include Cities of Peiping and Tientsin.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 30.—A Japanese dispatch from Tientsin tonight said that the Chinese military leader there announced an independent state would be proclaimed shortly in Hopeh and Chahar provinces.

Gen. Sung-Cheh-Yuan, commander of the Peiping-Tientsin military garrison, said the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency informed Chinese national leaders in Nanking by telegraph that the autonomy program would be carried through as "soon as possible." The cities of Peiping and Tientsin would be included in such a state.

"The time is very near for new Northern developments," said a spokesman for the Japanese embassy here. There were rumors autonomy might be proclaimed Monday.

Protest Made to Powers.

The Nanking Government, in its third note to Japan within two days, protested vigorously today against what it said was Japan's seizure of the Chinese postoffice in the northern demilitarized zone.

At the same time the Foreign Office sent identical notes to all embassies and legations in China, denouncing the autonomous state set up in Eastern Hopeh by Yin Ju-Keng, Chinese administrator of the demilitarized zone. (A Tientsin dispatch said Chinese sources reported 10 trainloads of new Japanese troops had arrived at Shanhaikuan, eastern gateway of the Great Wall, from Manchoukuo.) The note asserted the people of North China did not want to separate from the Central Government.

Chinese notes yesterday accused the Japanese army of responsibility for the independence movement and protested the seizure of Fengtai railway junction, near Peiping, by Japanese troops.

ARREST OF PERSIAN MINISTER PUTS TOWN ON "HOT SPOT"

Envoy Who Was Handcuffed Demands Punishment; Maryland Mayor Awaits Word From Hull.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Ghaffar K. Djalal, Persian Minister to the United States, has made formal protest to Secretary of State Hull, in the case of his arrest on a speeding charge at Elkton, Md., last Wednesday, demanding that the policeman who handcuffed and otherwise insulted him be punished.

Hull expressed the Government's extreme regret over the incident and promised to make a thorough investigation.

Djalal told newspaper men: "I was a mere passenger, sitting in the back seat. If the officer had to arrest my car, his duty was to proceed against my driver. All I did was ask to be allowed to communicate with the State Department and I was told to 'Shut up, you damn fool.' I was then pushed back into the car and handcuffed.

Steps towards making amends will depend upon suggestions from the State Department, Mayor Henry Mitchell of Elkton said today. He added: "The code covering such matters dates back to about 1817. We are now in a hot spot. If you have read the statute, you will see that whatever happens, the foreign diplomat is right." He explained that the code provides immunity from arrest for all representatives of foreign countries.

M'NARY, WHO UPHELD BONUS VETO, EXPECTS ENACTMENT

Republican Leader Predicts Action Next Session; Veterans Assail "Crafty Campaign."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader, predicted today that at the session of Congress beginning in January a soldiers' bonus bill will be enacted despite a presidential veto.

McNary, who helped the Senate to sustain last May President Roosevelt's disapproval of the Patman plan to pay the two billion dollars immediately with new currency, told questioners:

"A bonus bill will pass this session over a presidential veto, in my opinion."

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have requested their state and district chairmen to establish contact with Senators and Representatives to combat what they termed a "crafty campaign" in opposition to the bonus.

The V. F. W. said "selfish business interests and individuals in the administration and Congress" seek to convey the idea that bonus payment means increased taxation.

"With approximately 11 billion dollars in gold and silver in reserve in the Treasury and an unexpended balance of about four billion dollars, there is no reason why the payment of this debt to the veterans should be linked with increased taxes."

Steel Freight Rates Upheld.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Interstate Commerce Commission held today that railroad freight rates on iron and steel from Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth and St. Louis to Omaha, Sioux City, Ia., Sioux Falls, S. D., and Aberdeen, S. D., were not prejudicial or too high. Commercial organizations of Omaha, Sioux City, and the two South Dakota cities, complained their jobbers were forced to pay higher rates on carload shipments to Omaha and less than carload shipments out of Omaha than jobbers shipping less than carload direct for the whole distance. The I. C. C. said the fact the complaining cities are not manufacturing points, would seem to account for the disadvantages.

TWO-DAY CONFERENCE ON BIRTH CONTROL

To Open Tomorrow; Delegates From 5 States to Be Present.

A two-day regional conference on birth control, with delegates present from Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, will open at Hotel Chase tomorrow under sponsorship of the Maternal Health Association of Missouri and the American Birth Control League.

The principal address of the meeting will be given tomorrow evening by Prof. Henry Pratt Fairchild of the department of sociology at New York University, on "Population and War." Prof. Fairchild is president of the Population Association of America and has been a lecturer at the Army War College for 10 years.

Registration for the conference will start at 9:30 a. m. and the first session will open at 10 with Mrs. Samuel B. McPheeters, president of the Maternal Health Association, presiding. Speakers at the morning session will be Dr. Paul J. Zentay, president of the Missouri Society for Mental Hygiene, on "The Mental Hygiene of Birth Control"; Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel on "Is Birth Control Immoral?" and Prof. Tyrell Williams, acting dean of the Washington University Law School, on "Inconsistencies Between Legislation and Practice of Birth Control."

At an informal luncheon, reports from out-of-town clinics will be presented. The afternoon session will be a discussion meeting on "How to Start a Birth Control Clinic," led by Mrs. Helen S. Buss, executive director of the association. There will be a reception from 4 to 6 o'clock, while a meeting restricted to physicians is being held. Dr. Eric M. Matsner, medical director of the league, will speak at the closed session.

Socio-economic problems will be taken up at the Tuesday morning session, with Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, executive secretary of the Illinois Social Hygiene League, speaking on "Birth Control as a Problem in Domestic Relations," and Prof. Edward B. Reuter of the department of sociology, University of Iowa, on "The Positive Side of Birth Control."

"Birth Rate and Unemployment" will be discussed by Prof. Samuel A. Stouffer of the department of sociology, University of Chicago, at the Tuesday luncheon. The afternoon session, on religio-moral problems, will be a discussion on family consultation service, with Dr. Arnold H. Lowe, president of the Metropolitan Church Federation and pastor of the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, as discussion leader. Dr. Hyman Meltzer, psychologist; Dr. Val Satterfield, psychiatrist; Leah Feder, sociologist; the Rev. Walter S. Swisher and Mrs. Samuel B. Grant will represent various phases of the discussion.

SCOUT MERIT BADGE SHOW OPENS THURSDAY

Tests to Be Demonstrated at Three-Day Silver Jubilee at Arena.

The Silver Jubilee Merit Badge Show, in which St. Louis Boy Scouts will demonstrate the 101 special groups of tests leading to merit badges, will open Thursday night at the Arena, continuing on Friday night and Saturday afternoon and night.

Thirty-seven other demonstrations have been arranged for the show, including exhibits by the Sea Scouts and the Cubs, the organization for boys from 9 to 12 years old. Each badge demonstration has been planned by a separate troop of scouts, and the other troops, with no special assignment, have been organized into service units.

Earle W. Beckman, scout executive of the St. Louis Council, and Charles H. Mills, activities director, who have been active in planning the show, have been invited by the Boy Scout Foundation of New York to arrange a similar production in that city. Beckman will be in New York after Jan. 1 with the national headquarters staff.

The merit badges, which Scouts may win after they have attained First Class rank, include tests on a wide variety of subjects which range from agriculture to zoology. They are designed to afford training for a vocation or development of interest in some hobby.

Most of the badges are awarded for skill in handicrafts or other physical activities.

Among the subjects and the troops which will show them are: Camping, Troop 242, St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church; horsemanship, Troop 1 of Thomas Station; masonry, Troop 35, Cabanne M. E. Church; electricity, Troop 90, Temple Shaare Emeth; firemanship, Troop 1, Richmond Heights, Bellevue School; and aviation, Troop 233, Bel-Nor School.

Robert Dyktor, Troop 1, De Mun School, Clayton, received an Eagle badge at a court of honor held by his troop Tuesday. A life badge was presented to Oliver Ebitz.

An Eagle badge was given to Scoutmaster Clyde L. Connell, Troop 33, St. Peter's Church.

George Curtiss of Troop 2, Webster Groves, First Congregational Church, and Lester Steckman, Troop 90, Temple Shaare Emeth, also received Life badges. Robert McKay received a Star badge at a meeting of his troop, 98, St. Roch's School.

The Mothers' Auxiliary of Troop 168, St. Pius Catholic Church, will meet at 1:30 p. m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Arnold Schreiber, 3937A Hartford street, to plan a father and son dinner to be given Dec. 11.

TIENTSIN KIDNAPING GANGS BEING BROKEN UP BY POLICE

Detectives From Foreign Concessions Assist Native Officers; 15 Criminals Executed.

TIENTSIN, China, Nov. 30.—Four kidnaping gangs, one of which is reported to number more than 100 men, have been rounded up by Chinese police, assisted by detectives from the foreign concessions. Fifteen kidnapers, one a woman, have been executed.

It is only with the assistance of the foreign police that the gangs are being broken up, as it is a common habit of criminals to hide in foreign concessions, where the native police cannot touch them.

"Scarface" Chang, a coolie who became Tientsin's No. 1 kidnaper, was betrayed to the police recently by a man he had approached in an opium den with a proposition for abducting a wealthy Chinese and holding him for ransom.

A go-between in the kidnaping racket run by the largest gang was responsible for the downfall of the gang, which had kidnaped 67 persons from a single town near here. The go-between was seized by detectives who saw him spending money lavishly and meeting persons secretly at an inn. He confessed and implicated the entire gang. The survivors of this gang still at large are reported to be holding all but 10 of their captives for ransom.

Army-Navy Council Ball Feb. 22.

The annual Army-Navy Council ball will be held next Feb. 22, in honor of George Washington's birthday, the Military Ball Committee for 1936 announced yesterday. Plans were formed and committees appointed from among the various members of the regular Army and Navy and the Reserves, for arranging details of the dinner dance, which more than 1000 persons are expected to attend. The committee met Friday night.

PLUTO WATER
For Years Has Been Used or Recommended by Thousands of Doctors for CONSTIPATION
DO AS DOCTORS DO
for Quicker, Safer Relief

When a doctor is constipated, what does he take for relief, that ought to prove beyond question how safe, how gentle, how effective a laxative is.

Now here's an amazing fact! For many years, thousands of doctors have used or recommended Pluto Water. For they know, from personal experience, that Pluto is the sure way to eliminate dangerous accumulated poisons. They know it is an efficient, sure medicine. They know its action is gentle and quick.

What Doctors Say

For instance, Dr. A. C. T. of Arkansas says: "There is no substitute for Pluto." Dr. E. J. G. of Iowa advises: "I prescribe Pluto Water freely with excellent results." And Dr. J. A. R. of Texas, says: "I use Pluto Water personally to cleanse my system."

Your own doctor, too, will tell you how good it is. And—will warn you against habit-forming drugs of all kinds. That's why you also can always depend on this famous laxative.

So, the next time you are constipated, do as doctors do. Follow the gentle "water way" to relief. Take it in this easy efficient dose—1-5 Pluto with 4-5 glass hot water. In one hour or less you'll get relief. And what a remarkable difference it makes!

Remember, too, Pluto Water is simply a saline laxative mineral water bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. All drug stores have it. Two sizes—25c and 50c. Two hundred million bottles of Pluto have already been used—millions more each year. One of the most economical, most effective laxatives you can buy! Get some today.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY AT INDEX PEAK SINCE 1933

Tabulation of Associated Press Reveals Gain — Stock Market Dominated Largely by Political Developments During Week

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Industrial activity, as measured by the Associated Press Index, advanced today to the highest point since July, 1933, reflecting substantial gains in major sections of the nation's economic life.

The composite index, which is based on the latest weekly statistics available during the past seven days, reached 84.9 per cent of the 1929-30 average compared with 83.4 per cent last week.

Automobile production reached upward to the best levels since November, 1929, with the exception of a single week in November of 1930, and steel mill activity in the index attained the best levels since July of 1934.

Cotton manufacturing's index went to the highest point since the last week in December of last year, and freight carloadings to the best since December, 1931.

Electric power production and residential building, however, declined slightly.

What Index Shows.

The Index, which is adjusted for seasonal variation with 1929-30 equal to 100, follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	84.9*	83.4	62.8
Auto'ble production	97.2*	94.1	33.8
Steel mill activity	74.3*	72.1	37.0
Cot'n mfg. activity	100.7*	98.0	92.7
Elect. power prod.	104.9	105.5	95.1
Residential building	40.6	41.4	18.8
Total carloadings	69.5*	66.1	61.5

*Equal new 1935 high.

This week's was a "Laval" stock market. Twice the financial community looked beyond the horizon of improving domestic business to focus on the French Premier in action. Twice the market faltered.

Sentiment Given Jolt.

Fears that Premier Laval might not surmount the initial difficulties of holding his government to defense of the franc gave financial sentiment its first jolt.

The second followed his assurance that France would back Great Britain should Italy reply to sanctions with warlike acts.

Laval's successful hurdling of the parliamentary obstacles in aiding the franc reassured the market. But his pledge of support to Great Britain revived fears of war, and left traders uneasy.

Whether the market would continue a one-man affair—this time with President Roosevelt in the principal role—was debated in the light of his Atlanta speech.

Observers insisted that two excerpts from the speech might have appreciable effect on the trend of shares during weeks ahead. These were: ". . . We can look forward with assurance to a decreasing deficit," and ". . . We have passed the peak of appropriations."

In the background of market psychology was another important factor: The rush of major utility holding companies to announce they would not register with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the utility act of 1935.

When it issued an order temporarily restraining collection of A. A. A. taxes from eight Louisiana rice millers, the U. S. Supreme Court, Wall Street men said, gave the amended Agricultural Adjustment Act a set-back. Nevertheless, few would hazard a guess on what the longer term market implications would be.

Auto Output High.

That selling of stocks was not heavier was attributable, analysts said, to the continued firmness of the business structure.

With the exception of one week in November, 1930, automobile output rose to the best level since November, 1929. Steel mill activity was up to around the peak of July of last year.

Although electric power production continued its rise into record high ground, the upturn over the preceding week was less than seasonal. Retail trade improved.

Liquidation of equities cast its shadow across the bond market, but selling was aimed principally at foreign issues as clouds of monetary and diplomatic troubles swung low.

Quietest Saturday in Two Months.

Rail stocks reasserted their leadership at week-end session, pushing quietly ahead fractions to around a point in an otherwise mixed and narrow market.

A few specialties, the aviation issues and coppers were able to stir a little enthusiasm in a carryover from Friday's buying in these groups, but the market, as a whole, appeared to indicate a rather cautious attitude on the part of traders.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished ahead .1 of a point at 64.5, with the improvement due entirely to the 15 rail issues, which advanced .3 of a point at 29.1. The 30 industrials in the average dipped .1 of a point, while the utility divisions was unchanged.

Trading was at a slower pace than even the week-end influence would appear to account for, and seemed to indicate that many were heeding the suggestions made by a number of brokerage experts that the sidelines might be the most comfortable place to be for the moment. Turnover amounted to 670,170 shares, the quietest short session in two months.

In the bond market, rails also were to the fore, especially low-priced classifications, while other divisions were about steady. United States Government obligations again edged down a bit, but were extremely inactive as traders awaited the announcement of the forthcoming Treasury financing, expected Monday.

Commodities had more interest to offer than securities, staging a generally reactionary move which embraced most of the leading items. Wheat lost ⅞c to 1¼ cents a bushel in the Chicago grain pits and corn was off ½ to 1¼ cents. Cotton showed recessions of 30 to 45 cents a bale.

Sideline Favored.

The Anglo-Italian tension appeared to be at the base of most of the cautionary advices of Wall street quarters, but in the absence of important new developments during trading hours it seemed to play little part in the day's price movement, except by restraining some traders from making new commitments.

The French politico-economic crisis appeared to have eased at least temporarily as the discount narrowed on forward francs and the rate for spot delivery held steady at a point where the profit margin in gold shipments from Paris was of the thinnest.

Rails were again in demand on the strength of the accumulating evidence that October was a more profitable month for the carriers than many had expected. Optimism was buoyed by the fact that the modest downtrend in freight loading since October has been considerably less than the normal seasonal expectation.

Closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: United Aircraft Corporation, 22⅞, up ⅞; Consolidated Oil, 10¼, unchanged; Anaconda, 25½, up ⅛; Pathe Film, 7, up ½; Douglas Aircraft, 34¾, up ⅝; Paramount Pictures, 8¾, up ½; Radio, 11, down ⅛; General Motors, 54⅝, up ⅛; Curtis Wright, 3⅞, up ¼; Bethlehem Steel, 48½, unchanged; Chrysler, 82⅞, down ⅛; Studebaker, 9⅝, down ⅛; Continental Motors, 2⅝, unchanged; Curtiss-Wright A, 9¾, up ¼; Allis Chalmers rights, 1¼, up ⅛.

Steel Market and Prices.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Dow, Jones & Co. says today there is not likely to be any move on the part of smaller steel makers to increase the price of steel in view of the action of big interests in definitely deciding against a boost at this time.

The agency says there is "keen disappointment" in some steel circles over the decision of the large producers, taken, it was said, after two important industrial groups of buyers had argued strongly against an increase.

Two factors were cited by the agency as having a direct influence upon the large manufacturers. One was the position said to have been taken by automobile manufacturers that a price rise might slow down buying of new motor cars because it would be necessary to make a corresponding increase in the price of new models.

The other element centered around railroads, many of which are now considering the purchase of rails, and whose spokesman, the agency said, intimated strongly that increased steel costs would force them to revise their plans at least to the point of reducing tonnage to be bought.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The price of U. S. type 12, grade B4F, flue-cured tobacco averaged 16.8 cents a pound this week, against 16.6 cents in the previous week, H. A. Stich, tobacco statistician, reports.

The New York Curb Exchange announces that Metropolitan Edison Co. first mortgage gold bonds, series F, 5 per cent, due May 1, 1962, have been called for redemption on May 1, 1936, at 105 and accrued interest. There are approximately $5,479,000 of the issue outstanding.

Chicago Great Western Railway Co. has ordered 7100 tons of rails and track accessories from Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co., a U. S. Steel Corporation subsidiary, and Inland Steel Co., according to "Railway Age." The Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific has ordered 10,000 tons of rails from Tennessee Coal & Iron Railroad Co., also a subsidiary of U. S. Steel. Northern Pacific, says the publication, is expected to enter the market for 60,000 tons of rails.

Mengel Co., a producer of wood and boxboard containers, announced today it has purchased the hardwood timber holdings of Pascagoula Hardwood Co. of Laurel, Miss. The purchase involves approximately 100,000,000 feet of hardwood standing timber and includes use of a sawmill and veneer mill, a railroad and logging equipment.

There was a further decline in the number of Pennsylvania Railroad Co. stockholders during October, the total on Nov. 1 being 229,287, against 230,086 on Oct. 1. A year ago there were 233,473 holders of record.

Wheeling Steel Corporation will redeem on Jan. 1 its outstanding first and refunding mortgage sinking fund 5½ per cent bonds, series A, due July 1, 1948, at 103. Approximately $9,000,000 of the bonds were in the hands of the public, according to the latest report.

Hercules Powder Co. stockholders will vote Dec. 16 on a proposal to amend the company's charter permitting reduction in the preferred-stock dividend rate to 6 per cent from 7 per cent, and making the stock non-callable before Nov. 15, 1941. The call price remains at $120 a share.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The record of dividend declarations for the week shows 65 favorable changes, compared with 64 the week before, the Standard Statistics Co. reports. There were four announcements on the unfavorable side, against one in the previous week.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $731,404,300 (unchanged); total net demand deposits (average), $143,332,000 (increase); time deposits (average), $6,841,000 (decrease); clearings week ending today *$3,323,435,283; clearings week ending Nov. 23 *$3,309,452,468.

EUROPEAN NEWS AFFECTS GRAIN LIST BEARISHLY

No Deliveries of Wheat Monday on Chicago, December Contracts, Officially Stated — Only 45,000 Corn.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—With European political developments less warlike and with end-of-the-month liquidation in progress, grain values today underwent an all-round tumble.

Wheat suffered a maximum fall of 1⅜c a bushel. Overseas demand for wheat was reported slack, and there were predictions of increased selling pressure soon from Argentina, where throughout the northern part of the country the wheat harvest is now general.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅞ @ 1¼ below yesterday's finish, Dec. 97¾ @ ⅞; corn, ½ @ 1¼ down, Dec. 57½ @ ¾; oats, ⅞ to 1c off, and provisions showing 5 to 12c decline.

Ushering in the downward movement of wheat prices here was a surprise pronounced setback of the Liverpool market. Cables said Liverpool action was under the influence of cheaper offerings from Australia and an improved political outlook. Associated more or less with further weakness that soon became apparent in the Chicago wheat market were Paris suggestions of a conference between British and French Premiers to discuss possibility of a peace settlement before an oil embargo is applied against Italy.

Considerable attention was given to advices that recent rains were giving encouragement to wheat planting on a large scale in Western Kansas. Many farmers were reported as working the last few days in that region since assurance became general there was ample moisture to start a crop. On the other hand, Buenos Aires reports emphasized that throughout Argentina temperatures today exceeded 100, and that danger existed wheat yields would be jeopardized by shriveling and loss of weight.

After the close of trading, official announcement was made that there would be no deliveries of wheat Monday on Chicago December contracts, and but 45,000 bushels of corn.

Corn, rye and oats prices today declined with wheat.

Provisions lacked support owing chiefly to grain weakness.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 29,559,000 bushels, corn 7,494,000. Open interest in wheat was 125,631,000 bushels, and in corn 32,262,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 30.—Local wheat futures were influenced by the same factors that dominated the trend at Chicago. Both wheat and corn were lower.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅞ @ 1d lower after opening ⅛d off.

The close was 1½ @ 1⅞c net lower.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅜ @ ⅝c lower. Early it was off cent.

Local wheat receipts, which were 42,000 bu, compared with 15,000 a week ago and 9000 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 10 through. Corn receipts, which were 48,000 bu, compared with 548,500 a week ago and 24,000 a year ago, included 29 cars local and 3 through. Oats receipts, which were 6000 bu, compared with 2000 a week ago, included 1 car local and 2 through. Hay receipts were 1 car local and 1 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1½ @ 2c lower. Offerings were light and the demand was quiet. There was lack of selection. Hard wheat was nominally 1c lower. There were no offerings. Inquiry was light. Corn was 1 @ 2½c lower. Buyers held off until late in the session, at which time a clearance was effected. Mills, elevators and industries bought the yellow and shippers the white. About 40 per cent of the offerings was of the white variety. Oats were 1c lower. Supply was light. Demand was slow and only 1 car sold. This car (No. 3 white) was taken by a feeder.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

PARIS, Nov. 30.—A better tone prevailed on the Bourse after the chamber's support of Premier Laval was interpreted as renewed evidence of anti-devaluation sentiment. The closing was irregular.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—After a cheerful opening some selling depressed prices on the Boerse today, but there was a partial recovery at the close.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Closed on Saturday.

Reduced Rates Continuance Denied.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Illinois Central Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to increase from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 an issue of equipment trust certificates to be sold to the Public Works Administration. Funds derived from the issuance will be used for the acquisition, maintenance and improvement of equipment. The commission denied the road's application for authority to maintain reduced rates on grain in carloads between ports in the system's territory. It held that "the relief sought has not been justified" and that reduced rates would be attended by losses in revenue to the carrier.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The week-end lull in French political developments served as a steadying influence in world exchange dealings today.

While the rate for spot francs in New York was unchanged at 6.58⅞ cents, the franc for three months forward delivery improved a little further at .22 of a cent discount. Earlier in Paris, the dollar edged ahead at the equivalent of .587 cents to the franc.

The pound sterling was ½ cent higher in New York at $4.93⅜, after the dollar had eased slightly in London at 4.93 1-16 to the pound.

Swiss francs stepped up .01 of a cent in New York at 32.33 cents, while guilders were level at 67.69 cents.

Based on the closing rate for the French franc in the American market the dollar was valued at a premium of 68-100 of 1 per cent, unchanged from Friday and compared with 66-100 a month ago.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

PARIS, Nov. 30.—A better tone prevailed on the Bourse after the chamber's support of Premier Laval was interpreted as renewed evidence of anti-devaluation sentiment. The closing was irregular.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—After a cheerful opening some selling depressed prices on the Boerse today, but there was a partial recovery at the close.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Closed on Saturday.

Reduced Rates Continuance Denied.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Illinois Central Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to increase from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 an issue of equipment trust certificates to be sold to the Public Works Administration. Funds derived from the issuance will be used for the acquisition, maintenance and improvement of equipment. The commission denied the road's application for authority to maintain reduced rates on grain in carloads between ports in the system's territory. It held that "the relief sought has not been justified" and that reduced rates would be attended by losses in revenue to the carrier.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Coffee was quiet today, with prices losing a few points under light week-end liquidation. Santos opened 1 to 2 lower and closed unchanged to 3 lower. Sales, 4000. No. 7 opened 1 lower to 1 higher and closed 1 to 2 lower. Sales, 1000. NOVEMBER BOND SALES HEAVIEST SINCE MARCH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The bond market showed no disposition to abandon the narrow and indefinite trend of recent sessions today.

An unusually small number of issues were traded in, and with the exception of a few cases of strength in scatterd sections, notably among rails, fluctuations were of the fractional variety.

U. S. Government Bonds ended 2-32ds higher to 4-32ds lower. Only 11 of the 39 listed issues appeared on the tape and the turnover of $170,000, par value, indicated interest was at low ebb. Other than new guesses in various quartes as to what the Treasury would announce over the week-end on the Dec. 15 financing program, there was no news.

A lessening in the tension between England and Italy, as reported by European cables, brought about a better sentiment in the foreign division. Italian issues were ¾ to 2¼ higher, the first time in several days they found a place in the plus column, and a generally steady tone ruled other European loans. South and Central American issues did nothing either way.

In the domestic corporation groups, firm spots included Utility Power & Light 5½s, up 4¾ at 63½c; Paramount 6s, up 3¾ at 88½; Kansas City Southern 3s, up ¾ at 69¾; International Great Northern first 6s, up ⅞ at 41⅛, and Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, up ¾ at 59.

Losers included Postal Telegraph 5s, off ¾ at 34¾; Republic Steel 4½s, off ⅜ at 110⅝; Chile Copper 5s, off ½ at 100¾; U. S. Rubber 5s, off ⅛ at 100¾ and Remington-Rand 5½s, off ⅛ at 104⅞.

Transfers on the listed market during the month at $302,832,000, par value, were the largest since March, 1935, when sales aggregated $310,655,000. During October sales approximated $266,537,000.

Transfers today amounted to $6,725,000, compared with $10,055,000 last Saturday. The Associated Press averages ranged from .3 of a pint higher to .1 of a point lower.

CURB MARKET MOVES IN A NARROW GROVE AT WEEK-END

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The curb market settled into a narrow groove today, with some fractional advances shown among the industrial and utility list. Trading volume dwindled to 158,000 shares for the short session, compared wtih 278,000 the preceding Saturday.

A steady to slightly higher price trend was maintained by American Gas & Electric at 37¾, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams at 36½, Sunshine Mining at 21, Technicolor at 19⅜, United Light preferred at 22¼ and Electric Bond & Share at 14¼.

U. S. Radiator preferred lost 2 points on a small turnover, while Axton Fisher, Wayne Pump and a few others finished a trifle lower.

BAR GOLD, SILVER AND MONEY

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported an increase of $2,961,000 to $127,013,000 in loans and discounts for the week, in the statement issued as of the close of business Friday. There were only five banking days during the week. Demand deposits increased $4,314,000 to $273,674,000; bank deposits decreased $1,613,000 to $146,812,000; time deposits increased $159,000 to $98,197,000; total deposits increased $2,860,000 to $518,683,000; bond and stock accounts decreased $4,402,000 to $239,168,000; total resources increased $2,808,000 to $571,040,000; total lawful reserves increased $145,000 to $97,195,000.

Total clearings for the week (five days) amounted to $69,800,000, compared with $95,600,000 last week. Debits to individual accounts for the week (five days—up to Friday) totaled $110,800,000, compared with $132,400,000 last week.

Local money rates were as follows: Prime commercial paper, ¾@1 per cent; customers' loans, 1½@5½ per cent; collateral loans, 2½@6 per cent; loans secured by warehouse receipts, 2@5½ per cent.

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for Nov 30, 1935, $12,700,000; corresponding day last year, $8,900,000; this year, $3,580,400,000; corresponding period last year, $3,159,100,000. HELD FOR GIVING AWAY HIS COMPANY'S CHEESE

Salesman Says He Made Gifts to Keep Customers Happy.

Victor L. Meyer, a cheese salesman, who told police, they reported, that he gave his employer's merchandise away to keep his customers in a buying mood, was arrested yesterday and furnished $2500 bond pending a grand jury inquiry into his sales promotion plan.

Meyer, who is 37 years old and gave his address as 8538 Park lane, was questioned last month after Segurd Carlstrom, head of the Carlstrom Cheese Co., 4348 Clayton avenue, complained that $2000 worth of cheese was missing from the company's warehouse.

In a detailed statement to police, Meyer explained that he gave a cheese bonus to customers making substantial purchases. He obtained the merchandise, the statement related, by changing the figures on his warehouse withdrawal slips and kept his customers in a good humor through his generosity. His estimate was that he had given away about $1100 worth of cheese.

Four Killed in Auto Crash.

By the Associated Press.

BEDFORD, Pa., Nov. 30.—Four persons were killed tonight in a head-on collision of two automobiles on the Lincoln Highway, three of them in a burning car bearing Michigan license plates. William S. Mock, an automobile mechanic of Bedford, was pulled from his machine before the flames reached him, but he died later. A man, a woman and a child were in the west-bound Michigan car.

DR. EDWARD STARR JUDD DIES; MAYO CLINIC SURGERY CHIEF

Succumbs to Pneumonia at Chicago; Honored by Many Medical Organizations.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Dr. Edward Starr Judd, chief of surgery at the Meyo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., died of pneumonia in the Presbyterian Hospital here today. He was 57 years old.

He was en route to a meeting of the American Clinical Surgery Society in Philadelphia when stricken last Monday. Two of his five children, Mrs. Eleanor Kirklin, Rochester, and Edward Judd Jr., were with him when he died.

Known as the "surgeon's surgeon" because of colleague's confidence in him, Dr. Judd headed many medical organizations in his career. He was president of the American Medical Association in 1930. He was an honorary member of the Urologic Society of Brazil, a correspondent of the Royal Academy of Medicine at Rome, and held memberships in the American College of Surgeons, the Minnesota Pathological Society and district surgical associations.

Born at Rochester, Dr. Judd was graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1902, shortly afterward becoming first assistant to Dr. Charles B. Mayo at the Clinic.

In 1908 he married Helen Berkman, relative of the Mayos. Mrs. Judd, with three other children, survive. They are Helen, Mary and David. Dr. Judd was the second Mayo staff physician to die of pneumonia in three days. Dr. George E. Brown, authority on blood vessel diseases, died Thursday at Rochester.

Broadcasts by EAQ, Madrid, which may be tuned on 9.87 meg., are reported strongly received in many parts of the St. Louis region.

The old argument as to whether mental telepathy is fact or fancy was reviewed on 2RO Wednesday. Transmission of unspoken thoughts between human beings without ordinary communication was discussed as an exchange of miniature radio waves. Prof. Caligari of the Rome University, phrenologist, psychiatrist and creator of a new technique for experimenting on the human brain. He spoke on experimenting on radiations from human beings.

The Italian Broadcasting Co., in announcing the address as a feature of the American Hour, said: "Prof. Caligari maintains that there is the possibility of the exchange of sensations and possibly of ideas between two people placed quite a distance apart, and that these are due to emanations which are no more nor less than miniature radio waves. The human body according to Prof. Caligari, is charged with electricity and this electricity should be able to charge two special plates functioning on the principle of the coherer, well known to radio experimenters, and thus set up a responding vibration in the person at the 'receiving' end."

Where to Find Network Programs Not on Stations Here

ALL programs of each national network are carried by the key stations in New York—WEAF (660 kc.) for the WEAF net; WJZ (760 kc.) for the WJZ net and WABC (660 kc.) for the CBS chain. In addition, virtually all the commercial network programs are carried by member stations in various cities, as is the case with three of the St. Louis stations, and these members carry some of the non-advertising programs. Network programs not broadcast by St. Louis stations can be tuned on the key stations and often on other stations in each network.

KSD is in the WEAF network, KWK in the WJZ net and KMOX in the CBS chain.

WEAF network stations include KSD (550 kc.), WEAF (660), WMAQ (670), WDAF (610), WOW (590), WHO (1000).

WJZ net stations include KWK (1350), WJZ (760), WENR (870), KDKA (980), WCKY (1490).

In addition to KMOX and WABC (660), CBS net stations include WBBM (770), WHAS (820), WOWO (1160), WCAU (1170), WJR (750), WCCO (810), KMBC (950).

WEAF or WJZ net programs are carried at times by WLW (700), WSM (650), KOA (830), WSB (740), WBAP (800).

WLW also is a member of the Mutual network, which includes WGN (720), WOR (710).

Radio Concerts for Week

"Tales of Hoffman" in Radio City Program — Request Concert by N. Y. Philharmonic — Spalding and Jeritza Symphony Soloists Tonight—Cleveland Orchestra Series Later This Month.

LOUISE BAVE, soprano of the Milan Opera Company, will make her first appearance in a Sunday Radio City concert since she sang in "La Traviata" at 11:30 this morning on KWK and the WJZ net when she will sing the role of "Olympia" in a performance of Offenbach's opera, "Tales of Hoffman." Jan Peerce, Viola Philo and Edwina Eustis will have the other leading roles, with Llopis De Olivares as "Dr. Miracle."

Today's New York Philharmonic Orchestra concert, at 2 p. m. on KMOX, will be given over to music by composers preferred in the recent poll of listeners. It will open with Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, and continue with Handel's "Water Music" and Ravel's "Aldorado del Grazioso," and conclude with Brahms' Second Symphony. Next Sunday's concert will be devoted to music by Sibelius, the Finnish composer, who received the most votes in the poll.

Albert Spalding, the violinist, will play the second and third movements of Mendelssohn's Concerto in E-minor, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Hymn to the Sun", Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen" with Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra at 8 o'clock tonight on KMOX. The orchestra will play the overture to "The Secret of Suzanne", Sibelius' "Valse Triste", Berlioz' "Rakoczy March", Powell's "Natchez Under the Hill" and music by Mendelssohn and other composers.

Maria Jeritza has programmed the "Dich teure Halle" aria from "Tannhauser", the "Voi lo Sapete" air from "Cavaleria Rusticana", "The Last Rose of Summer" and an arrangement of Johann Strauss' "Liebeswalzer" for the symphony concert at 9 o'clock tonight on WMAQ (670), WSM (650) and WHO (1000 kc.). Erno Rapee will lead the orchestra in the Prelude to "Lohengrin", the Polka and Fugue from Weinberger's "Schwanda", Godard's "Adagio Pathetique", Tschaikowsky's "Kabarina" and the overture to "William Tell."

Golschmann to Lead Rochester Orchestra.

VLADIMIR GOLSCHMANN, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will be the guest conductor of a concert by the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra that will be broadcast over the WJZ network at 2:15 Thursday afternoon. The program will include Gluck's "Iphigenia" overture and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony. (Probably on KWK).

Sibelius' "The Swan of Tuoneola," "Pohjola's Daughter" and the "Tapiola" symphonic poem will be among music played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at 7:15 Saturday night on KWK and the WJZ net. His "Die Libende" suite in three movements — "The Lover," "The Lovers' Path" and "Good Evening and Farewell"—will be played in Frank Black's symphony concert at 7:15 p. m. Thursday on the WJZ net.

Ten concerts by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, Artur Rodzinsky conducting, are scheduled on the WEAF network from 1 to 2 p. m. Tuesdays, starting Dec. 17. The orchestra will play a special radio concert at 9:30 Christmas Eve.

Richard Crooks will be the soloist in KSD's concert at 7:30 tomorrow night singing the "La Donna Mobile" aria from "Riggoletto" and several songs.

Grace Moore's concert is scheduled as usual at 8:30 tomorrow night on KSD.

Another Boston Civic Orchestra concert is set for 4 p. m. Tuesday on KSD, music programmed including the overture to "Oberon," a movement of Mendelssohn's Concerto in E-minor with Harry Ellis Dickson as the violinist, and Chabrier's "Rhapsody Espana."

Josephine Antoine, the soprano of the Opera Guild broadcasts, will be the soloist in the concert at 7:30 Thursday night on KMOX, singing the "Caro Nome" aria, "Italian Street Song" and Herbert's "When You're Away."

The Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas, Lily Pons and Nino Martini recitals and the symphony concerts of the week are scheduled as usual, except that presumably there will be a Walter Damrosch concert on KSD at 10 a. m. Friday.

Abram Chasins is playing at 10 a. m. Saturdays on the WEAF chain, featuring masterpieces of piano music.

Lauritz Melchior, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the soloist with Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra next Sunday night, and Lotte Lehman with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in the afternoon, when the special Sibelius concert will be broadcast.

Music of Lithuania will be broadcast from Kaunas, capital of the country, at 11:45 a. m. next Sunday on the CBS chain.

FCC Member Proposes State Radio Commissions.

A PROPOSAL for State broadcasting commissions has been advanced by George Henry Payne of the Federal Communications Commission. Payne, who frequently has urged allocation of desirable broadcast time to cultural and educational programs, also discussed steps the FCC might take to improve radio presentations.

Before undertaking to lay down any program standards, he said in an interview, the Commission would have to survey radio programs. Although the Federal body now has "considerable power" to bring about improvement, he added, a more thorough study might reveal that "we will have to ask for some legislation."

Discussing how improvements might be effected, he made two suggestions:

That radio stations provide a definite amount of desirable time daily for educational and cultural programs—perhaps an hour in daytime and an hour at night.

That programs broadcast at these periods be handled entirely under supervision of State broadcasting commissions appointed by Governors, thus relieving stations of responsibility and making possible presentations adapted to the cultural and educational needs of each State.

Margaret Santry's new program of interviews of socialites at a New York hotel is set for 3:45 p. m. tomorrow on the CBS net. Jerry Cooper, singer, and Harold Stern's orchestra will assist.

CONCERT SOLOIST

JOSEPHINE ANTOINE.

SOPRANO, who will be the soloist in the concert Thursday night on the CBS net and KMOX. She will sing the "Caro Nome" aria with which she won in the 1929 National Radio Audition. She will sing the same air when the Metropolitan Opera House produces the projected all-American performance of "Rigoletto," with Lawrence Tibbett, Miss Antoine and Charles Kullman in the leading roles.

Auto Factories May Break 10-Year Production Record

More Than 600,000 Cars and Trucks Already Turned Out for Final Quarter.

the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Nov. 30. — The motorcar industry, away to a flying start on next year's vehicles, may produce more cars in the final quarter of 1935 than in any like period in the last decade.

In 1928, 928,270 cars and trucks were assembled. That is the 10-year record. Already the plants have assembled more than 600,000 units in the final quarter of 1935. Cram's Reports, Inc., estimated last week's production at 94,723 cars and trucks, compared with 93,177 in the previous week and 13,000 a year ago.

Manufacturers reported orders sufficient to keep assembly lines moving at high speed until well beyond January, with material shortages as the only deterrent to increased productivity in some plants.

Increased Factory Activity.

The largest final quarter volume the industry has assembled since mass production began was 1,165,440 cars and trucks in 1925. In 1929, the final quarter output was 747,059 units.

The increased plant activity at this time derives its impetus wholly from the advancement of the new model introduction date to November.

There is in some quarters a conviction that the last quarter of the year no longer need be a lean period for motor car sales.

Demand still exceeds supply. The accumulation of retail orders has been increasing despite a steady stepping up of factory output schedules. These schedules have been retarded only by inability of some volume producers to obtain adequate supplies of materials.

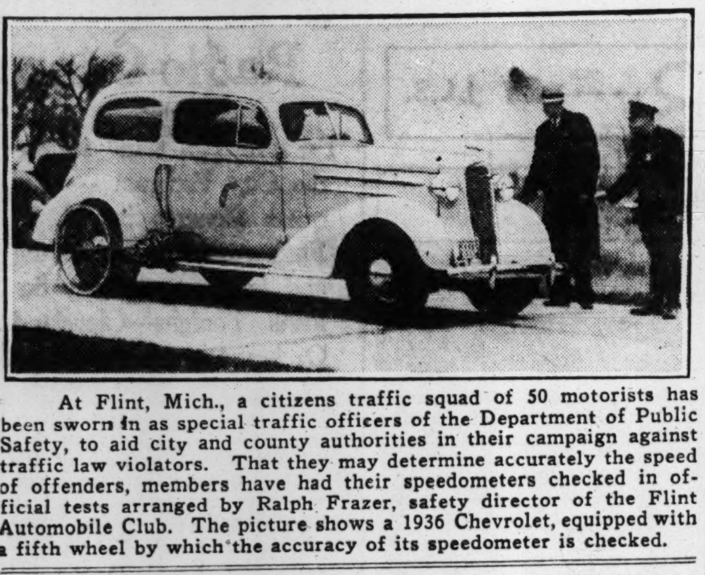
The production divisions, in most instances, have placed commitments for raw materials farther in advance than heretofore has been the custom, but funds that the stocking of dealers has been inadequate to meet a retail requirement that exceeds expectations at this time of the year.

Demand for Deliveries.

The assembly activity got under way at a conservative level. The demand for immediate deliveries, however, has necessitated an increase in these production programs almost without exception throughout the industry.

Aside from the natural stimulus in consumer demand immediately traceable to new model appearance, the industry is counting upon a heavy Christmas distribution to aid in carrying factory activity to higher levels than ordinarily would be likely. Immediate delivery for Christmas presentation will be demanded in many instances, say sales executives, but in others, purchase orders will be presented for delivery at future dates.

Testing Speedometer Accuracy



At Flint, Mich., a citizens traffic squad of 50 motorists has been sworn in as special traffic officers of the Department of Public Safety, to aid city and county authorities in their campaign against traffic law violators. That they may determine accurately the speed of offenders, members have had their speedometers checked in official tests arranged by Ralph Frazer, safety director of the Flint Automobile Club. The picture shows a 1936 Chevrolet, equipped with a fifth wheel by which the accuracy of its speedometer is checked.

"Gas Saving" Possible With New Transmission on Both De Soto Cars

The De Soto Motor Corporation is making a new "gas saver" transmission feature available in the low-price field. The "gas saver" transmission is what the name implies—a transmission that saves gasoline. It is offered now on both the new Airstream and Airflow models.

The new transmission reduces the number of engine revolutions without cutting down the car speed. This reduction naturally means a corresponding decrease in gasoline and oil consumption.

Furthermore, the reduction in engine revolutions increases the life of the engine and provides smoother, quieter operation at high speeds.

The "gas saver" transmission comes into operation automatically when the car reaches a predetermined speed, usually between 35 and 40 miles an hour. It disengages automatically as the car speed falls below the predetermined figure.

Tests by engineers show that the new transmission cuts down engine speedy 30 per cent for a given car speed. This means that at 65 miles per hour, an engine is running at a speed corresponding to 45 miles per hour in conventional direct drive. Moreover, the new transmission automatically limits the maximum possible engine speed. A De Soto which in conventional drive has a top speed of more than 80 miles per hour at 4000 engine revolutions per minute will, with the new transmission, increase top speed and reduce engine speed to about 3000 revolutions per minute.

Merry-Krauss Co., Distributer for Reo, to Have New Quarters

Firm to Handle Cars, Speedwagons and Trucks in Washington Av. Building.

The Merry-Krauss Motor Co., recently appointed distributer of Reo motor cars, after being a Reo dealer for the past nine months at 3920 Lindell boulevard, is moving to new quarters at 3306-10 Washington avenue, where it has a modern fireproof building with more than 18,000 square feet of floor space for complete sales and service, and a spacious tiled showroom where 15 passenger cars and trucks can be displayed.

A large service department in the rear of the salesroom is easily reached by two entrances from Washington avenue, and is so designed as to insure an abundance of day light.

A large depot of parts for Reo passenger cars, speedwagons and trucks to take care of the entire Mississippi Valley, is planned for St. Louis by the Reo Motor Car Co.

These facilities will enable Reo passenger car and truck owners to get prompt and immediate service at all times.

The firm's new building is being redecorated and will be ready for occupancy today.

H. C. Merry and George A. Krauss, officers of the firm, are experienced automobile men, having operated as distributers of other lines of cars in the past 20 years. Their service and sales personnel have long been connected with the sale and service of Reo motor cars.

A complete line of 1936 Reo passenger cars and trucks will be on display, in different colors and the most modern equipment.

Upson, Rickenbaugh Promoted by Cadillac

Announcement is made by Don E. Ahrens, general sales manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co. of the appointment of E. F. Upson as assistant general sales manager succeeding H. W. Peters, resigned.

Upson for the past five years has been manager of the Cadillac Pacific Region with headquarters in San Francisco. Prior to taking this assignment on the Pacific Coast, he was district manager of the New England territory.

Upson is succeeded as manager of the Cadillac Pacific Region by K. E. Gray, at present head of the Business Management Department at Cadillac.

Ahrens also announced the appointment of R. L. Rickenbaugh as sales promotion manager to succeed W. C. Herring, who has taken over one of the large Cadillac distributerships.

SALES MANAGER FOR ARCHER-MANN

R. E. MURRAY,

Who has been appointed by E. A. Archer, president of the Archer-Mann Motor Co., distributer of Graham cars, as salesmanager for the firm. Murray has been with the Archer-Mann Co. for 13 years, having spent five years in its service department and the last eight years in retail selling. Previously, Murray was in business for himself. He has had a total of 20 years experience in the automobile business.

Urges Intensive Study Of Police Traffic Drive Results in New York

Study by police and motoring authorities of the automobile safety campaign waged for the past year by Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine, in New York, is urged by John D. Collins, sales manager of the Tide Water Oil Co.

"A safety campaign that saves one life is worth while," said Collins, "but a campaign that saves hundreds of lives is something that should command the immediate attention of everybody.

"Commissioner Valentine has quietly but efficiently gone about the business of reducing automobile accidents in New York, and he has done a splendid job of it. By posters, newspaper interviews, radio programs, special schooling of policemen, providing of safe playgrounds, moving trucks mounting wrecked cars with grewsome wax figures of accident victims, and in other ways, he has this year reduced automobile accidents in the metropolitan district 18 per cent below last year while the average for the rest of the country, including New York State, has gone up 15½ per cent.

"Last year's record of auto deaths and injuries in this country was the highest in history, and constitutes a national disgrace. This year the totals will be even higher. The automobile industry, motoring authorities everywhere, police and public spirited bodies of various kinds are studying the problem and doing what they can. But the situation—except in New York City—is growing worse. Commissioner Valentine has worked out a recipe for safety which seems to be working. If it can work there, it can work in other places and save 10,000 lives.

Pneumatic Tires Once Rejected as Only Fad, in England

Columbus' diary mentions a game the natives of Haiti played with black balls that leaped violently into the air after they had been thrown to the ground. The substance in the balls was rubber.

Until 1845, rubber had been put to a minimum of use, chiefly for rubbing out pencil marks, from which it derived its name. Then an Englishman, William Robert Thompson, invented "aerial wheels" as he called them "elastic bearings around the tires of wheels of carriages, rendering their motion easier and diminishing the noise. This was the first pneumatic tire, and introduced the principle of an inner tube with a toughened outer casing. The idea was rejected by the public as only a fad. The advent of the bicycle revived the idea, but rubber tires did not come into their own until the automobile.

Originally, the source of rubber was the wild rubber tree. Gradually the source was improved until today there are thousands of acres of rubber plantations under cultivation. Modern methods of tree growing and selection are practiced.

Among American manufacturers, the United States Rubber Co. leads in rubber plantation work. It owns and operates 11 plantations in the Far East embracing 98,847 acres planted with 10,873,170 trees which last year produced 50,986,000 pounds of rubber, an amount more than three times as large as that produced by all other American companies combined.

One of the foremost thoughts which prompted the company to establish its own plantations was that it might control the quality of its tires from the beginning. For 25 years it has been constantly experimenting with rubber tree culture and plantation methods, with the result that from time to time it has developed raw material of superior qualities.

Takes Dogs Hunting in His Sedan Trunk

When R. A. Porter of Cadillac, Mich., goes shooting, his two hunting dogs ride in the built-in trunk of his Chevrolet Master de luxe town sedan. They have plenty of fresh air, but no drafts, for Porter, taking his cue from the no-draft ventilators of the car has put a special ventilator in the side of the trunk.

Ford V-8 Heater of New Design Has Some Unique Features

The Ford Motor Co. has commenced shipment of Ford V-8 car heaters to Ford branches in carload lots for distribution to dealers.

The heater, heretofore an accessory added as an afterthought, is designed to be an integral part of the modern Ford V-8 motor car. The redesigned Ford V-8 heater for 1936 has new features, of which the most noticeable is the location of the control governing the volume of hot air on the instrument panel instead of under it. The control button matches the others on the instrument panel in size and color, making the heater appear part of the original equipment instead of an accessory. The heater takes up no space in the front compartment.

In the Ford heater, fresh air is driven into the heater by the engine fan. There it comes in contact with 500 square inches of seamless copper flues heated from the engine exhaust. The double header construction is such that the escape of exhaust gases into the heated air is impossible. The heated fresh air is carried into the front compartment of the car by a duct of new design, free from vibration of exhaust noises. The heat outlet no longer has a grille. Removal of this obstruction is said to increase by 40 per cent the volume of heat reaching the interior of the car at low engine speeds. If desired, a rear compartment heat outlet is available at extra cost, providing heat directly at the feet of rear seat passengers.

A feature of the Ford heater is the windshield defroster, which may be obtained at slight extra expense. A current of heated air is directed over the windshield in the driver's range of vision, eliminating steaming or frosting of the glass. No electric current is required.

The new type heater can be installed in 1935 or 1936 Ford V-8 cars.

Giants' Pitching Star Joins Sales Staff of Reichardt Motor Co.

Allyn Stout, New York Giants pitching star, has joined the sales staff of the Reichardt Motor Co., Webster Groves Chevrolet dealer. Stout formerly pitched for Cincinnati and the St. Louis Cardinals. Before starting his professional baseball career, he was a star athlete for the Webster Groves High School. He will remain with the Reichardt Co. until time to go with the Giants to spring training camp.

Million-Dollar Truck Order Received by Reo

The Reo Motor Car Co. announces that it has just received an order for 1199 trucks from the U. S. Government.

The order calls for immediate delivery of 920 two-three-ton dump trucks and 279 one and one-half-ton dump trucks to the Department of Agriculture. The order calls for well over $1,000,000 worth of Reo truck equipment and is one of the largest ever received by Reo.

Dexter Motor Co. To Be Pontiac Dealer In 18th St. Garage

Announcement is made by W. P. Winslow, St. Louis zone manager of the Pontiac Motor Co., of the opening of the Dexter Motor Co., Inc., in the Eighteenth Street Garage, the company having just been appointed an authorized Pontiac dealer in Metropolitan St. Louis.

The new dealership is conveniently located, with showroom facilities on the northwest corner of the building.

The company will be managed by C. E. Dexter, son of W. E. Dexter, who is well known in local automotive circles.

International sells nearly twice as many heavy-duty trucks as any other maker

FORTY-FOUR manufacturers in this country build heavy-duty trucks, 2-ton and over. International outsells the nearest rival nearly two to one.

And mark this: In all trucks, from half-ton up, International registrations the first nine months of 1935 are 73 per cent over the same period in 1934. The entire truck industry together gained 29 per cent. No other leading truck, regardless of size or price, equals International's gain.

(Figures based on R. L. Polk & Co. Data)

Time has taught truck users this truth—International delivers extra value. The rising tide of demand is for INTERNATIONAL Trucks because here is the best paying truck investment. Come into our showroom and look over the models built for work like yours.

New International Trucks Equipped With 2-Speed Axles

High and Low Speed Road Performance Afforded by Single Unit.

The International Harvester Co. has added three new models to its line of motor trucks, each featuring two-speed axle construction with eight forward and two reverse speeds. With this construction the advantages of high-speed and low-speed axle ratios are combined in one unit. The new models are the CS-30, CS-35 and CS-35-T.

In the past it has been necessary for truck owners requiring variable performance ability to choose between a high or low speed axle ratio. The high-speed axle ratio allowed the truck to be driven on level roads at high speeds with consequent saving in engine wear and gasoline and oil consumption, due to slower engine speeds. The objection to the high-speed axle ratio was that payload must be sacrificed if hills and rough roads were to be negotiated. If operating conditions necessitated using a low-speed axle ratio, engine wear and gas and oil consumption were increased due to higher engine speeds. Road speeds with the low-speed axle rotio naturally were sacrificed for the necessary power.

With the International two-speed rear axle models, however, the truck owner has both speed and power, combined and available in one unit. The low-gear axle ratio enables heavy loads to be hauled up steep hills and over rough roads, while the high-gear axle ratio allows high speeds on level roads or with light loads. A simple movement of the shifting lever, and the driver changes to low-speed or high-speed opeartion instantly and silently without stopping the truck. This two-speed rear axle is available in both 5.14 to 1-7.15 to 1 and the 6.16 to 1-8.57 to 1 axle ratios.

Dual Performance Axle.

The Model CS-30 is available in two wheelbases—133 and 157 inches, while the Model CS-35 is offered in 136, 160 and 175 inch wheelbases. The six-wheeler Model CS-35-T is built in two wheelbases—168 and 180 inches.

The International dual-performance axle consists of a straddle-mounted spiral-bevel drive-pinion, a differential carrier assemble mounted on rollar bearings, full-floating axle drive shafts, and the shifting mechanism, fully enclosed in a rigid one-piece cast banjo-type housing. The differential carrier assembly incorporates a spiral-bevel ring gear, a simple supplementary planetary reduction gear set (the low-speed feature), and the usual four-pinion differential unit.

The planetary set introduces a slow-moving reduction between the large bevel gear and the differential unit. The planetary set is locked and does not function in any way when the truck is operating in its high-speed range, the unit simply revolving with the differential ring gear, with the engine drive directly through the drive shaft pinion and the ring gear to the axle shafts.

Details of Gear Action.

When the planetary set is free to revolve, it entails but four additional moving parts, namely, four small spur pinion gears. These four spur gears are in constant mesh with an internal gear forged integrally with the ring gear. They are also in constant mesh with a centrally positioned spur gear integral with the shifting sleeve which surrounds the left axle shaft. In this position, the engine drive is through the drive shaft pinion to the ring gear, through the internal gear to the four small pinion gears, and thence through the pinion carrier plate secured to the differential case to the axle shafts.

The planetary reduction gearing is placed in the rear axle in a position to secure the greatest possible increase of power between the bevel gear and the rear wheels. Situated thus, the planetary gearing brings about a reduction in wheel speed without a reduction in engine speed. This reduction takes place after the power has been transmitted from the engine through the bevel gear. This avoids loss of power through friction and avoids strain on driving parts.

The planetary gearing thus gives a reduction of axle speed for every transmission speed. When in the 5.14 to 1 (direct or high speed) ratio and the shifting level is pulled back, the reduction gears commence to operate at once. The speed of the engine remains constant but the axle speed, and, in consequence, the wheel speed is reduced, thus increasing the torque and thereby giving more power.

Packard Track Fastest Speedway in World

Word from London that Oliver Bertram and John Cobb, English automobile race drivers, are in a hot contest for the lap record on the Brooklands speedway, recalls here that the United States still holds the record for the fastest time ever made on a circular track.

Leon Duray, well known on all American motor speedways for years, is the record holder. The two and one-half mile concrete speedway at the Packard Motor Co.'s proving grounds just north of Detroit has the world's record for the fastest speedway in the world.

Less than a year ago Cobb electrified England by turning the Brooklands two and one-half mile course with an average speed of 140.93 for one lap. Bertram recently raised this record to 142.7 miles an hour and Cobb has announced that he will make an attempt to lower this mark.

Duray's world record was established at the Packard proving grounds speedway June 14, 1928. He lapped the big oval at an average speed of 147.174 miles an hour.

Members of the board, in their official certificate and technical report on Duray's record, said the outer or high speed lane of the Packard proving ground speedway is adaptable probably to speeds up to 150 miles per hour.

American Airlines Orders Big Planes of 215 M. P. H. Speed

Announcement by American Airlines, Inc., of an order for a fleet of the largest transport planes ever operated on a domestic air line climaxes a $4,500,000 re-equipment program instituted by the company over a period of two years, C. R. Smith, president of the line, said yesterday.

The new order, Smith said, calls for delivery of 10 entirely new type Douglas DST transport planes. The expenditure involved will exceed $1,700,000, he estimated, including spare engines and parts.

The new planes will be completely convertible sleeper planes, built to carry 24 passengers and a crew of three as day planes or 16 passengers and crew as sleepers. Each plane will have a gross weight of 12 tons and, fully loaded, will have a cruising range of 1400 miles. Top speed will be 215 miles an hour.

Chevrolet Dealers' Parts and Service Managers Organize

Chevrolet dealers in St. Louis and surrounding territory have organized a Parts Managers and Service Managers Club, holding meetings monthly. The first session was held Tuesday evening at the Kingsway Hotel.

The meetings are sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Co. and similar groups are organized throughout the country. The purpose is to keep the parts managers and service managers of all Chevrolet dealers acquainted with progress in merchandising methods and in proper servicing of Chevrolet units, and to exchange ideas and experiences.

Ross Edwards, service manager of the South Side Chevrolet Co., is president of the St. Louis club; Tony Oster, service manager of the Central Chevrolet Co., is vice-president, and Bart Moore, parts manager for the Roberts Chevrolet Co., is secretary and treasurer.

The meeting held Tuesday was addressed by E. R. Watson, assistant zone manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.; T. H. Edwards, parts and accessory merchandising manager, and R. C. Andrews, zone service manager. Several talks were made by dealers' parts managers and service managers.

TWA Reports Gain of 216 Per Cent in Traffic in October

Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., announces that in October the greatest volume of air travel was handled into and out of Lambert-St. Louis Field, the increase in passenger traffic and revenue over the same period in 1934 being 216 per cent.

Air travel on the transcontinental run reached an all-time high in October, showing a steady increase from mid-summer to the end of last month. It is expected with the increased operating performance of the new Douglas Skyliner that on-time schedule operation throughout the winter will reach its peak.

Jack Frye, president of TWA, says that every effort will be made to maintain complete operation of the coast-to-coast run. Five of these crack schedules pass through St. Louis daily en route to California and also to New York and other Eastern cities.

Chicago & Southern Emphasizes Plane Travel to Gulf Coast

With the winter airplane schedule, one can lunch in St. Louis and dine in a Gulf Coast hotel the same evening, or can depart at 11 p. m. and breakfast the next morning in a Gulf Coast hotel, via Chicago & Southern Air Lines' two daily multi-motored schedules.

Winter vacationists, or even winter "week-enders," can fly and spend their time at some of the Gulf Coast pleasure spots by flying to New Orleans. There is a special rate.

Carbon Black Roads.

Carbon black is an important constituent of automobile tires; now it is also being used in the concrete roads over which those tires roll. Introduced into concrete in order to produce a dark color which cuts down road glare and to afford more contrast between traffic lanes, it has been found to improve the strength of the concrete as much as 25 per cent.

Changes in Dodge Executives Affect The St. Louis Zone

John F. Graham District Representative; Warren A. Frame, City Manager.

Paul E. Jerrue, regional manager here for Dodge Brothers Corporation, announces five changes and additions in the St. Louis Region office to handle the growing Dodge business in the St. Louis area. These include the appointment of John J. Graham as district representative in the Northern Missouri and Central Illinois territory, where Dodge Brothers are continuing the development of their dealer organization. Graham has been with Dodge for four years, the last three years as St. Louis manager.

The appointment of William F. Chamberlain as Dodge truck representative for the same territory was also announced. Chamberlain has been in the Dodge Chicago region, covering Wisconsin.

Warren A. Frame is the new city manager. He was district representative in the Dodge Brothers St. Louis organization for three years, and is known to the St. Louis automobile industry.

Abel W. Chapman, who has been in the Memphis territory for two years, has come to St. Louis as district representative in Southern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

W. A. Elliott, a veteran in the automobile business, having been with Dodge Brothers in St. Louis for years, is returning and will soon take over the Memphis district.

Jerrue, in making these announcements, said that "The sales increase of Dodge pleasure cars, commercial cars and trucks, has been the sensation of the industry during the past two years. All indications, based on advance orders of Dodge dealers in the St. Louis region, are that 1936 will again be the biggest year in Dodge history.

"We are building our organization to give our dealers and customers service and co-operation."

Western Auto Stores Called Oldest, Largest Of Its Kind in U. S.

Western Auto Stores, which has six stories in this city, is the oldest and largest concern of its kind in the United States, according to H. E. Clark, manager in St. Louis.

It began business in 1909, when Henry Ford first brought out his model T car, and now operates more than 170 stores throughout the country.

It opened its first St. Louis store in 1926, at 811 Washington avenue, and since then has added five others.

Clark says that there is an unusually strong demand this fall and early winter for automotive accessories, and that buying for Christmas is noticeable.

W9XPD Programs Reach California, Listeners Report

Its Broadcasts for St. Louis Apparently Leap Zone More Than 2000 Miles Wide Beyond City to Return to Earth in Ocean and Desolate Regions to North and South.

FIELD investigation of the ultra short waves, in the band used by W9XPD, the Post-Dispatch's auxiliary station, is being made by the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York, the Associated Press reports.

At present the CBS net checkup consists of a daily relay on 8.43 meters (35,600 kilocycles) of the regular chain programs, the 50-watt transmitter operating from 4 to 9 p. m. The equipment is on the top floor, with the antenna on the roof of the 25-story studio building.

Some of the effects to be looked into by the engineers, following along lines of previous studies of the short waves, include the shadow action of steel-frame skyscrapers, which often results in signal distortion, as well as the area covered.

When these tiny waves first were experimented with, many engineers believed they traveled only to the end of an imaginary line of sight, or the horizon as seen by the eye. Now, this theory has been questioned, as ultra-short wave transmissions have been picked up many miles beyond the horizon.

Reception Reports.

REPORTS from listeners outside the City of St. Louis on reception of W9XPD's broadcasts thus far have come only from California, indicating that the station's radiations do not entirely travel in a straight line to the horizon and then out into space. Apparently, some of them are deflected by the ionized layer 50 miles and higher in the earth's atmosphere at an angle that causes them to return to the earth at distances of 2500 miles or so from St. Louis. W9XPD's radiations to the North, East and South apparently "bounce" back to earth in Northern Canada, in the Atlantic Ocean and in the wilder regions of countries beyond the Rio Grande. But no definite conclusions will be warranted until many more reports on reception have been received and analyzed.

E. K. Cohan, director of engineering for CBS, who is supervising the tests, and John Dyer, technician in charge (Dyer operated KFZ of the Byrd second Antarctic expedition), report that already their checkup programs have begun to bring a response from radio amateurs. From these reports it is hoped to gather interesting reception data.

The call letters of the CBS station are W2XDV. Although for the time being it is using 8.43 meters, it also is licensed to experiment on 9.5, 7.78, 7.32, 3.49 and eventually .75 meters. However, the shortest wave, which closely approaches the frequency of light, will not be included in the tests until better apparatus is perfected.

Since research engineers began delving into high-definition television it has been generally accepted that radio-movie transmission would be practical only on the ultra short waves, such as 5 meters and below. There wide-band transmission, the type necessary for good detail pictures, is possible.

The First American Recording of a Great Work

BRUCKNER'S SEVENTH

by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra

Conducted by Eugene Ormandy

FROM the violas and tubas there comes a solemn and majestic theme that seems both to brood over an impending event, and to mourn as though it has already come to pass. Presently the violins add another lament, and gradually the resources of the orchestra join in a rising chorus of grief and pain—and triumph. Thus Bruckner, in the third movement of his Seventh Symphony, written in 1882, clearly foresaw the approaching passing of his great master, Richard Wagner.

Bruckner's work in many ways stems from the composer he so greatly revered. Perhaps he was too close to Wagner's time to be fully appreciated as a disciple who had not merely carried a torch, but with it illumined new paths. Relatively neglected he has been, and unjustly so, as you will realize when you hear this masterly recording.

In presenting this unusually interesting symphony, Victor carries forward its progressive policy of covering every important field of music. Thereby, as in this instance, it makes available many compositions whose beauty can seldom be heard except from Victor Records. Hear this Higher Fidelity recording of a great work at your Victor dealer's. In an album, complete with explanatory notes, 8 records, $15.00

Radio Service Engineers To Meet Tomorrow.

THE Rario Service Engineers' Section of the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade will hold an open meeting at 8 p. m. tomorrow in its headquarters, Room 201, 1205 Olive street. All radio service men in this district may attend. Local jobbers are cooperating with the Radio Service Engineers' Section, which aims to perform a public service by making available to radio set owners competent radio engineers who pass an annual examination. Radio Service Engineers wear the association badge.

Napper Radio Co. Distributer of Stewart-Warner Sets.

THE Napper Radio Co., 3117 Washington boulevard, has been appointed distributer of Stewart-Warner radio sets in this territory.

Stewart-Warner sets range from table and mantel taypes to six, seven, nine and 11-tube models, all designed for wide-range reception. They have metal tubes, automatic volume control, tone control and nmerous other features, among these a "Ferrodyne" chassis and circuit designed for minimizing distortion, interference and noise.

The circuits are designed especially for the metal tubes. There is also a special doublet aerial for all-wave reception and elimination of background noise and local electrical interference.

Even the six and seven-tube models have 12-inch dynamic speakers, while the nine and 11-tube sets have separate control of bass and treble tone. The dial used is of the multicolor two-speed airplane type with a fast "Second hand" pointer that facilitates logging of distant stations.

A special, large 11-tube model in a cabinet of exceptional beauty, has twin dynamic speakers, the larger of them 14 inches in diameter. It also has a sound diffusion system planned to give three-dimensional sound effect.

Joins Kroemeke, Inc.

Lee M. Schlude has joined Charles F. Kroemeke, Inc., as manager of the firm's new radio sales department.

The "Mystery Chef" will have a new series on the WEAF chain at 9:30 a. m. Wednesdays and Fridays.

Lionel Barrymore will play in a preview of his new movie during the Hollywood Hotel period Friday night.

PROPOSAL TO LIMIT PUBLICITY ON TRIALS IN NEW YORK STATE

Judicial Council Considers Barring Broadcasting and Photographing in Courts or Nearby.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 30.—A proposal to restrict publicity attending legal actions in New York State and Bar photographers from courtrooms was before the Judicial Council of the State today. Adoption by the council would be followed by a recommendation to the Legislature.

Under the proposal, newspapers would be permitted to obtain for publication only such facts about a case, anticipated or pending, and civil or criminal, as could be found in the pleadings, the indictment or the information filed.

In addition to barring photographers from the courtroom, courts would be charged with stopping broadcasting or photographing proceedings in court or in nearby areas which would "disturb the order or decorum thereof."

U. S. DISTRICT JUDGE HOLDS FARM MORTGAGE ACT INVALID

Sioux Falls (S. D.) Jurist Says it Deprives Lenders of Constitutional Rights.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 30.—United States District Judge A. Lee Wyman held unconstitutional today the amended Frazier-Lemke Farm Moratorium Act.

He declared the law passed at the recent session of Congress deprives a mortgage holder of rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

Judge Wyman ruled in favor of the Central Life Insurance Co., Cincinnati, O., which had attempted to foreclose on a 500-acre farm in Brown County mortgaged by Mrs. Elsie Buntrock of Columbia, S. D.

200 TO SELL HEALTH BUTTONS IN DRIVE OPENING TOMORROW

Sale to Be Held in Connection With Christmas Seal Campaign.

Sale of Health Buttons, a part of the Tuberculoiss and Health Society's Christmas Health Seal Campaign, will begin tomorrow and continue until Christmas. Nearly 200 workers will conduct the sales in 38 office buildings and hotels, 13 branch post offices, at the Clayton courthouse, and in the schools.

About one-third of the income of the campaign is derived from the buttons. The price is whatever the contributor cares to give. Gifts from school children will be used for the Society's Night and Day Camp for Children at 9500 South Broadway.

The Society will hold its thirtieth annual meeting at Hotel Statler at noon tomorrow.

PRIEST TO SPEAK ON EFFECT OF BIRTH CONTROL IN U. S.

Date of Talk Changed to Coincide With Meeting of Maternal Health Association.

The Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., director of "Queen's Work," 3742 West Pine boulevard, will speak on "What Birth Control Is Doing to the United States" tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at St. Louis University auditorium, 3642 Lindell boulevard. The lecture is the eighth in a series of social order talks sponsored by "Queen's Work."

Father Lord will speak in the place of the Rev. H. O. Walker, in order that his address will coincide with the regional convention on birth control, to be held tomorrow and Tuesday under the auspices of the Maternal Health Association of Missouri. Father Lord is the author of several books on the subject.

The "Queen's Work," a Catholic publication, will inaugurate a new series of lectures Jan. 18, on the general subject, "Reconstructing the Social Order."

Medals for Pershing and Aeronauts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Gen. John J. Pershing and the United States Army's stratosphere balloonists, Captains Albert W. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson, will receive gold medals from the National Geographic Society Dec. 11. The Hubbard medals, highest award of the society, are given for outstanding geographic achievement. Gen. Pershing will be honored in recognition of his work as a trustee of the society while Captains Stevens and Anderson will be rewarded for their flight of Nov. 11 in which they set a new world's altitude record of 72,395 feet above sea level.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Army fired all its long range scoring ammunition today in the first 20 minutes but the results were sufficiently devastating to give the Cadets an unexpectedly overwhelming lead and offset a spectacular comeback by the Midshipmen.

West Point's warriors emerged badly battered but triumphant, 28 to 6, in an extraordinary struggle for service football supremacy before a crowd of 81,000 that filled Franklin Field.

Navy's Worst Defeat in 32 Years.

Army's margin was the biggest in 32 years, exceeded only by the 40 to 5 rout of the Navy away back in 1903, but it exaggergated the difference between two teams that alternated in turning loose attacks of terrific intensity.

Bewildered and shell-shocked by an Army barrage that produced better than a point-a-minute at the outset of the game, the Midshipmen came back to dominate the play completely in the last half. The trouble with the Navy's counterthrust was that it didn't have the scoring punch to capitalize repeated opportunities and the Sailors consequently yielded the honors gained so brilliantly on the same gridiron a year ago.

Title Fight Outlook Changing.

MAX SCHMELING is coming to visit us again—and that may change the heavyweight title situation considerably. Max is returning because he sees a chance to get a match with Braddock before Joe Louis does.

SCHMELING.

If that happens, and Max should defeat the champion, the outlook for Louis would be a trifle different. There would be one fewer big gate awaiting him and possibly a tougher opposition to face.

As the situation stood a few weeks ago, Joe, after a winter campaign against a few has-beens, was to have fought Jimmy Braddock for the title, and then, in event of victory, Schmeling, in defense of his new honors. There isn't much doubt that these fights would have drawn gate receipts of seven figures each.

If Schmeling battles Braddock and wins, that will reduce the young Detroit Negro's harvest to a single million-dollar gate instead of two.

It will also raise new doubts as to Joe's chance of winning the crown. Today, fighters like Tunney and Dempsey are conceding Braddock a chance to upset Louis; and a victory gained by Schmeling over Braddock, therefore, would seem to make Max the more formidable foe for the Negro.

No Cause for Worry.

MAX has shown improvement in recent months, although he failed to stop the aging Paolino. He kayoed Hamas and punched the tough Basque fighter around viciously. He may be a better Schmeling than the

Princeton Ends Season Undefeated and Untied, Walloping Yale, 38 to 7

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 30.—The Yale Bulldog had no miracle concealed under his blanket here this afternoon and an untied, unbeaten Princeton football team swept to a farewell triumph to the tune of 38 to 7.

After holding the "Tearing Tigers" scoreless and outplaying them through an exciting first period during which the sons of Eli sat with their fingers crossed, the Bulldog ran right out of miracles.

Starting slowly with a field goal from the unerring toe of Ken Sandbach early in the second period, the Tigers took complete charge of proceedings as the game wore on.

But there was some balm in Gilead for the Blue in the fourth period. A 30-yard Roscoe to Kelley pass brought a touchdown.

A trick play that produced two fakes instead of one brought the Tigers' first score on a lateral from Capt. Constable to Jack White, the latter all but wagling over from the nine-yard line.

That left the half-time score 10 to 0, where it stuck through the third period. But from then on Princeton turned on the heat in earnest. Indeed, they were so warm in that closing period that their excited supporters couldn't wait for the game to end, swarming on to the field and demolishing both goal posts before the game was over.

Near the close of the third period, Toll recovered Whitehead's fumble on the Yale four-yard line, and on the first play of the fourth period, Constable plunged over for the touchdown. Jack White's interception of a Yale pass, and his 39-yard run set up another tally, Constable again punching over the line.

Yale's 62-yard passing attack, climaxed by Kelley's catch deep in the end zone, gave Yale its only touchdown. Almost immediately afterward, Princeton set out on a 63-yard march and White split the left side of Yale's line for the fourth touchdown.

The field was mobbed with players and fans as Sandbach scored Brothers Star As Ole Miss Wins

By the Associated Press.

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Nov. 30.—The fleet-footed backs of the University of Mississippi today broke through the powerful Mississippi State line that had lowered the colors of the Army and Alabama, and Mississippi defeated the Staters, 14 to 6. An estimated 15,000 fans looked on.

After State had narrowly missed tying the score in the final period with a well-earned touchdown, Ray Hapes dashed 80 yards through a broken field to give Mississippi another touchdown.

Hapes, and his big brother, Clarence, proved the mainstays in Mississippi's victory. Each scored a touchdown.

Flyers Defeat Tulsa, 2 to 1, for Their 5th Successive Triumph

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., Nov. 30.—The St. Louis Flyers floundered for two periods tonight and then came from behind on two brilliant plays to defeat the Tulsa Oilers, 2 to 1, for their fifth consecutive victory.

For two periods both teams seemed at a loss to know what to do except check and shove with "Yip" Radley ex-Flyer, causing his former mates plenty of trouble.

As the final period rocked along half over the Oilers settled down for a scoring punch. The Flyer defense was pulled out to Bailey and he snapped a short pass to Desjardins who came in from the right side to score.

That seemed to be all the Flyers needed to spur them on and they crowded the Tulsa goal from there on out.

Matte Scores.

With 12 minutes gone McPherson and Matte went down the ice, the "Shrimp" carrying the puck, which he passed to Matte in front of the goal and he punched in a short one.

Less than three minutes later the Flyers scored again as the result of a nice bit of skating by Palangio, who carried the disc most of the way to the goal and Purpur followed him closely to pick it up on a short pass and shove the puck by Christello to win the game.

Palangio went out on a penalty with 45 seconds to go but the one Tulsa thrust was stopped.

Rough Play.

From the start it looked like the game was going to be one of those games in which the players forgot all about the puck to shove each other around on the ice.

Repeatedly the players carried the puck down the ice all alone and then lost it when there was nobody there to pass to.

With six minutes gone Headley was banished for tripping but the Flyers failed to capitalize as they played sluggishly.

"Yip" Radley then put the first life into the game by giving his former teammates a dose of the rough stuff he put out to other clubs last year. He went to the box at half time for tripping Oddson.

With Radley in the box, Breckheimer made two wild dashes down the middle but was smothered both times.

Radley Out Again.

Radley went out again right after he returned to the floor and was barely back on the ice when Referee Rodden waved him to the box a third time for shoving Matte into the boards. Radley objected and Rodden made it a major penalty.

Late in the second period Purpur and Matte got loose with only Radley between them and the net but Purpur failed to pass and on his shot Radley deflected the puck.

Tulsa rallied late in the period and kept the puck in front of the St. Louis goal. Chief Maracle missed a perfect setup when Fox-

Flyers to Play Tulsa Here Tonight

TRIUMPHANT in five successive American Hockey Association victories, the St. Louis Flyers are scheduled to return home and play the Tulsa Oilers at the Arena tonight in an effort to make it six straight victories. The game is set to start at 8:30 o'clock.

Tuesday the Flyers play in Wichita, Kan., then return here to oppose Wichita at the Arena Friday night and play the Kansas City club here next Sunday night.

In five games the Flyers have scored 12 goals to their opponents' 2.

The Nelson sisters of Minneapolis are to do some fancy skating between sessions tonight.

SOUTHERN METHODIST WINS OVER TEXAS CHRISTIAN, 20-14

FINLEY'S 55-YARD PASS TO WILSON IN FOURTH PERIOD SCORES WINNING TOUCHDOWN

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 30.—Southern Methodist outwitted Texas Christian with daring pass play today to win a thrill-packed battle between two undefeated elevens, 20-14, and move up to the gate of California's Rose Bowl.

The game's big moment in the fourth quarter was but one of a succession of big moments that kept 36,000 fans on their feet as the tide of fortune shifted swiftly. Each team, bulwarked by potential all-America candidates, emptied its bag of tricks and tossed caution to the winds in attaining the 14-14 tie that existed when the Mustangs pulled their surprise.

Winning Gamble.

There they were on the T. C. U. 37-yard line. It was fourth down and there were four yards to go. A pass would be a gamble because failure would give the Christians the ball. But the Mustangs decided the opposition was thinking the same thing. Back faded Bob Finley with the ball. Down field raced Bob Wilson, the "Jackrabbit." He took the ball which had travelled 55 yards by reaching back for it as his legs pumped goalward. Tacklers were in the way for the other seven yards but he tore through them to the touchdown.

After that it was up to S. M. U. to frustrate the efforts of Sammy Baugh of T. C. U., one of the most deadly passers in the nation. It was a big job as Baugh, completing 17 out of 44 tosses during the game, rallied his men for one last charge that had reached the S. M. U. 36-yard line when the game ended.

The Mustangs scored midway in the first period on a stout 73-yard march that saw Finley go over from the one-yard line. It was a smacking drive that featured the terrific line plunging of Finley and Burt and the end running of Wilson.

Maurice Orr kicked goal from placement.

Mustangs' Second Touchdown.

The Mustangs grabbed a second period touchdown when Bob Finley passed to Maco Stewart for first down on the Christian nine-yard line. On the next play, Wilson took a lateral from Finley and circled left end for a touchdown. Orr again kicked goal.

In the second period the Christians started a drive from the Mustangs' 27-yard line that netted a touchdown when Jimmy Lawrence plowed center for one yard. Roach kicked goal from placement.

Texas Christian deadlocked the score early in the fourth period. Baugh passed to Lawrence on the Mustang 25-yard line, to Walls on the Mustang seven, and then seven yards to Jimmy Lawrence for a touchdown. Roach kicked goal.

There was little to choose between the powerful running games. Truman Spain, giant tackle, played a great game for the Mustangs. Darrell Lester, towering Texas Christian center, opened gaping holes for his backs, but they couldn't elude the Southern Methodist secondary.

It was S. M. U.'s eleventh consecutive victory and T. C. U.'s first setback in 11 starts.

From a statistical standpoint, Texas Christian excelled in first downs, 25 to 17, and forward pass yardage, 180 to 96, but the Mustangs outrushed T. C. U., 226 yards to 191.

An Upset.

The result was something of an upset. Texas Christian had been regarded as a slight favorite because of injuries which kept out of the S. M. U. lineup Fullback Harry Shuford, the man who has done the blocking for Wilson.

The crowd was one of the largest ever to witness a Southwestern football game. It included a host of visiting football coaches.

The Mustangs need only one more game to clinch the Southwest Conference championship, meeting Texas A. and M. next Saturday at College Station.

T. C. U. made the most of two "breaks" in counting its first touchdown. Finley's punt from behind his own goal line went only 27 yards. From that point Baugh tossed a pass which was knocked down but the officials ruled interference and the Christians had first down on the one-yard line. It was from there that Lawrence went over.

Princeton Is Considered a Rose Bowl Game Possibility

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 30.—An undefeated team will be invited by Stanford for the Rose Bowl game here New Year's day, Alfred Masters, Stanford graduate manager, said tonight.

"All I can say now is that an undefeated team will be invited to play in the Rose Bowl," Masters emphasized. "I will announce the team when I return Tuesday" from Palo Alto.

While Western fans were clamoring for Southern Methodist as a result of its victory over Texas Christian at Fort Worth today, a letter from Princeton indicated the unbeaten Tigers might listen to an invitation. The only other major undefeated team is Minnesota, forbidden a post season game by Big Ten Conference rules.

The Princeton letter was from Burnham N. Dell, chairman of the Council on Athletics, to H. C. Willett, Chairman of the Pacific Coast Conference.

"Princeton alumni and undergraduates have been greatly disturbed," it said, "by the manner in which a recent editorial of the Daily Princetonian, the undergraduate paper, has misrepresented the attitude of the University toward the annual Rose Bowl football game.

"The viewpoint of the editorial is not that of the athletic authorities of Princeton, and I am writing to make this clear to you."

Dell added that Princeton authorities would consider it an honor to be listed as a team worthy of competing in the Rose Bowl but hastened to add that the school has been governed by a policy opposed to post-season games.

"Princeton authorities have never questioned the character of the management of the Rose Bowl game," he concluded.

75,000 Chicagoans See High School Team Win Title

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.

A CROWD of 75,000 saw Lindblom, champion of the Chicago Public School League, defeat Leo, Catholic title winner, 6 to 0, today at Soldier Field to win the Chicago prep football championship, for the second consecutive year.

Lindblom conquered Leo by the same score before another huge crowd a year ago. Ted Hennis, Lindblom quarterback, ran 56 yards in the second period for the score.

HOLY CROSS BEATS BOSTON COLLEGE; COLUMBIA SURPRISES

SCORES 3 TIMES IN FIRST PERIOD AND HOLDS FAST TO WIN, 20-6

By the Associated Press.

NEWTON, Mass., Nov. 30.—The burly Holy Cross Crusaders completed their first undefeated season by jumping their arch rivals, the Boston College Eagles, for three touchdowns early in the opening period today for a 20-6 victory before a packed crowd of 24,000.

After getting off to this flying start, the Crusaders, whose 1935 record was marred only by a 13-13 tie with Manhattan, were held even and out-fought for brief intervals by the stubborn Eagles, who blocked a punt and launched an effective air attack for their lone score in the second quarter.

Ted Galligan smeared a Bartolomeo boot on Holy Cross' 25 in the second session and Al Tortolino, a backfield spare, tossed twice to Jim Cahill to gain a first down on the Crusaders' two-yard stripe, from where Atilio Ferdenzi plunged for the B. C. score.

The Crusaders threatened in every period and had two other touchdowns called back by the officials. In the third period Bartolomeo raced 71 yards for a score that was disallowed because Holy Cross was holding and in the finale Daughters caught a pass from Bartolomeo a few feet beyond the Boston College end zone.

The Crusaders, who are being sought by promoters of at least two post-season games, found their seven first downs matched by the Eagles. The Holy Cross rushing yardage, however, was 237 to 88 and its passing gains totaled 67 to 34.

U. C. L. A. Defeats Idaho, 13-6, and Ties for Title

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30.—University of California at Los Angeles won its way into a triple tie with Stanford and California for the Pacific Coast Conference football championship by defeating the Vandals of the University of Idaho, 13 to 6, in the final conference game of the Bruin schedule.

The Bruins met unexpected opposition through the line and on defense against passes and were unable to score until late in the second period when Chuck Cheshire went around end from the eight-yard line after the Bruins had marched from their own 31 to which point Cheshire had advanced the ball on the interception of a pass.

The Bruins scored their second touchdown at the start of the fourth period on a 13-yard pass from Murphy to Schroeder. Murphy kicked the first goal but missed the second.

With about two minutes of play remaining and most of the Bruin resrves in action, the Vandals broke through to score their touchdown.

Washington State Ties St. Marys, 7-7.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—Washington State's Cougars came from behind to tie the favored St. Mary's Gaels, 7 to 7, in their football game here today before 16,000 fans.

The Gaels passed to a touchdown in the second period, but the Cougars, led by their brilliant quarterback, Ed Goddard, knotted the score in the final quarter.

Washington State started its successful drive near midfield as Goddard pitched three consecutive passes. From St. Mary's two, Goddard hit center for the touchdown. Coach Babe Hollingberry of Washington State rushed in Johansen, center, who place-kicked the tying point.

St. Mary's scored its touchdown after Fullback Fiese intercepted one of Goddard's throws on the W. S. C. 42-yard line.

Schrieber, left half, faded far back and tossed a 52-yard pass to Right End Erdelatz, who ran five yards to score.

Meister, left tackle, added the extra point with a place-kick.

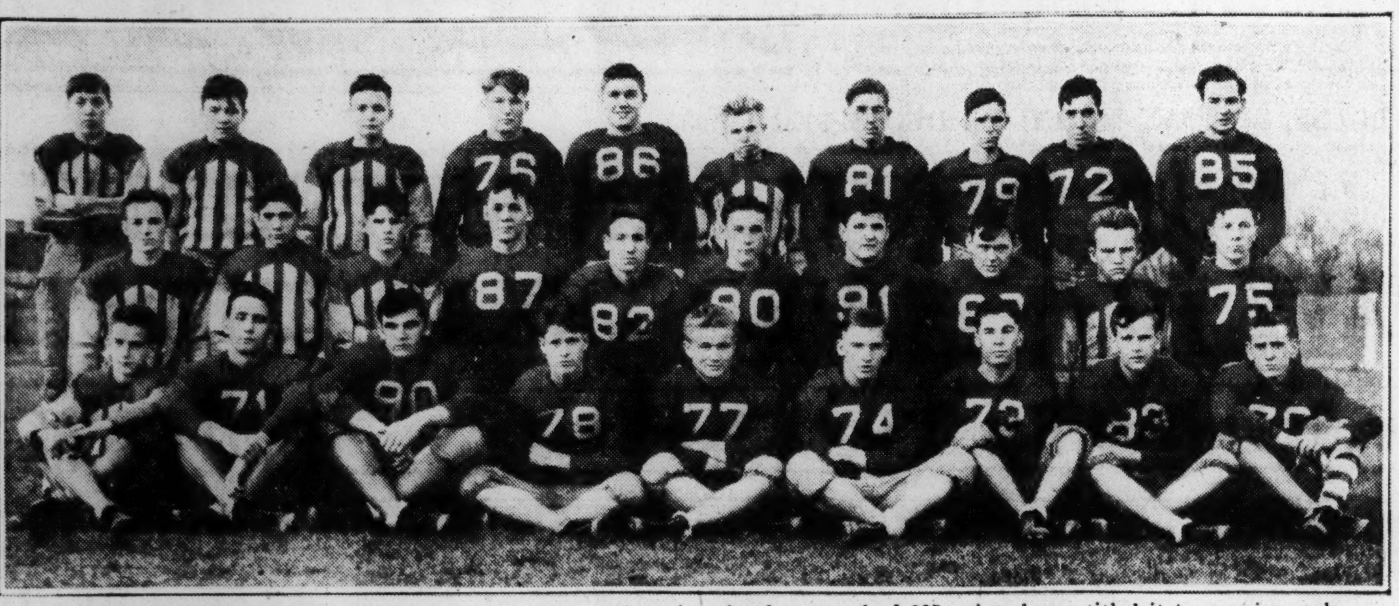
They Helped Put Alton on the Football Map



Alton High School's great record of nine consecutive victories for a total of 287 points has entitled it to premier rank in the St. Louis district embracing 34 major high schools. Opponents were able to score only two touchdowns against Alton. Members of the squad are: Left to right, first row—Pitkin, Reynolds, Harrison, Bauser, Ashlock, Usinger, Hansen, H. Jones and T. Jones. Second row—McDonald, Maudsley, Doyle, Smithee, Bailey, Brown, Kodros, L. Jones, Heath and Bryant. Third row—Cook, Rogers, Bund, Hand, Bennett, Hamilton, Burmaster, Travis, Huish and Anderson. Allen, right tackle, was ill at the time the picture was taken.

Alton Ranked as Best High School Eleven in District; Maplewood Placed Second

By Harold Tuthill.

St. Louis district developed some powerful high school football elevens during the season just closed, but the team that will in all probability be conceded first rank among the 34 schools involved is that of Alton High School, undefeated and with not even a tie registered against it.

There are several reasons for rating Alton over such powerhouse elevens as Maplewood, Normandy and University City High Schools produced this season. Notable among them is the fact that the Altonians amassed the amazing total of 287 points in nine games while the opposition could score only two touchdowns.

Although pitted against such strong opposition as Belleville, Hyde Park of Chicago, Central High, Western Military Academy, etc., East St. Louis and Belleville were the only teams able to cross the Alton goal line during the season.

Alton may have an opportunity to enhance its prestige, for it was learned last night that Coach Ray Jackson had written to Miami, Fla., for a possible intersectional game. Usually Miami invites some strong team to play a contest there Christmas day.

Some Alton fans urged a challenge of Maplewood, but that school turned down a game with Jefferson City a short time ago because a ruling of the Missouri State High School Athletic Association limits the number of football games each school can play to 10, and Maplewood already has competed in that many battles.

Maplewood, with an ambitious schedule that included Johnston City, Ill.; Davenport, Ia., and Muskogee, Ok., was second. Many will contend that Maplewood is as good as, if not better than, Alton and the contention is not without basis. On comparative scores of Maplewood and its county rival, University City, U. City also has a claim to first place.

Both Maplewood and University City won from Normandy by the identical scores, 13 to 6. The Indians won from Webster Groves with ease, 27 to 0, whereas Maplewood was hard-pressed to eke out a 19 to 13 decision. Add to that the fact that University City is undefeated in seven starts and it will be realized that there's little choice between Maplewood and University City.

RANKING OF TEAMS

Pos.	Team.	W.	L.	T.	Pos.	Team.	W.	L.	T.
1.	Alton	9	0	0	20.	Madison	3	4	1
2.	Maplew'd	9	0	1	21.	St. Chas.	4	3	1
3.	University City	7	0	0	2.	Christian Brothers	2	4	1
4.	McKinley	8	1	1	23.	Central	2	6	1
5.	Beaumont	8	1	1	24.	Ritenour	2	5	0
6.	Norm'dy	8	2	0	25.	Soldan	1	5	2
7.	Belleville	6	1	2	26.	Granite City	1	7	1
8.	McBride	3	3	1	27.	St. Louis U. High	1	7	0
9.	East St. Louis	5	2	1	28.	Blewett	1	7	0
10.	Country Day	5	2	0	29.	Wood River	1	7	0
11.	Clayton	5	2	0	30.	Wellston	1	6	0
12.	Burroughs	4	1	1	31.	Principia Academy	0	6	0
13.	Webster	4	4	1	32.	Edwardsville	1	3	0
14.	Kirkwood	4	5	0	33.	Belleville Cathedral	1	1	1
15.	Roosevelt	5	4	1	34.	South Side Catholic	1	4	0
16.	Western Military	4	4	0
17.	Cham'ade	4	2	1
18.	Cleveland	3	4	0
19.	Collinsville	3	4	0

Besides defeating McKinley, the city champion, University City added Mt. Vernon and Mattoon, two Illinois schools, to its list of victims, so it would be virtually impossible to rank the Indians lower than third. University City will seek further glory when it goes to Miami, Florida, for an intersectional game there Dec. 7.

McKinley Fourth.

Fourth place goes to McKinley, which won eight, lost one and tied one. The Goldbugs displayed a remarkable comeback facility after dropping their season's opener. Along with their fine record went the city championship.

In the case of McBride, the Preparatory League champions were put in eighth place because they dropped three and tied one of their first four games without scoring a point. Then they picked up, to bowl over three Prep League opponents.

Ahead of McBride were Beaumont, Normandy and Belleville, each of which had an impressive record. In ranking the teams, it should be borne in mind that if McBride, ranked eighth, should meet Beaumont, placed fifth, that Beaumont would not win necessarily, because the difference might prove to be negligible on the gridiron.

WASHINGTON U. CARDS THIRD ANNUAL WATER CARNIVAL, DEC. 11-12

The third annual water carnival, sponsored by the Washington University swimming team and directed by Coach Artie Eilers, will take place the evenings of Dec. 11 and 12 in Wilson Pool on the W. U. campus. A special underwater lighting system is being installed in the pool.

Although entertainment has been the chief objective of the carnival the last two years, an educational element is being inserted this year. Included will be a life-saving demonstration by six members of the Red Cross Meramec River patrol, under direction of Commodore J. C. Flint.

Washington U. swimmers will demonstrate various strokes and dives, featuring the over-arm breast stroke and the Japanese crawl.

George Groner, W. U. instructor in physical education, is training a group of men for the "flying ring" act which will be performed over the pool. Twenty-four girls who will participate in the Carnival are practicing drills and formations.

Among the entertainment features of the program will be clown stunts, comic dives, greased pole contest, and water games.

Basketball Game Wanted.

The C-M girls are seeking basketball games to be played on their court at 1823 Hickory street. Junior girls and others in the 14 to 17 year division interested, may schedule games by writing to J. E. Dixon, 1409A Grattan street.

SISLER EXPECTS BID TO BE MADE FOR THE BROWNS AFTER MEETING

By W. J. McGoogan.

Efforts of George Sisler and his associates to obtain control of the Browns will crystalize tomorrow night when the business men interested assemble at the Racquet Club to discuss the situation. It is their intention to consolidate their organization then and to reach a basis for a concrete offer for the club to be made to the Phil Ball estate.

Sisler is confident the plan will go through and if it does, he says, Rogers Hornsby's contract will be taken over and Hornsby will continue as director of the team on the playing field as he has in the past.

"I think Hornsby is one of the greatest managers in the game," Sisler said, "and there will be no question as to his position. I have been in baseball long enough to know that there can be no interference on the part of the front office with the playing field and there will be none. Rogers will be in supreme command of the playing end of the club.

"We would have a directing business head in the office, too, and he would be in supreme command there. There will be no interference by one department with another.

"It is our plan to have the control vested in the group of men approached with a view to putting the deal through and if it is necessary to raise more money by bringing in further people, they will be selected and there will be no public stock selling proposition."

Louis B. Von Weise, president of the club, who lives in New Jersey, stated yesterday that no offer had been made for the Browns as yet but it is likely that Sisler and his associates will be in position to talk in concrete terms after tomorrow night's meeting.

Baylor Upsets Rice Eleven, 8-0

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 30.—An erratic Baylor line that tightened at the right times gave the Bears an upset 8 to 0 victory over the favored Rice Owls here today before 9000 fans.

A lightning-like rush in the second period gave the invaders the only score they needed. The Bears took a Rice punt on the Owl 43. A pass from Russell to Mansker put the ball on the 20, a fumble lost seven yards, but Gernand flipped a short pass to Lloyd Russell and the quarterback made his way to the six-yard line. Bob Masters carried the ball across.

A safety against Rice came on the last play of the game. Russell set the Owls back almost to their goal with a long, high punt. With the ball on the six-yard line the Owls called for a play from spread formation and Ray Smith fumbled the pass from center behind the goal. He recovered but was unable to run it out.

Wins After Five Years of Trying, Pays $195 for $2

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN MATEO, Cal., Nov. 30.

SCORING a tremendous upset before 16,000 spectators, El Cheevito, a six-year-old maiden, paid $195 for $2, after beating Broad Royal a neck in the first race here this afternoon.

Ridden by Apprentice Stalling and owned by P. L. Gordon, the gelding got to the front as he came in the stretch and managed to stall off Broad Royal's closing drive. Broad Royal was second and Lieut. Kelly, the favorite, third.

El Cheevito was listed as a maiden, for in his five years of racing he had never won a race on a recognized track.

DARTMOUTH'S BIG GREEN TEAM IS UPSET, 13-7 BEFORE 20,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Lou Little came up with his annual football surprise today when his smartly coached Columbia Lions wound up their football season with a surprising 13 to 7 upset over Dartmouth's big Indians before 20,000 half-frozen spectators at Baker Field.

The fleet-footed Al Barabas, singing his swan song as a Columbia gridder, led the way as the Lions outplayed Dartmouth in every department to salvage something from the most disappointing season a Columbia team has known since Little assumed command on Morningside Heights.

Barabas' fine passing sent the Lions roaring to a touchdown in the first. Dartmouth evened the count in the second, but Columbia again took the lead in the fourth on a 62-yard gallop down the field by Joe Vollmer, husky junior back. Passes were the chief factor in the Dartmouth score.

Columbia out-rushed Dartmouth 220 yards to 126. In the air the honors were about even, with the Lions completing four out of 10 heaves for a gain of 60 yards and Dartmouth making 7 out of 22 count for the same total.

The Lions showed a surprising defense for Dartmouth's much ballyhooed overhead game. Ed Chamberlain hurled them in all directions but Barabas and Oscar Bonom usually were waiting to break them up. Throughout almost the entire last half Columbia stopped the Green cold, both on the ground and in the air.

WRAY'S COLUMN

one who gained a TKO over Young Stribling.

Even so, Louis has little cause to worry, in our judgment. Schmeling is a one-style boxer who relies on a right hand too strongly to be really a great fighter. He also bores in—a style made to order for Louis. Max will be pitted against a much younger, two-fisted scrapper who is faster, more versatile and has a harder wallop.

Braddock Better Than Schmeling?

HOWEVER, it is highly probable that Braddock, rather than Schmeling, will turn out to be the winner of a meeting between this pair. Braddock is a canny old veteran who is game, can take a punch and hand it back with interest.

This writer believes that Braddock would make a better showing against Louis than Schmeling, even though the German is a stubborn, game fighter. Max lacks variety to his fighting style; and a one-plan fighter ought to be "meat" for the young Negro, who knows all the answers in the ring except the one most frequently asked question of all: "Can he take it?"

Changing the Rules.

FOOTBALL coaches are seldom satisfied. There is reason to believe that they will again make recommendations for changes in the rules, this winter. They will be tinkering with the laterals, with the "slow" whistle situation, the point after touchdown and other features.

However, since the coaches have been responsible for many major changes in the rules in the last 15 years, and since the net result has been to open the play, diversify the attack and provide more spectator interest, there is no reason to condemn them for a desire to further polish up the regulations.

The lateral has not revolutionized play, nor has it provided a weapon with which the weak may overcome the strong. There is no chance that it will be abolished and very little probability that it will be seriously modified.

We will always have plenty of variety besides the usual running attack; and as long as that situation prevails there will be no yelp from the customers.

Too Much Substitution.

IF THERE is any feature of "coaches'" football which still cramps spectator interest, it is the slowing down of football games due to unnecessary substitutions.

Coaches today send out substitutes in continuous streams. Sometimes elevens are completely replaced in one quarter, and substitutions made for these substitutes.

In a recent Washington game some of the names of the men playing for the Bears were practically unknown to the football public present, due to the employment of the entire Bear squad.

Subs frequently are sent in for one play and then are withdrawn; a star is taken out late in one period so that he may rest a while and be fresh when sent back in. Substitutes may merely be conveyors of messages; they may be sent in to rest the regulars; to prevent showing up too badly a beaten opponent; to give third and fourth stringers a chance to appear in a big game; to give sophomore players more experience; or for still other reasons. The result is to create a procession from the field to both sidelines; and naturally to take up time and break the continuity of spectator interest.

An average game lasts about two hours and one half, including a 15-minute interval. This means that it takes a football team an average of more than one minute to complete a play!

Revive the Drop Kick.

A REDUCTION in the use of substitutes would certainly remove some of the dullness from contests, many of which, but for sentimental interest would call for Bronx cheers.

And, incidentally, if the coaches want to add a little zest and another thrill to the good old game, they might raise the point value of a goal from the field to four points and abolish the point after touchdown.

Then three field goals would be equal to two touchdowns and perhaps revive an attacking feature now almost dead.

Drop kickers would come to life and boots from the 40 yards for four points would be quite as deserving as touchdowns resulting from a forward pass.

Easy Money.

THE plan of a group of St. Louisans to buy the Browns is reminiscent of a similar attempt to purchase the same club in the days when the late Robert Lee Hedges was the principal owner, and Ben Adkins, then Water Commissioner, was vice-president.

A group of Racquet Club members had an idea that the club wasn't being handled right and could do much better if they took over the team. A meeting was held and the club members were so much in earnest that they put up $25,000 to bind the purchase.

The new group announced their plans, which included making the grandstand safe for the ladies, denaturing players of all profanity and reorganizing the conduct of major league baseball on a refined basis. Cartoonists poked fun at this feature.

When the time came to lay the money on the line, the deal fell through and Robert Lee Hedges was $25,000 richer.

Hedges threw a banquet on the strength of it, assuring those assembled that he would consider it a personal insult to his hospitality if any guest was able to leave the hall under his own power.

Most of the guests were; but the syndicate purchase feature evidently was cockeyed. Hedges retained the club and the remains of $25,000 earnest money.

Giants Again for Sale.

CHARLES STONEHAM is reported ill and ready to sell the Giants. That will interest fans, but not, perhaps, purchasers. They know that the Giants' franchise is a valuable asset; but they also know that ready cash is difficult to assemble in quantity.

The Giants have some wonderful players and a first-rate prospect. On the basis of the gold rush days of baseball the franchise, players and the long-time lease would be quoted at around $2,500,000—perhaps more. The Yankees years ago brought about $3,000,000.

Today, the situation is uneasy; the future of big sporting investments is clouded and investors with large cash reserves rare. To raise money by selling securities or real estate is to lose money. And so today many deals which in normal times would be made, fail.

Giants' Patronage Faltered.

Then, too the Giants have not been the box office card at home which their standing and colorful team seem to warrant. At times last year the turnouts were more than disappointing. The overhead is large and the profits for the moment may not justify the large investment.

However, the New York club, it is still the best bet in baseball as a financial risk. With a population of 7,000,000 to support the club an owner can hardly go wrong. A pennant team would be certain to make huge dividends—and the club has not been far from a pennant, under Bill Terry.

It would be interesting to see what a few night baseball games would do in the Polo Grounds. Our guess is that, properly selected, seven flood light contests in New York would draw a quarter of a million fans. But we may be wrong. New York is not Cincinnati — it has other afterdark amusements.

The Passing Show.

OUR Al McCoy was beaten by Jock McAvoy, an English guy,
But quite a clever boy.
And I will tell you as a pal,
The indications are that Al
Is not the real McCoy.

Our welter champion, Barney Ross,
Threw Senor Garcia for a loss
The other night in Chi.
His victory evened up the score,
As Garcia in a match before
Had blackened Barney's eye.

John Henry Lewis views with gloom
His rival Maxie Rosenbloom,
Who took him into camp.
The playboy still is tough to take
But as his crown was not at stake,
John Henry's still the champ.

The Kickback.

Fifteen spectators at the Missouri-Kansas game were fined various sums for intoxication and possession of liquor. When in Kansas it isn't safe to carry liquor either on the person or in the person.

Surprise!

Despite the fact that everybody has been taking it for granted that Burgess Whitehead and Bud Parmelee were the players involved in the recent Cardinal-Giant trade at Dayton, Brother Rickey assures us that no outstanding stars were involved and the customers will be greatly surprised when the names are divulged. There goes "Kayo" Brown!

Statistics show that only 31 games were won in the American League the past season by pinch hitters. That would be an average of only about four games to a club but pennants have often been won and lost by a narrower margin.

See where the Coffin sisters are the big shots of a girls' rifle team up Milwaukee way. Sounds ominous.

SOUTHEAST'S FIELD HOCKEY STARS TRIUMPH

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—Southeast won a spirited contest from Northeast, 7 to 2, today to soar through the women's National Field Hockey Tournament undefeated.

Catherine Kendig of Philadelphia, led Southeast's scoring with 3 goals. Anne Townsend contributed 2 of the team's tallies and May Howe and Elizabeth Toumin a goal each. All are from the Quaker city.

Effective passing enabled Southeast to pull away from their rivals in the second half. The score at the end of the first period was 3 to 1 in favor of Southeast.

Southeast reserves also swept through the meet without defeat, trouncing Northeast reserves 10 to 1 in the final day's play. Marion Edwards of Philadelphia, starred for Southeast Reserves with 6 goals.

Midwest defeated Great Lakes, 1 to 0, in a whirlwind game in which Lucy Jane Hedberg of North Shore, Ill., scored the winning goal in the final minutes of play.

Seven Southeast Players Make All-U. S. Team.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—Philadelphians, playing on the Southeast team, won seven of the 11 places on the all-United States women's national field hockey team announced tonight.

Anne Townsend of Philadelphia made the team for the thirteenth time. Barbara Strebeigh of Philadelphia, who had been on the first team five times, was named on the reserve team this year.

The selections were announced at the close of the annual tournament in which the southeast team finished a round-robin schedule without any defeats.

The all-United States team and the Reserves will meet tomorrow in a game closing the tournament.

The first team was selected by a special committee, with team designations.

Anne Townsend, Philadelphia (Southeast), center forward.

Catherine Kendig, Philadelphia (Southeast), right inside.

Helen Howe, Philadelphia (Southeast), right wing.

Helen Wheeler, Stuyvesant, N. Y. (Northeast), right half.

Betty Taussig, Philadelphia (Southeast), center half.

BEAR LAWYERS AND ENGINEERS IN DRAW

Football-minded lawyers and engineers of Washington University battled to a scoreless tie at Francis Field yesterday afternoon in their annual gridiron combat. The line play and the pass defense must have been excellent, as neither team could get running attack or aerial thrusts to work effectively. However, at the final gun, many of the boys were ready to admit that they were "over-footballed."

LOUISIANA STATE SMOTHERS TULANE UNDER 41 TO 0 SCORE

VICTORS CROSS THE GOAL LINE FOUR TIMES IN THIRD PERIOD

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30. — A free-for-all fight among several thousand students on the playing field climaxed the 41 to 0 victory of the Louisiana State Tigers over the Tulane Green Wave in their annual clash here today before 34,000 spectators.

The fight started over possession of the goal posts, which had been electrically wired by Tulane students to thwart seizure by their enemies, but the Tigers tore away the wires, taking the shocks, and carried away the posts. The battle ended with black eyes and bruised jaws while the police stood by and let the boys have their fun.

L. S. U. Wins Title.

Today's victory made the L. S. U. Tigers undisputed champions of the Southeastern Conference and placed them on the eligible list for either California's Rose Bowl or Louisiana's Sugar Bowl. It was the first time since 1908 that L. S. U. has dominated Southern football.

The Tigers were complete masters of the Greenies after the first five minutes of the game. In the third quarter with the score standing 27 to 0, the Greenies visibly wilted, being content to direct their efforts at holding down the score.

At the opening of the fourth quarter, Bernie Moore, Tiger coach, started sending in substitutes and before the game ended he had used every man on the bench.

It Was a Record Score.

The game ended with Tulane making desperate passing efforts but the Tigers kept pounding until the score reached 41 to 0, the largest L. S. U. has ever run up against Tulane since inauguration of the annual game in 1893.

Score by periods:
Louisiana State —0 7 27 7—41
Tulane — — — —0 0 0 0— 0

Louisiana State scoring: Touchdowns—Barrett 2 (passes); Mickal, Bowman (pass) Rohm, Coffee.

Points from try after touchdown, Mickal 3, Crass, Coffee.

McBRIDE OPENS BASKET CAMPAIGN AGAINST CENTRAL, TUESDAY

Toddy Kamp ran his McBride High School basketball team through an extensive drill yesterday afternoon and after it was all over he snorted, "Humph, we're in poor shape to open the season against Central here next Tuesday night."

Kamp is counting on three lettermen and the same number of reserves from last year's squad to make a serious challenge for the Preparatory League championship, won last season by Christian Brothers. The "M" wearers are George Leonard and Ed Evans, forwards, and Joe Creamer, center.

The leftovers from the 1934-35 squad are Gus Beine, forward, and John McKenna and John Hayes, guards. Newcomers who have shown up well in the first four days of practice so far are Wipperman, center, and Hoing, Neske and Curtin, forwards.

The 1935-36 schedule:
(Unless indicated games are at night.)
Dec. 3—Central, here.
Dec. 6—Soldan, here.
Dec. 10—Beaumont, there, 3:30 p. m.
Dec. 13—Roosevelt, here.
Dec. 17—Blewett, here.
Dec. 20—Alumni, here.
Jan. 3—Open.
Jan. 7—Maplewood, here.
Jan. 10—Western, there, 3 p. m.
Jan. 17—C. B. C., here.
Jan. 24—St. Louis U. High, there.

JOHN CARROLL OUSTS THREE GRID COACHES

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—The Athletic Committee of John Carroll University announced today the dismissal of Tommy Yarr, head football coach, and his two assistants, Mike Koken and John Carberry.

E. R. Mittinger, university publicity director, said no successors had been chosen. Yarr, Notre Dame center and captain in 1931, succeeded Ralph Vince as head coach in March, 1934. John Carroll won only one game this season.

How Army Protects Its Kicker—Ferrara (30), Navy, Tossed Into Air

Monk Meyer of Fort Sheridan, Ill., Army's outstanding back, is shown kicking behind his own goal line. An Army blocker has tossed Ferrara (30), Navy tackle, in to the air. The ball is in the air, and still Meyer has not been touched by a Midshipman.

Referee Places Four Washington Players On All-Valley Team

By Edward W. Cochrane

Football Referee of Middle West and Southwest for Many Years.

TIED for first place in the championship race and being the outstanding teams of the conference Washington University of St. Louis and the University of Tulsa gather a lion's share of places on the first mythical all-star team of the Missouri Valley Conference this year. Washington is given four places, Tulsa three and Oklahoma Aggies, Drake, Creighton and Washburn each get one. On the second team Grinnell, which failed to land a man on the first team, gets three places, as does also Drake. Washington is given two places on the second team and Tulsa, Washburn and Creighton one each.

The teams were not as evenly matched as in the Big Six and thus it is not quite as difficult to select the standouts, although some of the players on the second team gave the men in their positions very close contests for first team honors. Washington swamped Creighton and Oklahoma Aggies and also beat Drake handily on a rain-soaked field, showing that the Bears outrank all but Tulsa and might beat the Golden Hurricane, but that is a question because they do not meet, although the Bears beat Drake and Oklahoma Aggies more impressively than Tulsa did.

Good Linemen.

Asbury at end is the only Oklahoma Aggie man on the first team but he is the outstanding man of that eleven. He is fast, shifty and especially strong on defense. He weighs 175. Hafeli of Washington is a fine running mate for Asbury. He is tall, weighs 191 and is not only a fine pass receiver and good on offense, but his defensive work has stood out all year for Jimmy Conzelman's team.

Captain Owen of Washburn, a 210-pounder, has been the best lineman the Ichabods have had all year and deserves the place at tackle. He is especially strong on defense. His running mate on the mythical eleven is Chapman of Tulsa, outstanding lineman of "Gloomy Gus" Henderson's squad. Chapman weighs 200 and against such teams as S. M. U. and T. C. U. he proved a star.

Tony Konvicka, Washington University, was picked for one of the guard positions and Holland of Creighton, was given the other post.

Pettit, Made Captain.

There was a contest for the center position, which goes to Pettit of Drake. He weighs 192, is a power on defense and his work on offense has stood out above the rest. Iezzi of Washington is second choice, although in most respects as good as Pettit, while another good end is Harmon of Tulsa, who weighs 210 and stands six feet three inches. The captaincy goes to Pettit, who has a splendid attitude on the field and is a smart, ideal leader.

Zboyovski of Washington is my idea of a smart quarterback. He is small, well built, smart, diagnoses the opposition's plays, runs back punts better than any other safety man in the league and can kick and pass. This lad would be a star on anybody's football squad. Hudgens of Washington is the outstanding backfield man of the conference. He rates all-America consideration. He made the touchdown against Illinois, another against S. M. U., both against Drake and some more. He is a great ball carrier, but he also is powerful on defense. He is an ideal back. He can do everything a good back should do. He weighs 185. Dennis of Tulsa is another outstanding triple-threat man. Dennis is fast, a good leader, and he is always in every play. Wickersham of Tulsa is another ideal back. Dennis weighs 180 and Wickersham 190.

How Men Are Chosen.

There are some splendid players on the second eleven who gave the first team men plenty of opposition for their places. In picking the first men I have considered chiefly the value of the men to their respective teams and they must be good defense as well as offense. Parisho of Drake and A. McKenna of Washburn are that sort of ends. Both good-sized, fighting ends who have plenty of speed. Graves of Grinnell is one of Coach Watts' best men. He is about as good as the first team tackles. Kubes is the best line man in the Creighton team. Both tackles are big and powerful.

Harmon of Tulsa and Trumbull of Grinnell are given the guard positions. They have done about as good work as the first team guards all year. I have already mentioned Iezzi's value at center. Harmon also plays center.

The backfield on the second team rates very high. Ubl would be a first team man without an argument except that he has to wear an armour because of a former injury that has handicapped his playing. He has been a star in the Drake backfield in spite of it. Fulton is another splendid back at Drake who deserves his place on the second eleven and isn't far short of first team honors. Bauer is Grinnell's best back and has played brilliantly all year. Bukant is a sophomore at Washington, but because of his marvelous passing all year and power of offense, is given the fullback post on the second team.

Army Piles Up 28 Points Early, Then Holds Navy to 6

able to pull themselves together with the aid of repeated replacements and easily beaten back by a 43-yard drive that produced Army's final touchdown early in the second quarter. Bill Grohs, Cadet field general, bucked over for the fourth tally from the two-yard line after Meyer reeled off several brilliant runs. Grove booted his fourth successive placement for the extra point and ran his total contribution up to 16 points for the day.

Schmidt, Missouri, Navy Star.

The picture changed with equally startling swiftness in the second half. Launching a savage counter-attack, the midshipmen ran wild, with Jack Schmidt of St. Joseph, Mo., the spearhead of a succession of thrilling drives, but penalties, intercepted passes and fumbles kept the Navy from taking full advantage of gains by land and air that were calculated to wipe out most of Army's tremendous margin.

Under terrific pressure and tiring rapidly, Army's "iron men" cracked, and, one by one, limped off the field during the final half but their gallant defense was sufficient to stop all but one of Navy's smashing charges. Schmidt, shedding tacklers like a duck sheds water throughout the last two periods, slid off tackle from the one-yard line for Navy's only score on the first play of the final quarter, the climax of a 60-yard advance, but the Sailors missed four other opportunities to score because of over-anxiety or poor ball-handling at critical stages.

Fists Fly Along Sidelines.

So fiercely was Navy's second-half offensive matched by Army's defensive tactics in the danger zones that tempers flared. At one point fists flew, in a mixup along the sidelines in the final period, but nothing serious happened. On a play that resulted in the injury and removal of Jack Eriksen, big Army tackle, there was a sudden display of hot temper. Gordon Kimbrell, substitute Cadet guard, swung a left hook in the direction of a Navy chin, apparently on the theory theer had been some unnecessary rough handling of Ericksen. The punch didn't land, however, and cooler heads prevailed before there was any further outbreak.

Thereafter, however, the tackling was of the most savage variety on both sides and none of the Army's erstwhile "60 minute men" was rugged enough to go the entire distance.

It took the stoutest kind of defense by the Army's regulars, led by their brilliant captain and end, Bill Shuler, as well as the full supply of replacements on West Point's bench to stand off the Navy's comeback. So completely did the Sailors dominate the second half that Army rarely had possession of the ball and only twice so much as advanced a yard or two beyond midfield. So thoroughly were the ground-gaining tables turned that the Navy rolled up 13 first downs to Army's two in the last two periods and advanced over 250 yards by various means to West Point's 31 yards. One touchdown, however, was small compensation for a heroic rally that restored the fighting prestige of the Annapolis football forces even though it failed to show on the score board.

Navy actually topped Army in first downs for the entire game, 17 to 11, but the big payoff was on the Cadet touchdowns. The Cadets had only five real scoring opportunities, all in the first half, but they capitalized four of them by combating accurate passes with fast foot work and suberb blocking. The Midshipmen were four times well into Army territory even in the first half and they had five more chances to deliver a scoring punch, in the second half, but couldn't produce.

Schmidt Makes Long Gains.

Grove's brilliant running, topped off by his 80-yard gallop for Army's first touchdown in a brilliantly executed sideline sprint, was matched in the last half by the furious ball-carrying of Schmidt. The Navy's ace back repeatedly broke loose for long gains, ranging from 12 to 22 yards. Often he fought forward for yards unaided by anything but his own power, whirling and twisting away from Army tacklers. After being shackled in the first half he gained 155 yards from scrimmage in the last two periods and was clearly the outstanding ball-carrier on the field.

With the colorful crowd, including a host of notables, roaring encouragement the Navy thrust its way to Army's two-yard line early in the third period, only to be tossed back and lose the ball on downs on the Cadet five-yard line as Schmidt was smothered before he could attempt to end sweep. Dick Pratt's fumble on Army's 34-yard line halted the next Navy drive but the boys in blue came right back to march 60 yards for a touchdown on straight football. Schmidt registered most of the gains and went over for the score at the start of the final period.

Twice more than Midshipmen drove deep into Army's side of the field. The right side of the Cadet line took a terrific pounding.

A 15-yard penalty for holding by Navy broke up the continuity of an attack that had penetrated to the Cadet 13-yard line. Shortly afterward, in another thrust that reached Army's 19-yard line Schmidt fumbled and Monk Meyer recovered on the Cadet 13-yard stripe. With this crisis passed Meyer left the game, and Army replacements, thrown into the game by the dozen, succeeded in standing off the Navy during the few remaining minutes of play.

A Different Navy Team After Half.

Just what happened to the Navy team between halves wasn't revealed. Neither was there any apparent explanation for its transformation into a ball of fire after acting as helpless as a high school squad against the hard-charging Cadets in the first half. It may have been a case of the jitters but the Sailors were woefully unprepared for Army's terrific opening drive. On Grove's first touchdown dash, scarcely a Navy tackler got within arm's reach of the slippery Cadet back. On the pass that resulted in Grove's second touchdown he got beyond the Navy secondary and scored standing up. Watching Grove like a hawk by this time, Navy was bewildered to see True take the ball and dash 30 yards for a third touchdown, unmolested.

The Middies used nearly three full teams and yielded a fourth score before finally finding the answer to Army's barrage. By that time the Cadets were too far in front to be overhauled and getting weary besides. The Soldiers were reeling at the finish but still in there fighting and hanging on grimly to most of their tremendous early advantage.

GEORGIA TECH BEATS GEORGIA IN UPSET, 19-7

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Nov. 30.—After six lean seasons, the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech thundered to a 19 to 7 victory today over its neighboring enemy, the Georgia Bulldogs.

Grant Field Stadium was filled with close to 32,000 fans, the largest gathering for a football game here since Tech crushed Georgia 20 to 6 in 1928 and went on to defeat California in the Rose Bowl.

It was the thirtieth clash between the schools since 1893. Tech's triumph gave the Engineers a record of three victories and four losses in the Southeastern Conference race. Georgia finished with two triumphs and four defeats.

Georgia drove 80 yards for a touchdown in the first period and the Tornado retorted by traveling 79 yards for a touchdown in the second period. Tech made a further drive of 54 yards to Georgia's goal in the third and scored in the closing quarter from the 29-yard stripe after recovering a Bulldog fumble.

The Engineers, using very few of the razzle dazzle plays exhibited in previous games, resorted for the most part to straight forward passes, intermingled with a few submarine tosses back of the line and smashes at tackle and guard to achieve their triumph.

Georgia, after their lone touchdown, advanced to within scoring territory four other times, but were checked.

FORDHAM ELEVEN MAY GET AN INVITATION TO SUGAR BOWL GAME

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 30.—The unofficial word was whispered here last night that the Rams of Fordham would be the Eastern representative in the second annual Sugar Bowl game.

Fordham's prospects of an invitation definitely spurted forward following the rousing 21—0 triumph over the hitherto unbeaten Violets of New York University.

There was, of course, no official word to this effect because the Mid-winter Sports Committee has held no meetings and will not hold any until this Sunday night.

The tiniest bit of information that the committee would "consider" Fordham came from Warren V. Miller, chairman of the Sports Committee.

VALLEY CONFERENCE WILL MEET, DEC. 7

DES MOINES, Nov. 30.—The Missouri Valley Athletic Conference will hold its annual fall meeting at Topeka, Kan., Dec. 7 and 8, Scott Rowley of Drake University, president of the conference faculty representatives, said today.

Rowley announced that the conference will act upon St. Louis University's application for membership at the meeting. The admission of St. Louis would increase the conference to eight schools.

The 1935 football schedules will be arranged.

WASHINGTON VOTES AGAINST TULSA GAME

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Nov. 30.—There will be no post-season game between Washington University, St. Louis, and the University of Tulsa, school officials said today.

The Washington University Athletic Council has decided against the game to decide the Missouri Valley football title, which the two schools hold jointly, a telegram received here from James N. Conzelman, Washington coach, stated.

Selling Baseball.

ONE of the interesting features at the recent minor league convention at Dayton, O., was the baseball merchandising exhibit, designed to facilitate an exchange of ideas on how to sell the game to the public. George M. Trautman, president of the Columbus, American Association club, a Cardinal farm, was in charge of the exhibit and at one of the convention sessions he read a paper, pointing out that baseball was one of the few industries that had never made a serious effort to sell itself. He said it had not been necessary in the early days, but that there was so much competition now that the game, to survive as a profitable business, would be forced to adopt aggressive salesmanship.

L. C. McEvoy, vice-president of the Browns, does not approve of some of the ballyhoo methods and insists that the best way to make good in the baseball business is to give the public a better team. One of the favorite stunts in minor league territory in recent years has been the attendance prize. One club in the Texas League gave away approximately 30 automobiles last season.

"My contention is that such prizes make for artificial interest and do not help baseball as a game or as a business," McEvoy told the writer. "If such prizes swell attendance, the extra customers are merely persons interested in the gambling end of the attraction. They are paying their money for a chance on the automobile and such a practice makes baseball secondary.

Autos and Net Receipts

"I HAVE steadfastly refused to be a party to the giving away of automobiles or any other attendance prizes and in that connection let me tell you what happened in the Texas League during the last few days of the 1935 season. The club that made a practice of giving away automobiles feared that our late season series would not attract very large crowds and communicated with me, asking me to make an exception to my rule and approve the giving away of an automobile. I replied that I could not consistently agree to such a thing, because I was unqualifiedly against the practice.

"We went ahead and played the series and though we were rained out of one double-header during the series, our check for the games was a substantial one. On the other hand one of the other clubs in a late series, agreed to participate in the automobile attendance prize idea and when it got through paying its share of the cost of the car, its check for the series amounted to a few cents more than eight dollars."

McEvoy, by the way, does not expect any American League clubs to install lighting systems for night baseball for the next baseball season, which also means, probably, that there will be no night games at Sportsman's Park in 1936.

"Night baseball wouldn't help us," McEvoy said. "We know what will help us. If we can put a team on the field that will win we will get the necessary customers in daylight and that's how baseball ought to be played. Certainly a few extra customers, perhaps many of them, would be attracted by the novelty of night baseball. But veterans in the night game business will tell you that the novelty quickly wears off. In a two-league city, it would wear off twice as quickly as in a one-league city. Moreover I am convinced that if you play night baseball, your Sunday attendance will fall off.

"Perhaps some people will call me old-fashioned, but I believe that good attractive baseball is the best magnet to draw crowds. Free tickets for this and that and all the ballyhoo and attendance prizes may stimulate artificial interest for a time, but in the final analysis you have to give the public good baseball and the best possible team if you want the customers to come and continue to come to your ball park."

An Open Race to Hornsby.

ROGERS HORNSBY sees the Browns as the potential dark horse in the 1936 American League baseball derby.

"There isn't a standout team in the league," said the Rajah during a fanning bee. "You don't figure the Tigers as a standout team, do you, for pity's sake; just because they won two pennants in a row. I don't figure them as world beaters. There was a time when there was a top heavy club in the American League—when the Yankees were knocking over all opposition with Ruth, Gehrig, Meusel and a fine pitching staff and when Connie Mack had his great team.

"But anybody is liable to win since the league sort of leveled. We're not so bad off. Of course it's hard to get what you need, even if you don't need much, with good ball players as scarce as they are. But we did a lot of improving last season, after a bad start, and if we could be lucky enough to pick up a couple of young pitchers who could come through, we easily could be the surprise club of the American League race."

Despite all the rumors of sweeping changes in the business office personnel of the Browns, nobody seems to be worrying, and it is possible that there will be no changes. McEvoy's contract expires in April and all the uncertainty has been caused by the fact that Louis B. Von Weise, the big ice machinery man who doubles as president of the club, has not opened negotiations for renewing the contract.

It is possible that Von Weise plans to discontinue the office of business manager, delegating more authority and extra duties to Manager Hornsby. Meantime you couldn't blame McEvoy for looking around a bit. It is understood that Will Harridge, who is president, secretary and treasurer of the American League, would like to have McEvoy take over two of the portfolios. Perhaps at the December meeting the American League will ask McEvoy to become secretary and treasurer, requesting Von Weise to find himself another business manager. This would be fine for McEvoy and perhaps one of these days you'll see an ice machine pitching for the Browns, with cork insulation covering the outfield—unless George Sisler and his syndicate step in and change the set-up.

Twelfth Dartmouth Man—Maybe It Was Two Other Guys—Glares At Princeton From Close Range

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Princeton's most assiduous hater was able to glower at his enemy from an honor seat in the Yale bowl today despite his admission that it may have been a "couple of other guys" that tried to help Dartmouth turn back the Tiger last week.

Mike Mesco, the publicity-conscious hash slinger of Rahway, N. J., who earlier had "admitted" being the heroic spectator who jumped into the Dartmouth line when it seemed ready to crack under a Princeton charge, went to New Haven as a guest of the Yale Club.

Revelations that there were two other contenders for the "honor" failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the Yale men, who felt that Mike's terrible hatred of Princeton was a thing to be nurtured and encouraged.

Mike was willing enough to concede that he might be a clay-footed idol, and that the man who really bucked that line against Princeton last Saturday was someone else.

He didn't remember exactly what did happen, he said. All he knew was that his clothing looked as if it had been in a few scrimmages when he got home that night and on reading about the Horatian figure that had leaped from the stands he had concluded that it must have been he.

The two new contenders for the glory that was Mesco's were George Newcomer Larsen, Cranford, N. J., architect, and an unidentified student.

Larsen, whose name was placed in nomination by friends, said he had decided against disputing Mesco's claim because he feared that the publicity involved might place him in a distinctly unfavorable light with his employers.

The unidentified student was described by Austen Lake, sports commentator who had served as the official linesman in the Princeton-Dartmouth game, as a "kid with a frizzled crop of sandy hair, a peaked sallow face and weighing not more than 13. pounds."

THURSDAY WINS CLOSING DAY STAKE AT BOWIE TRACK

15,000 ATTEND DESPITE COLD; DANCING DOLL SPRINT VICTOR

By the Associated Press.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 30.—Selby L. Burch's six-year-old gelding, Thursday, with Johnny Gilbert in the saddle, today won the Bryan and O'Hara Memorial Handicap, mile and three-sixteenths feature of the final program of the major Eastern race season. The son of Mars, winner of the Riggs Handicap at Pimlico, gained revenge for his recent defeat by Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One, leading that fellow to the Judges by a length. Another length back came Walter M. Jeffords' three-year-old Firethorn, regarded as the second best of his age behind the retired champion, Omaha.

Some 15,000 fans braved cold weather to see the big event, which carried a purse of $5150 to the winner. Thursday, coupled with Mrs. Marion du Pont Somerville's Tweedledee, covered the long distance over a good, drying-out track in 2:02 3-5 under 115 pounds. The winning entry paid $6.60 for two.

The W. M. Jeffords entry of Firethorn and Judy O'Grady, trained by brother Preston M. Burch, closed a slight favorite over the winner. Firethorn, giving age and plenty of weight to the field, closed with a rush in the stretch to beat A. G. Vanderbilt's Purple Knight by a half length for the show position.

Johnny Gilbert, who won the stake in 1933 astride the ill-fated Chase Me, completed a double on Thursday.

The race was named for the builders of the Bowie track, and this was its fourteenth running.

Showing improvement over her last race, when she was soundly beaten by Cycle and others, Dancing Doll led home a fleet lot of sprinters in the fourth, a six-furlong handicap. The filly just lasted to beat Stocks a nose, her backers collecting at the rate of $20.70 for two. Cycle coupled with Nautch as the Howe Stable entry and heavily favored, was beaten eight lengths for the place. Nautch quit in his effort to catch the flying Dancing Doll. Stocks then closed with a rush on the inside and barely missed getting up.

Held Opponents to Two Goals in Five Games

Mickey Murray, the alert goalie of the Flyers, who will hold the net against the Tulsa Oilers at the Arena, tonight. Murray held the first three opponents of the Flyers scoreless, and yielded two goals in the next two games. The Flyers are undefeated thus far.

University City Soccer.

The strong Morris club, victor last Sunday by a 5-0 score, will oppose the Zeltmans, also victors a week ago, in the feature match of the University City Soccer League, at Heman Park on Olive Street road this afternoon. Most of the German Sport Club team are playing in the Morris club lineup. In the second game, the Stuarts oppose the Superiors.

BEAR FOOTBALL STARS READY FOR CAGE PRACTICE

Directed by a new coach, Hudson Hellmich, the Washington U. basketball squad this week goes into final practice sessions preparatory to the opening of the season on Dec. 10 against Notre Dame. The game will be played in the W. U. field house.

Hellmich, who was a star in both basketball and track at the University of Illinois, has been working out with the Bears since Oct. 28, teaching his freshmen and varsity players a new fast-breaking offense.

Outstanding Candidates.

Early practice sessions have found the following five showing up nicely against other teams: William Sauer and Vaughan DeVine, forwards; Richard Douglas and Dave Williams, guards, and Cedric Miller, center. Miller, Williams and Sauer were on last year's team. New candidates for varsity positions include Walter Moehle, forward; George Allemang, guard, and Myron Pankewer, forward.

Roy Martintoni, captain of the 1935 basketball team and a center on the football squad, will make his first official appearance with the basketball squad tomorrow. Along with him will be some other men from the football squad, Tommy Ozment, Ray Hobbs, Dwight Hafeli, Chick Droke and Mike Zboyovski. Because of a heavy schedule of studies, Bob Hudgens, star halfback, may not report for basketball this season.

17 Games on Schedule.

The Washington schedule calls for 17 games, only six of which will be played away from home. The schedule follows:

OPPONENT.	DATE.	AT
Notre Dame	Dec. 10	Home
Westminster	Dec. 14	Home

Billikens Open Their Basketball Season Thursday

Close upon the heels of the football season comes the opening of the basketball campaign for the St. Louis University Billikens, who are scheduled to start the winter grind next Thursday night when they play McKendree College of Lebanon, Ill., on the St. Louis U. floor.

Two days after the Billikens meet McKendree they will travel to Champaign to meet the University of Illinois five there. Other important games on the program are with Centenary College of Shreveport, La., De Paul and Loyola of Chicago, Missouri, Washington and Marquette.

Coach Mike Nyikos has six letter men left from last season's squad. They are Herb Fash, Henry Huettner, Red Henry Krause, Ben Putnam, John Vieth and Gus Cianciolo. Nyikos also is looking for more candidates from the football squad, which is due to report this week.

The schedule:

Dec. 5—McKendree, here.
Dec. 7—Illinois, there.
Dec. 14—Missouri, there.
Dec. 19—Washburn, here.

Feb. 25—Washington, here.
Feb. 27—Missouri, here.

Junior Boys' Basketball.

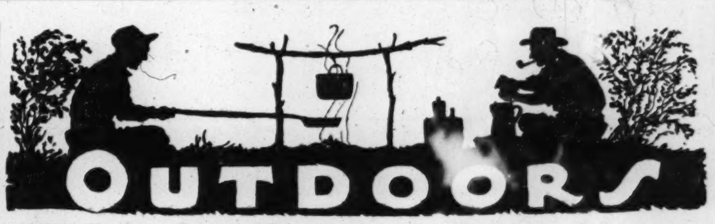
Junior boys basketball teams interested in joining a league where the entry fee is $2, get in touch with J. E. Dixon, 1409A Grattan street. The requirements are that players be in the 14 to 16 year old class, and that the team weight average be 125 pounds or less. Play will start Dec. 3.

THE PELICAN IS STAKE WINNER AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.—The Pelican, one time handicap performer for J. E. Widener, came through with a smashing victory today when he carried the silks of E. Sigman to victory in the six furlongs of the Baton Rouge Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

Well backed in the mutuels at $6.80 for $2, the five-year old gelded son of Haste stepped off the three quarters in 1:12 3-5 to reach the judges with a length to spare over Butsy Hernandez's Indiantown. Clyde Troutt's Lady Federal was in third place.

The race was largely a two-horse affair with Indiantown taking the early lead and the Pelican right at his heels. At the half-way mark, the Pelican jumped to the front and opened up a two-length advantage heading into the stretch with Indiantown in second place. In the drive for the judges, the son of Haste gave a little ground but had enough left to hold his rival at bay.



Wild Turkey Season Opens.

STARTING at sun-up this morning, wild turkey in Missouri became legal game if and when these wary birds can be found. The 1935 squirrel season closed at sundown last night.

With prospects none too bright for their bagging one of the large birds, many nimrods, however, have been eager for their annual one-month long chance at shooting a wild turkey. Veteran hunters, knowing that early season hunting generally is best, have planned to take advantage of the Sunday holiday to hit for the deepest woods where reports of turkeys have been most frequent.

State game and fish officials say there is no means of checking up on the actual number of hunters who go into the woods for wild turkeys each season but believe there will be no decrease in the number this season. Because the department has each year for the last several seasons, placed 500 or more birds into likely cover, the interest in turkey hunting in Missouri is believed to have increased although hunters say birds continue to be difficult to find. Many a wing bone of the late Thanksgiving turkey has been made into a caller during the last two days for use in attempts to lure one of the wild species into gun range.

This old-fashioned wing bone caller continues to be a favorite among hunters though only a well-practiced nimrod can use a caller of this type without frightening the birds. Small cedar boxes with a thin lip which is scraped over a resined area of a gun stock, walnut blocks in which an iron nail is driven and scraped over a whet stone, and hollowed-out blocks of cedar over which a resined lid is scraped all are common devices used in the hills for calling wild turkeys. Latex rubber such as dentists use to make rubber dams is sometimes stretched over small horseshoe shaped metal frames and used in one's mouth much like the callers operators of Punch and Judy shows use to change their voices to a high shrill pitch. Some hunters use their corn cob pipe stems; some hollow reeds. Some even are able to imitate the call of the wild turkey with their lips.

Good Duck Hunting in Arkansas.

Their own chances at getting any good waterfowl shooting gone, Missourians are somewhat chagrined at the reports of good shooting coming from Arkansas. A few who can afford to leave their business and bear the burden of the expenses of such a trip have gone from Missouri into these more Southern hunting areas where the season is yet open. Most of these excursionists report both good duck and goose shooting.

Most Missouri hunters, however, have been content to forget the poor waterfowl shooting season and have been busy with their quail dogs. Wing shooters continue to say the birds are fairly plentiful and the crop has shown a good increase over recent years.

Robert Holltway, secretary of the Missouri Public Service Commission, and a veteran wing shooter, reports that, with his hunting companion, he has bagged 90 quail thus far this season. He believes the birds somewhat lighter than at this time in some years past and attributes this to late hatches following none too good nesting conditions in early spring.

Earl Grubb, State-Federal highway commission official, of Dent County and Jefferson City, has been giving his dogs a heavy work out in Central Missouri this season and believes the quail crop fairly satisfactory.

Two quail hunters who became enmeshed in the game laws recently paid fines of $100 each in Justice Court at Fayette this week for exceeding the bag limit on quail and for having improper licenses. The two, John Dickerson of Kansas City, Kan., and Tom Knapp of Kansas City, had 48 birds in their possession when arrested. Game wardens had confiscated the pair's birds, dogs, guns and motor car when the arrests were made. All property, excepting the quail, was returned to the hunters after their fines were paid. The confiscated quail were given to hospitals and charitable institutions in Howard County.

Five Arrested for Illegal Seining.

Five men were arrested this week by game officials for seining in Sunshine Lake in Ray County. A net measuring more than 800 feet in length was confiscated. Sunshine Lake is a large body of water once a part of the Missouri River and is considered a good bass fishing site. Game officials have considerable difficulty keeping the waters there free from seiners as the lake's productivity and close proximity to the Kansas City fish markets made it desirable poaching grounds.

State and Federal authorities last week announced that plans underway for several months to establish a wild life research laboratory at the University of Missouri at Columbia with field laboratory embracing 2100 acres in Boone County had been completed, and that the project would be put underway soon. One of the first steps in this direction is the establishment of the laboratory in the $37,000 wild life research building adjoining Lefevre Hall (Biological Sciences) on the university campus.

Bids have been approved, and construction of the research building will be started within the next few weeks. The new building will provide office and laboratory space for members of the university staff engaged in the study of wild life problems, game and fish offices, and offices for associated Federal agencies.

Although no word has been forthcoming from State officials there is some belief that the State Conservation Department might ultimately be transferred to Columbia headquarters. This State Department, employing about 12 persons in the State Game and Fish Department offices in addition to nearly twice that number in forests and parks agencies of the Federal Government, has been in need of permanent quarters for many years. Because the Game and Fish Department receives its funds from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses and not from State revenue sources this department is one of the first to be forced to vacate its quarters in the statehouse when the Legislatures convene.

The department is always forced to pay its own rentals when it moves out, and this rental money comes from the hunter and fisherman. When the last Legislature left Jefferson City, Federal agencies and bureaus operating in Missouri, but for which the Federal government refuses to pay rent, took over the space in the Capitol formerly available to the conservation officials. As these rentals have at times run upwards of $200 a month this has meant a considerable drain on the game and fish departments funds.

Development of the field laboratory near Ashland, a few miles south of Columbia, will be operated by the Botany and Zoology Departments of the University as an arboretum and wild life management area under the supervision of the Resettlement Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture. F. E. Stanford will be project manager.

Nearly all of the land in the area, rated as submarginal, is under option and a crew of 100 men has started work on its development. A gravel road, dams, fences, firebreaks, and a field laboratory house will be constructed. Resident caretakers will be settled upon the land. They will pay their rent by patrolling the area and aiding in its development.

This area is not far from a State game farm project started about 1910 and abandoned a short time later.

MIAMI BOXING BODY SEEKS IDENTITY OF DEFEATED FIGHTER

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 30.—The Miami Beach Boxing Commission wants to know whom Joe Knight knocked out here Monday night in three rounds since Jack Kranz, Gary, Ind., fighter, says it wasn't he.

Knight's opponents signed his name as "Krantz" and fans generally thought he was the fellow who once stayed the limit with Joe Louis. Folks began looking into the situation after he was floored nine times and then knocked out by Knight.

The commission here received a telegram from the Illinois Boxing Commission that the real Kranz has not been out of that state or out of Indiana in three months.

Knight's opponent, whoever he was, weighed in at 189½. Frankie Hughes, Clinton, Ind., boxer who brought the fellow here for the bout said he still believed the fighter was the man he first was thought to be.

The Miami Beach Commission will continue its investigation.

HIGH SCHOOL GAME FOR CHARITY DRAWS A CROWD OF 25,000

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—Nearly 25,000 spectators cheered Collinwood High School to victory over Holy Name today, 21 to 6, in the fifth annual charity football game in Cleveland Stadium.

Before the game 1500 high school musicians from 22 bands paraded on the field.

The contest is sponsored by a newspaper (Plain Dealer) for a Christmas fund.

UNIVERSITY CITY PLAYERS READY FOR MIAMI TRIP

Nineteen players of University City High School's undefeated football team are eagerly awaiting next Wednesday afternoon when they will start their trip to Miami, Fla., where they will play Miami High in an intersectional contest next Saturday.

Besides the 19 players, Coach C. A. Muhl and his wife, Assistant Coach Henry E. Schemmer and parents of several of the players will be in the party. The group will arrive in Miami Friday and depart Monday, arriving back in St. Louis the following Wednesday.

University City's Indians have won seven games this season, defeating McKinley, Collinsville, Blewett, Webster, Normandy, Mount Vernon and Mattoon. They have scored 146 points to their opponents' 39. The Miami "Stingarees" have won five games and lost two, scoring 92 points to 51.

The Miami eleven plays many of its games with teams from other states, and this season has opposed three teams from Georgia, two from South Carolina, one from Alabama and the other from Florida. Their last game was lost to Boys' High, Atlanta, Ga., 19-7, before a crowd of 8000. The Miami team specializes on a passing attack, and runs its plays from a short punt formation.

University City will have a weight advantage of two pounds per player, averaging 165 to 163 pounds. The Indian backs average 170 to the Miami High's 154, while the Miami line outweighs the Indians, 168-167.

Packs May Bring Six-Day Races Here in February

St. Louis may have another six-day bicycle race in February, on a more elaborate scale than the grind which closed here Tuesday night, with Thomas N. Packs combining with outside interests in promotion of the event.

This fact was disclosed yesterday after Packs had a conference with Cecil Walker of Newark, N. J., who was identified with the recent Coliseum race.

Packs, it was learned, had been considering putting on a six-day race before announcement of the coming of the recent event was made. He had gone as far as to obtain detailed figures from Willie Spencer, a bike promoter who was identified with St. Louis' first show here three years ago.

Walker was asked yesterday to submit figures on the probable cost of a race, for comparison with Spencer's. It is understood that this was done, and although no negotiations were completed, it appeared likely that Packs would identify himself with Walker.

Fumes or Flavor?

Fumes offensive Flavor a Delight

Whiskey fumes on the breath are offensive to everybody. Get rid of the fumes and enjoy the flavor.

Use a tall glass, add 6 or 7 ounces of 7-Up. Pour gently. Nose it at once. The fumes shock. Note the millions of bubbles as they go up taking out the fumes.

After a minute nose again. No fumes—just flavor and a drink you will roll lovingly on your tongue. The hang-over went out with the fumes.

292 RECORDS TO BE PASSED UPON AT MEETING IN NEW YORK, DEC. 6

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Interes in a year of athletic records ma fade into the background at th convention of the Amateur Athlet
Union here, Dec. 6-8, if an expecte red-hot dispute over American pa ticipation in the 1936 Olympics
Berlin materializes.

Fifteen months ago the Ameri can Olympic Committee, of whic
Avery Brundage of Chicago is pre ident, accepted Germany's invit tion to compete. But since then r ports of renewed religious an racial discriminations in German have reopened the question.

Authority Limited.

Actually the A. A. U. can do noth ing to alter the decision of th
American Olympic body. The A
A. U.'s authority is limited to cer tification of the athletes Uncle Sam will send abroad.

The point at stake is whether th
A. A. U. will certify members o the American team. Failure to d so would shift that responsibilit to the International Olympic Com mittee, whose authority supersede all national bodies.

Safeguarding against a possibl adverse vote at next week's co vention, the International Commi
tee already has indicated it wi accept the candidates selected b the American Committee.

Brundage has been leading th defense of American participatio while the opposition almost fro the start has had the leadership o
Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president o the A. A. U., who comes up for r election. Within the last few week two of the three American mem bers of the International Commit tee have lined up with them.

Brigadier - General Charles H
Sherill, former Ambassador to Tur key, who investigated conditions i
Germany and conferred with Adol
Hitler, has taken sides with Brun dage, while Ernest Lee Jahncke former Assistant Secretary of th
Navy in President Hoover's admin istration, has joined the Mahoney boycott-faction.

There are 34 district association in the A. A. U. and, according t
Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer, majority has displayed an apatheti attitude toward the question.

Seven districts voted in oppositio to an American boycott, while fou favored it. The other 23 district did not vote. Opposition strengt lies in Eastern and Southern area
The Middle West is reported solidl in favor of participation.

If the question comes up at th convention it probably will b broached by the opposition, wit
Mahoney as standard-bearer an spokesman. If there is no discus sion, the A. A. U. will automaticall certify the athletes.

Passing on Records.

Among the major items of bus ness before the A. A. U. will b passing upon athletic records; th awarding of national championship and the selection of dates and site for Olympic trials. It is expecte the track and field trials will b combined with the national A. A. U championships.

Two hundred and ninety-two rec ords, constituting a record in them selves, will be presented for con sideration. They cover track an field, swimming and weight-liftin performances.

Ralph Flanagan, the Miam aquatic speedster, tops the record seeking candidates. He has sub mitted 20 free-style marks for adop tion. Adolph Kiefer of Chicago, th back-stroke marvel, is second wit 15.

Particular interest will center o the convention's action on the ex ploits of Jesse Owens, who last Ma 25 shattered three world figures an tied another in one afternoon. The were 0:09.4 for 100 yards, equal the world's record, and 0:20.3 f 220 yards flat; 0:22.6 for 220-ya hurdles and 26 feet 8¼ inches bro jump.

UNIVERSITY CITY PLAYERS READY FOR MIAMI TRIP

Nineteen players of University City High School's undefeated football team are eagerly awaiting next Wednesday afternoon when they will start their trip to Miami, Fla., where they will play Miami High in an intersectional contest next Saturday.

Besides the 19 players, Coach C. A. Muhl and his wife, Assistant Coach Henry E. Schemmer and parents of several of the players will be in the party. The group will arrive in Miami Friday and depart Monday, arriving back in St. Louis the following Wednesday.

University City's Indians have won seven games this season, defeating McKinley, Collinsville, Blewett, Webster, Normandy, Mount Vernon and Mattoon. They have scored 146 points to their opponents' 39. The Miami "Stingarees" have won five games and lost two, scoring 92 points to 51.

The Miami eleven plays many of its games with teams from other states, and this season has opposed three teams from Georgia, two from South Carolina, one from Alabama and the other from Florida. Their last game was lost to Boys' High, Atlanta, Ga., 19-7, before a crowd of 8000. The Miami team specializes on a passing attack, and runs its plays from a short punt formation.

University City will have a weight advantage of two pounds per player, averaging 165 to 163 pounds. The Indian backs average 170 to the Miami High's 154, while the Miami line outweighs the Indians, 168-167.

Packs May Bring Six-Day Races Here in February

St. Louis may have another six- ay bicycle race in February, on a nore elaborate scale than the grind hich closed here Tuesday night, ith Thomas N. Packs combining ith outside interests in promotion f the event.

This fact was disclosed yesterday fter Packs had a conference with ecil Walker of Newark, N. J., who as identified with the recent Colium race.

Packs, it was learned, had been onsidering putting on a six-day ace before announcement of the oming of the recent event was ade. He had gone as far as to tain detailed figures from Willie pencer, a bike promoter who was entified with St. Louis' first show ere three years ago.

Walker was asked yesterday to bmit figures on the probable cost a race, for comparison with pencer's. It is understood that is was done, and although no netiations were completed, it apared likely that Packs would entify himself with Walker.

OLYMPIC DISPUTE WILL COME BEFORE A. A. U. CONVENTION

292 RECORDS TO BE PASSED UPON AT MEETING IN NEW YORK, DEC. 6

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Interest in a year of athletic records may fade into the background at the convention of the Amateur Athletic Union here, Dec. 6-8, if an expected red-hot dispute over American participation in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin materializes.

Fifteen months ago the American Olympic Committee, of which Avery Brundage of Chicago is president, accepted Germany's invitation to compete. But since then reports of renewed religious and racial discriminations in Germany have reopened the question.

Authority Limited.

Actually the A. A. U. can do nothing to alter the decision of the American Olympic body. The A. A. U.'s authority is limited to certification of the athletes Uncle Sam will send abroad.

The point at stake is whether the A. A. U. will certify members of the American team. Failure to do so would shift that responsibility to the International Olympic Committee, whose authority supersedes all national bodies.

Safeguarding against a possible adverse vote at next week's convention, the International Committee already has indicated it will accept the candidates selected by the American Committee.

Brundage has been leading the defense of American participation while the opposition almost from the start has had the leadership of Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the A. A. U., who comes up for reelection. Within the last few weeks two of the three American members of the International Committee have lined up with them.

Brigadier - General Charles H. Sherill, former Ambassador to Turkey, who investigated conditions in Germany and conferred with Adolf Hitler, has taken sides with Brundage, while Ernest Lee Jahncke, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy in President Hoover's administration, has joined the Mahoney boycott-faction.

There are 34 district associations in the A. A. U. and, according to Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer, a majority has displayed an apathetic attitude toward the question.

Seven districts voted in opposition to an American boycott, while four favored it. The other 23 districts did not vote. Opposition strength lies in Eastern and Southern areas. The Middle West is reported solidly in favor of participation.

If the question comes up at the convention it probably will be broached by the opposition, with Mahoney as standard-bearer and spokesman. If there is no discussion, the A. A. U. will automatically certify the athletes.

Passing on Records.

Among the major items of business before the A. A. U. will be passing upon athletic records; the awarding of national championships and the selection of dates and sites for Olympic trials. It is expected the track and field trials will be combined with the national A. A. U. championships.

Two hundred and ninety-two records, constituting a record in themselves, will be presented for consideration. They cover track and field, swimming and weight-lifting performances.

Ralph Flanagan, the Miami aquatic speedster, tops the record-seeking candidates. He has submitted 20 free-style marks for adoption. Adolph Kiefer of Chicago, the back-stroke marvel, is second with 15.

Particular interest will center on the convention's action on the exploits of Jesse Owens, who last May 25 shattered three world figures and tied another in one afternoon. They were 0:09.4 for 100 yards, equal to the world's record, and 0:20.3 for 220 yards flat; 0:22.6 for 220-yard hurdles and 26 feet 8¼ inches broad jump.

Muny Football Elevens Play in Semifinal Games

Considered the odds-on choice to win the title early in the season, the Quadrangle Club will enter this afternoon's game against the White Lines in the fourth round of the Municipal Football Association's second half schedule, as underdogs. This contest will start at 3 o'clock after the Mordie Wolfs and the Weber-Deibel squads oppose each other at 1 o'clock on the drill grounds in Forest Park. The Lennemann Club draws the bye.

Regardless of the result, the Quads are assured of being in any title play-off as a result of winning the first half championship.

If the Quads win they practically clinch a tie for the second half title because they would be favored strongly over the Lennemanns in next Sunday's final round.

Injuries worry the Quads. Don Root, star passer and runner, and tackle John Spesia, have bad knees, while Barney Brimmer, right end, has a broken finger.

Mike Ritkewicz, leading scorer of the Muny season; Jack Carlson, former Cleveland all-star, and Ike Kieth of St. Louis University are the White Line scoring threats against Charley Burgess, Ray Bernsen, Larry Romano and Root, if he plays.

Shamrocks to Get Real Test in Match With Sparta Club, Today

JIMMY WOLF.

Chicago Soccer Team Has Won 11 and Tied One Game This Season — Wolf and Pearson Stars.

By Dent McSkimming.

Sparta of Chicago, undefeated in 12 games this season and setting the pace in the first division of the Chicago Soccer League, will take up the struggle against St. Louis' all-star Shamrock eleven at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. And it will be a struggle, for the Shamrocks are still irritated over their failure to defeat Slavia of Cleveland last Sunday, and they need the balm of victory to ease the chafing.

In two inter-city matches against high-class competition, the Shamrocks have scored six goals while holding the opposition to four. They defeated the Maccabees of Chicago, 4—2, and were held to a draw, 2—2, by Cleveland's Slavia eleven. Sparta promises to provide equally tough opposition, for the Czecho-Scottish combination has won 11 games and tied one out of 12 games played this season. St. Louis fans are sufficiently familiar with the players composing the Sparta team to know that the Shamrocks are in for a busy afternoon. The team is a sort of consolidation of old Sparta club and Wieboldt players—four from the latter team, among them Tom Scott and Bamba Tomich. It is the aggressive element injected into the Sparta club by the addition of these ex-Wieboldt stars that makes it far more dangerous than it has been in the past.

Lining Up Strong Opponents.

Looking forward to increased attendance as more fans become aware of the class of soccer being offered in these weekly inter-city matches, the management of the Shamrocks is lining up a schedule which includes visits by Pittsburgh, Detroit, Milwaukee, Philadelphia and New York clubs.

Alec McNab, coach of the Shamrocks, said yesterday that he is inclined to believe last Sunday's test against Cleveland will pay dividends this afternoon. "I expect our team to function better against Sparta," he said. "That tight Cleveland defense made us do a heap of thinking after the game and all week as to how we can improve our own team, and we all look forward to improvement. We haven't hit our best stride, and if we get moving right against Sparta we should pile up some goals."

Real Stars With Sparta.

There are a half dozen or more players in the Sparta lineup who may ze rated among America's best. Not the least of these is Einar Pearson, left halfback, who went so well against Scotland's all-star team last summer. Jimmy Wolf, inside left, is another who has played brilliantly against international clubs. Scott and Mrnka make a powerful pair of backs; Lillie and Munro a scheming right wing and Tomich, a useful, if not clever, center halfback. Vlcek, a master at ball control, has never been a prolific goal-getter, but he has found himself in his new post at center forward. It's a sound team from goal to outside left and the Shamrocks may need three or more goals to win. Scott, Pearson, Lillie and Wolf are expected to give outstanding performances.

BURKES PLAY MARRES FOR SECOND TIME

Three weeks ago, when the playing field was ankle deep in mud, the Spanish Sport Club soccer team handed the Marre club a 1—0 beating in their St. Louis Soccer League match. Today the teams meet for the second time this season and a rousing battle is expected. Both teams are stronger today than they were on the occasion of their previous meeting. The Spaniards, now playing under the name "Burkes," are undefeated this season and have had but one goal scored against them in the last three league games.

In the opening game of the double bill at National Softball Park, the Hellrung & Grimm club will oppose Frankie Vaughan's rebuilt Ben Miller team. Play starts at 2 p. m. The admission charge is 25 cents.

MUNICIPAL GRIDBALL LEAGUE WILL OPEN ITS SCHEDULE TODAY

Gridball teams, after delaying for one week the start of their first season as a City Recreation Department sport, will open their schedule this morning on the old Aviation Field in Forest Park with double-headers booked for 9:30 and 11:00 o'clock.

Last week's originally scheduled first-round games were played merely as exhibitions in an effort to test out the rules, most of the players being unfamiliar with them. As result of this trial four additional rules were passed. Generally speaking, the rules of intercollegiate football prevail, in this sport that many know better, probably, as touch football.

Other teams of five men to a side and five alternates are invited to post their entry fee and form one or more divisions.

Today's schedule follows:

9:30—Broken Down Bears vs. Tigers.
9:30—Tired Business Men vs. Watch and Ward.
11:00—Canoe Club vs Ramblers.
11:00—Octopus vs. Westreaks.

HOLY CROSS ELEVEN MAY PLAY ON COAST IN POST-SEASON GAME

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—Far Western football with its Rose Bowl and East-West classics, will add a new post-season game to its schedule, either next month or early in January, to be billed as "the Catholic national collegiate championship."

The powerful Holy Cross eleven, undefeated to date and favored to beat Boston College today, will be the first Eastern representative in the annual San Francisco game if it accepts an invitation already tendered.

Sponsors of the game, the local organization of the Knights of Columbus, hope to induce St. Mary's College to represent the West.

WEDDING AND AUTO RACES ON CARD TUESDAY

Weddings usually don't get in your hair when you are attending midget automobile races, but a couple will take the plunge at the Arena Tuesday night as an interlude to the sputtering competition of the motor cars. Marshall Lewis, who also drives automobiles, will be the groom and Miss Edna Jeanette Donnell the bride. The ceremony will take place at one end of the Arena after the time trials (by the automobiles) open the program.

SHAW-STEPHENS GIRLS TO MEET INDIANA QUINTET TODAY

When the Shaw-Stephens American Legion girls' basketball team of Maplewood opens its new season today at the Maplewood Senior High School Gymnasium, Coach Eddie Davidson will send his club against a new foe on the local schedule, the Indiana-Centrals of Hebron, Ind. The Indiana team is reported to have lost only one game last season and comes highly recommended.

HANDBALL LEAGUES WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Sixteen doubles teams, divided into two leagues, tomorrow will open the Noon Division of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Handball League. The winners of each league will meet for Noon Division title, the winners of which will play the winners of the Evening Division for the Branch championship.

The members of the teams are as follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE—N. J. Funk and J. A. Kenman; J. Tuvill and M. Levy; H. Richards and F. Zander; S. Wolff and J. Leventhal; C. E. Kurtzman and I. N. Kessler; S. Floun and W. J. McShane; M. Cunningham and M. Srenco; F. Wigert and J. Raymond.

AMERICAN LEAGUE—M. A. Shickman and C. Grossman; L. Meisel and H. Geers; D. Heffernan and G. Grosch; I. D. Newmark and W. B. Cohn; H. Feldman and J. Zawadzki; M. Lehr and N. Steinberg; A. Grosch and N. Cohen; H. Buschart and J. Corcoran.

COACHES WILL PICK ALL-STAR EAST SIDE TEAM

With football play in the Madison-St. Clair Conference completed for 1935, coaches of the seven schools composing the East Side circuit will gather at the Granite City Community High School next Tuesday night to select the All-Star football team. At least three players appear unanimous choices, while three others are almost certain of berths on the first eleven.

Heading the list of candidates is "Fat" Harrison, captain and end on the championship Alton team. Harrison was a member of the mythical eleven last season. Harrison is a valuable man and it is possible he may be shifted to a tackle berth, where he performs equally as well as at end. Archie Kodras, center, and Ralph Bennett, fullback, other members of the Alton squad are likely to be selected.

The Skinner brothers, Russell and Charles, of Madison, are two other outstanding eligibles. Charles will probably get the call at the quarterback berth, while Ralph plays an end position. Seager, Belleville tackle, appears a logical choice for one of the positions, while Counsil, Wood River; H. Jones, Alton, and Allen, Alton, are candidates for the other.

Plenty of Good Guards.

Probably the hardest task confronting the coaches will be the selection of guards. Reynolds, Alton; Jennings Musick, East St. Louis; Wally Weggner, East St. Louis; Bill Field, Collinsville; Turner, Granite City, and the possible shifting of Holtscher, Granite City, center to ugard, are players worthy of the award.

Halfbacks will also occupy much attention as six players rate consideration. Bill Usinger, Alton; Ralph Bridges, Collinsville; Hudson, Wood River; Eubanks, Granite City; Geolet, Belleville, and Lee Freant, East St. Louis, are the outstanding candidates.

Coaches who will attend the meeting include: Ray Jackson, Alton; Hubert Tabor, Belleville; H. R. Barton, Wood River; Lawson Fletcher, Collinsville; Jack Nolen, East St. Louis; Byron Bozarth, Granite City, and Karl Beringer, Madison.

Schedules for the coming basketball season will be arranged.

Alton's Hilltoppers will be officially awarded the 1935 football championship.

OTIS THOMAS DUE TODAY FOR STRIEBEL BOUT

Otis Thomas, Chicago Negro, who is to meet Irwin Striebel, South Side butcher boy, in an eight-round bout at the Coliseum Wednesday night, is scheduled to arrive here today but will not take his first workout until tomorrow, when he will go through his paces at the West End Gymnasium.

It will be a return engagement between the pair, for they boxed in the National Amateur tournament at the Arena last April, with Thomas winning by a shade after three bristling rounds.

Since that time both men have turned professional and have met with success in the money game. Thomas has grown in weight since last he met Striebel and it is likely that eight hard rounds are in prospect for the South Sider on Wednesday.

Striebel, fast and a good boxer for a man who weighs 235 pounds, does not seem to have the punch to put the Negro down, while Thomas is a good puncher.

To ringsiders it appeared that Striebel was the winner in the amateur bout, however, and unless Thomas has improved greatly, Irwin should have a fine chance to outpoint him.

The contest is the main event of a five-bout card to be presented by Solly Kessler's Twentieth Century Sporting Club. Elmer Savage and Merl Thompson, two St. Louis featherweights, are to box eight rounds; Joey La Pelle, Louisville, is to meet Scrap Caster of Alton, in another six-round featherweight contest, while Ocie Merritt, St. Louis, boxes Young Simington six rounds. The last-named two are lightweights. Another battle is a heavyweight affair between Babe Davis, St. Louis, and Frankie Smith of Fort Worth, Tex., which is also scheduled for six rounds.

Want Basket Games.

Basketball teams desiring games with the Club Five of Maplewood, are asked to communicate with Roy Singler, Club Barber Shop. The team is composed of former Maplewood High School stars.

St. Louis Football Prospects for 1936 Bright With Nucleus of 31 Players of Varsity Experience

By James M. Gould

In college football as in major league baseball, the use of the slogan "Wait till next year" is not exactly unknown. When hopes for one season don't pan out as per Summer hope and the season itself goes a bit sour, there's always a "next year" to plan for and to be hopeful of. It's so with the St. Louis University Billikens, though there are many who can find a lot of good in their 1935 campaign.

But, this campaign is over and the defeat by Washington is doing its very best rankling; the next season, though far in the offing, looks mighty good in "prospective".

Reasons for Hope.

One of the chief reasons for the St. Louis U. football men getting a real Billiken grin ready for next year lies in the very small toll taken of the varsity football squad and the presence on the present freshman squad of several likely performers who appear sure to measure up to varsity caliber. Just three sturdy regulars are lost to the Billikens because of impending graduation—Henry (Red) Krause, a whale of a center; Carl Wood, a neat halfback who, next year may be in a West Point plebe's uniform and Halfback Harold Hudson, captain of the 1935 team and a player who, earnest and hard working, lacked weight to be a star performer. There are sure replacements for Wood and Hudson in the backfield and a fine possibility for a center—Gorman of the freshmen—who may tie the record made by Krause for consistent and brilliant service. McGonigle, a frosh back, "has everything" and displayed it in the game with the Washington freshmen this season. He can kick, hit the line, pass and run like a deer. Also coming up are Hagen and Geyer, linemen and they'll put up real fights for varsity berths. However, sophomores are still sophomores and most varsity squads run more to the experience of junior and senior players as regulars. And, the list of experienced men on the St. Louis squad is long and encouraging.

In the backfield of 1936, the Billikens will have these veterans: Louis Drone, Ed Drone, Woodrow Herrmany, John Nunn, Red Hemp, Bob Shea, Norman Kloepper, Jack Veith, Charley Harris and Francis Kane. Then, on the line will be such stalwarts as ends, Fitzgerald, Cagle, Mitchell, Gregory, Best, and Ruhl; at tackles, Diffley, Cianciolo, Baker, Neff and Rossini with John Hartman, hero of the De Paul game and Frank Padjen at center.

Veteran guards returning also are numerous. Among them are Oates, Yates, Keleman, Genova, Vollmer, Banfield and Putnam. So, there'll be a group of some 31 with which to mix with freshman candidates.

Undoubtedly, with all this experience on the 1936 squad, chief efforts will go to the construction of a scoring-attack. The defense has proved itself worthy on many a hard-fought gridiron this season but, against teams of equal defensive ability, the offense has been a bit less than mediocre. Nor has there been anything wrong with the spirit and morale of the Billiken team this year. It has really been splendid. The work of Coaches Muellerleile and Pike cannot be criticised on analysis. They just didn't have the backs to give them a punch even though the forwards gave them a real chance to get going.

Howard Jones Speaks.

Howard Jones, of Southern California, is rated high among the coaches of the country. At Chicago, recently, answering a question as to why his Trojans weren't going as well as usual, he told the writer "haven't got my usual material and if you haven't got that no coach in the country can supply the lack." If Muellerleile did nothing else—and he certainly did many other helpful things—he instilled into his players as fine a fighting spirit as that of any team in the country. Muellerleile's young but he did a mighty fine job whether or not it looks just that way at just this time to the disgruntled alumnus who, perhaps, dropped a bit of spare cash on the Thanksgiving day game.

Football at St. Louis University then, can "point with pride" instead of "viewing with alarm" the season of 1936. The addition of a back like McGonigle with the experience gained this year by such ball-carrier as Ed Drone, Nunn Harris and some others gives opportunity for the development of a real attack. As has been inferred, the defense already is great.

The 1936 Billiken schedule is more or less tentative but games with Washington and Missouri are certain with Xavier, Mississippi, Creighton and Marquette more than likely.

STANFORD WILL NAME OPPONENT FOR ROSE BOWL GAME, MONDAY

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 30.—Stanford's Rose Bowl opponent for the annual New Year's day intersectional football game probably will be chosen Monday, Al Masters, graduate manager, said on arrival here yesterday to set up a ticket office.

"I am returning to Palo Alto tonight," Masters said, "and there probably will be no announcement to be made until I return here on Monday."

He declined to affirm or deny reports that Notre Dame and Louisiana State were being considered as members of the thinly spread list of eligible teams. Each of these teams has suffered a defeat this season and Notre Dame was held to a tie besides.

In the meantime the majority of the western football followers continued to express partiality in the victor of the game today at Fort Worth between two undefeated elevens, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian.

"I've stopped trying 'former ten centers'"

"I TRAVEL A LOT in my business, and I've always had trouble getting a cigar that suited me. I've tried all the former ten centers, reduced to a nickel, all the 'Havana blends' and 'imported-tobacco' cigars. Every now and then I'd find one I liked, then be disappointed the next time I tried it. Even in the same box, the cigars would vary in quality—some good, some bad.

"So, when I read about Vintage filler tobacco, I tried some White Owls. That was over a year ago, and I'm still smoking them. I buy them in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia—or any place I happen to be—and I've yet to get a bad one. I'll go on record for Vintage White Owls, any time. It's the mildest cigar ever."

JOHN K. LAGEMANN, Quincy, Ill.

Vintage Tobacco always is mild, mellow

VINTAGE TOBACCO—like Vintage Wine—is always mild and fragrant . . . nature made it that way. That's why a Vintage cigar tastes so good.

White Owl maintains a vast crop inspection system, the only known organization of its kind in the world . . . keeps track of growing tobacco . . . reports soil and climatic conditions. At harvest time we know when and where Vintage tobacco is maturing.

Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls. All this care means every White Owl is uniformly mild. No other cigar can assure you of a Vintage-quality filler. Try a Vintage White Owl today . . . you'll like its Vintage taste.

HOGS AND LAMBS ARE HIGHER FOR THE WEEK

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Nov. 30 (U. S. Department of Agriculture.) —

Slightly lower prices on hogs during the early trading of the past week were more than offset by advances scored later and closing deals reflected 25@40c advance in most instances as compared with the previous Friday, some lights up 50c. Sows were mostly 25c higher. Receipts approximated 33,500, as compared with 44,850 the previous week and 63,486 the corresponding week last year. Friday saw the highest point of the week with a $9.95 top, closing sales of 170-270 lbs. largely $9.70@9.90, while 140-160 lbs. were quotable at $9.75@9.90 and 110-130 lbs. $9.25@9.75. Lighter stuff of 80 to 100 lbs., $8.50@9, with sows varying from $8.50@9. A year ago this week tops ranged from $5.85@6.20.

Saturday's market was as follows: Hogs—Receipts, 1200; direct, 500; few hogs on sale and trading mostly steady to slightly easier than Friday's average; top, $9.90 for choice lights with 170-230 lbs. $9.90@90, largely $9.75@80; few around 150 lbs., $9.90, and some 83-lb pigs $8.50; sows quitable $8.50@9; compared with last Friday, hogs 25@40c higher; some lights up 50c; sows 25c higher.

HORSES AND MULES.

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Nov. 30.—Steady to easier prices prevailed in horses and mules the past week. Receipts were fair, commission arrivals aggregating 525 horses and 250 mules.

Best quaity cotton mules and good sized colt mules sold well, but other kinds easier. All kinds of broke horses were more difficult to sell than the week before and some classes of unbroke stock eased off.

Good young mares and big fillies, though still selling at a fairly good level, were nevertheless, off from recent trading. Clearance was satisfactory in all classes.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $120@150; medium to good draft, $90@110; good to choice chunks, $95@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $70@90; young farm mares, $90@115; southern mares, $50@85; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, $80@125; colt mules, small, $50@75; draft mules, $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules over 3 years old, $40@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCKYARDS.

HOGS—Compared with last week hogs 15@25c higher.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Fairly active demand for copper developed in the past week, apparently influenced by trade rumors of a prospective price advance, although quotations remained at the basis of 9¼ cents for electrolytic, Connecticut Valley.

The better statistical position as a result of increased consumption was regarded as being the basis for the better tone, but more conservative trade quarters were cautioning against too rapid advance in prices, which are now 1¼ cents above the summer low. The foreign market has thus far failed to respond to the buoyancy here.

Lead smelters booked a substantial day-to-day business at unchanged prices. The sales total for the week was estimated at 8000 tons against 10,000 tons in the preceding period.

Announcement that there would be no change in tinplate prices for 1936 despite recent expectations to the contrary in some quarters, was the feature of the tin market. Prices were practically unchanged.

Although consumption of zinc is maintained at an active rate, users have limited new buying while absorbing previous heavy purchases. The market has been quiet and prices unchanged.

Antimony was dull, with business limited to small filling-in lots only. Prices were steady after the recent sharp decline.

The reaffirming of prevailing finised steel prices for first quarter despite recent expectations for an advance failed to have an immediate reflection in steel ingot production. Steel men are predicting a sustained activity owing to the favorable outlook for orders from automobile manufacturers.

SMALL PRICE DECLINE IN COTTON AT WEEK-END

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Further liquidation and scattered hedging were absorbed by the trade on declines of 6 to 9 points in cotton today.

There was considerable selling at the opening in response to lower markets abroad, which was increased by some selling here through houses with foreign connections. The pressure was attributed chiefly to week-end hedging and further liquidation. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 285,000 bales against 127,000 last year.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 30.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 11.80c compared with 11.85c yesterday. Sales amounted to 9252 bales.

ITALIANS BOUGHT MORE IRON AND STEEL IN OCT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—A substantial October gain in Italian purchases of United States iron and steel was shown today in Commerce Department figures.

Continuing at high levels, Italy took 44,301 gross tons in that month, compared with 40,432 in September and 18,021 tons in October, 1934.

The Italian October purchase was more than half of all the European purchases of 80,816 tons, which, in turn, was 40 per cent of the 238,358 tons shipped from the United States throughout the world.

The administration, through both President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, has made repeated pleas to industry to halt shipments to either Italy or Ethiopia of materials useful for war purposes. The Shipping Board has taken positive action in this direction where vessels in which the Government has a financial interest are involved.

Further Government action directed at "abnormal" exports to the belligerents has been hinted in semi-official quarters.

Total October exports of scrap iron and steel were down slightly from the previous month, but continued above the same month last year. September shipments this year were 244,419 tons, while October (1934) shipments were 222,207 tons.

While Japanese purchases of the metal were at lower levels than in previous months, she was still the heaviest single purchaser, buying 52,992 tons in October.

PLAN TO LIMIT NEWSPAPER COVERAGE OF COURT OPPOSED

New York Judge Says Proposal Strikes at Those Making "Circus" of Courtrooms.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 30. — A proposal to restrict newspaper coverage of courts so sharply that attorneys might be barred from discussing cases with reporters drew such a protest at a meeting of the State Judicial Council here today that Chief Judge Frederick E. Crane of the Court of Appeals later commented, "Perhaps this is too broad."

Photographers could be barred from courthouses and statements on a trial would be limited to "a statement of the issues involved as the latter are shown by the pleadings, indictment or information" filed in the case.

Harvey Deuell, managing editor of the New York Daily News, denounced the proposal as "The entering wedge to bar reporters from the court."

Presiding Justice Francis Martin of the Appellate Division said he understood the sponsors would reframe the proposal because they considered it too broad. The proposal was made by the County Lawyers' Association of New York City.

Judge Crane, as chairman of the Judicial Council, explained the purpose was "to preserve the court as a court; to help us keep courtrooms in order, so that courts do not become simply an adjunct to the press," and to strike only those "who have been making a circus of the courts."

TWO SENTENCED FOR FRAUD

Officers of Investment Firm Get 3 and 5 Years.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 30.—United States District Judge Robert C. Baltzell sentenced two officers of a defunct investment firm whose operations were described as a "million dollar fraud" to prison today.

Myron M. Hughel, president of Pfaff & Hughel, Inc., received a five-year sentence and a $3000 fine. Walter P. Pfaff, chairman of the board, received a three-year sentence and a $2000 fine. Both were convicted of using the mails to defraud. Mrs. Georgia Crosley, wealthy Indianapolis widow, the Government alleged, was defrauded of almost $800,000.

YOUTH WHO GRABBED STEERING WHEEL DIES OF AUTO INJURY

Raymond Holley, Negro, Succumbs at City Hospital No. 2; Car Hit Light Standard.

Raymond Holley, 19 years old, a Negro, died at City Hospital No. 2 yesterday of a broken neck suffered Thursday afternoon when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into a city light standard in the 4400 block of Greer avenue.

Holley, who resided at 4328 Cook avenue, was riding in the front seat of a car driven by Robert Harris, Negro, 4234 West Cote Brilliante avenue. When Harris swerved the car to avoid hitting some children, Holley grabbed the steering wheel, causing Harris to lose control of the car.

Harris and four other Negroes who were also riding in the car received only minor injuries.

$216.40 PAID TO 35 BOYS IN ONE WEEK

Post-Dispatch Young Salesmen Share Largest Earnings Since Start of Sales Plan

Thirty-five ambitious, energetic boys shared total earnings of $216.40 last week—the largest group of boys to participate in the liberal earnings offered by the Post-Dispatch Young Salesmen's League since this sales plan started. Especially commendable are the records and earnings of the following hustlers:

Louis Miramonti	$18.00
Pete Elias	17.00
Harold Ross	14.00
Joe Pierce	13.50
Luther Blevins	12.00
Ed McClelland	11.00
John Nicely	9.50
Harold Iserman	9.50
Leonard Sanna	9.00
Nolan De Woskin	8.50
Roy Miller	8.00
Sanford Postlewait	7.00

Five of these boys were newly enrolled Young Salesmen, whose earnings represented their first week of work. Five others had been working for only two weeks. Only two had been enrolled for a longer period.

Any Alert Boy Can Show Equally Substantial Earnings

Only one quality—the will to work—is necessary for any ambitious boy to equal or better the amounts earned by many newly enrolled members of the Young Salesmen's League. The sales plan itself is dignified and honorable; the training is thorough and carefully directed; the earnings offered are substantial. Boys willing to devote sincere spare-time effort can earn enough to make themselves wholly or partly self-sustaining while going to school.

School boys, 16 years of age and older, living in St. Louis, East St. Louis and St. Louis County, who are not now engaged in the sale or delivery of the Post-Dispatch, are eligible to enroll in the Young Salesmen's League. You may arrange for an appointment to learn complete details by forwarding the coupon below or by telephoning MAin 1111, Station 406.

This marks the second expansion of the premises of the Kingshighway structure, erected in 1928 at a cost of more than $1,000,000, including that of the site. Following the purchase of the original site of the building, the concern acquired 25 by 160 feet of ground, adjoining on the south. Plans of the building, then being drawn, were enlarged to embrace the additional lot.

Sears, Roebuck & Company also operates a major department store at the southeast corner of South Grand boulevard and Winnebago street, housed in a three-story fireproof building, also erected in 1928 at a cost of $1,000,000, including the site. The South Side store has a frontage on Grand boulevard of 200 feet, with parking space in the rear extending through to Arkansas avenue.

Erected at the same time, the two department structures were forerunners of a group of smaller stores established by Sears, Roebuck & Co. at strategic points in the outlying parts of the city and in St. Louis County. BONDALL COMPANY BUYS BUILDING AT 500 BITTNER

New Concern Acquires Structure on a Three and One-Half Acre Site From the United States Rubber Company.

The Bondall Co. has concluded negotiations for the purchase of an industrial building at 500 Bittner street in the section east of Broadway in North St. Louis, formerly occupied by the United States Rubber Co., which owned it. The site comprises three and a half acres, with a Terminal Railroad switch tracks. The transaction was handled by the Breitt & Naumer Real Estate Co., which declined to disclose the purchase price.

Built by the rubber corporation to provide for its local requirements, the building is a substantial two-story fireproof daylight structure, containing 70,000 square feet of floor space. It is equipped with sprinkler system, high-pressure boilers, etc.

The Bondall Co., of which Charles A. Niemeyer, a director of the First National Bank, is president, was recently formed to manufacture brake linings, clutch facings, moulded rubber and asbestos material. It will be the only concern in St. Louis specializing in the manufacture of these articles. It was stated that the new plant would be in operation Jan. 1, 1936. Meantime the building will be altered and equipped to meet the requirements of the new owner. The location is about 7200 North.

Other officers of the company include Carl Forline, vice-president; George I. Parrish, treasurer, and F. W. Bitterman, secretary. Both interests were represented by the Breitt & Naumer Co.

REAL NEED IS SAID TO BE $4000 HOUSES

Most of Present Construction Believed in $6000 and Up Class.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Figures showing the extent of recovery so far in the housing industry and the long road yet to go have inspired analysts to investigate possibilities of the expansion in a new light. There were some 66,000 dwelling units erected in the first 10 months of this year, an increase of 112 per cent over all of 1934, but the "Normal" needs for housing would require an estimated 750,000 to 1,000,000 dwelling units a year for the next 10 years, it is shown by various surveys. Most of the present construction is believed to be in the price range of $6000 and up, yhereas most commentators declare the real need is for housing from $2500 to $6000—mostly $4000.

O. H. JONES VICE-PRESIDENT OF WENZLICK ORGANIZATION

Orin H. Jones, sales manager of the Wenzlick Real Estate Company from 1921 to 1930, has returned to the organization as its vice-president. He is a native St. Louisian.

Among the interesting plans Jones has for taking advantage of the stimulated real estate market is the introduction of a new listing system, known as Keysort, for which the Wenzlick Sales and Management Organization, Inc., holds the exclusive license to use in St. Louis. Following a short period of training of the new sales force, an interesting announcement regarding this listing system will be made by Mr. Jones to the public.

LINDBERGH-GRAVOIS DISTRICT TRACT SOLD

Elizabeth DeWitt Acquires 38 Acres in Sappington Five Miles West of City.

A tract of 38 acres on the east side of Lindbergh boulevard, approximately a mile south of Gravois road in Sappington, St. Louis County, has been purchased by Elizabeth DeWitt. The improvements consist of a frame house and outbuildings.

The purchase, it was stated, was made as a speculative investment. The land is part of 2000 acres acquired by the late John Sappington in 1806.

Sappington Inn, for many years a landmark at the junction of Gravois and Denny road (now Lindbergh boulevard) was torn down in May, 1933, to make way for the widening of Gravois road from 20 to 40 feet. The State Highway acquired the entire site of the Inn, a rectangular plot bounded by Gravois, Denny and Sappington roads, converting it into a small park. The building demolished was the third to occupy the site. The first was a log cabin which was used as a gathering place of farmers of the district.

Sappington is about five miles west of the city limits.

The transaction was handled by Thomas J. Johnson & Company, Inc., real estate agents with offices at 4540 Gravois avenue.

HOUSE AT NO 8 CRESTWOOD DR. BOUGHT BY GASTON F. DU BOIS

Mary Potter Love, Inc., reports the sale of No. 8 Crestwood for Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Clardy and Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hager to Mr. and Mrs. Gaston F. Du Bois.

Mr. Du Bois is vice-president in charge of research and development of the Monsanto Chemical Company. Mr. Du Bois is a native of Switzerland.

The house was designed by Maritz, Young & Dusard, Inc., for the late Horace R. Culling. It was sold by his heirs. It is of red brick and is one of the most attractive houses in the Moorlands. It occupies a lot 100 by 210 feet, has nine rooms and three baths, with terazzo over the first floor.

NINE NEW FIRMS ESTABLISHED IN CITY

8 Expansions Noted in October in Chamber of Commerce Report.

Nine new business firms were established in the St. Louis industrial district during October, and eight established enterprises reported expansions, according to a monthly report issued yesterday by the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

The new firms and expansions represented an added investment of $253,000 and the addition of 104 new employes. As a result, 229,500 square feet of existing floor space has been absorbed and 50,000 square feet of new space constructed.

The new firms are: Shoe Dressings, Inc., 6908 Manchester avenue; American Metal Barrel Co., 5027 McKissock avenue; a branch office of Astrup Co. of Cleveland, O., 1909 Locust street; branch office of First Bancredit Corporation of St. Paul, Minn., at 1218 Olive street; Oberjuerge Rubber Distributing Co., 408 Market street; Grain Products Corporation, 615 North Main street; W. Helfensteller & Associates, Inc., 1217 St. Louis Mart Building; Cable-Grip Corporation, 116 North Eighth street, and a branch office of Babcock & Wilcox Co. of New York, 1809 Railway Exchange Building.

MOVEMENT TO EXTEND REPAIR INSURANCE SEEN

Housing Administration's Authority to Insure Modernization and Repair Notes, to Expire.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—A move to extend the time limit on insurance of modernization loans under the Federal Housing Act is expected in the coming session of Congress.

The housing administration's authority to insure modernization and repair notes under Title 1 of the act expires April 1.

The mortgage insurance section of the law, however, was drafted as a permanent program, designed eventually to be self-supporting from the proceeds of insurance fees.

Sentiment in Federal Housing quarters was said to be strongly in favor of extending the modernization time limit to the end of 1936 to permit operations to continue under the momentum acquired this year.

Nearly $200,000,000 in modernization and repair notes have been insured. Housing officials estimate expenditures generated by the loans amount to four or five times the total actually insured.

Critics of the housing act contend it has fallen far short of the aims originally outlined. Friends of the program, on the other hand, pointed out much of the time since the act was passed last year was spent in preparation and that only since last spring has the country begun to feel its real power.

Some supporters of modernization insurance forecast proposals to extend the time limit would meet little opposition, at least among the administration's far-flung housing forces.

Losses under the Title 1 so far are said to have been negligible, although officials conceded more experience was necessary to indicate how much the Government stands to lose from its guarantees.

In recent months, insurance of new construction loans has assumed increasing importance. But FHA officials say indications point to a large remaining field for repair work, considering the small amount of maintenance during the worst depression years.

INSURED MORTGAGE BONDS, A FHA IDEA

Experts Have Nearly Completed a Trust Indenture — Wholly New It Is Called.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Mortgage experts of the Housing Administration have nearly completed a trust indenture described as "wholly new to the mortgage world" and plan to announce it soon in hope it would accelerate low-cost housing construction.

It was conceived as an instrument to facilitate financing of large-scale projects through sale of insured mortgage bonds in relatively small amounts to the average investor.

The FHA insures low-cost housing mortgages up to $10,000,000. About a dozen projects, involving about $25,000,000, have been approved for insurance but the program generally has snagged on the reluctance of institutions to provide such large sums for single real estate projects.

At any rate, that is the explanation given by FHA authorities. They hope to cut through that difficulty with the new trust indenture.

Much care and caution have been lavished on it, in recognition officials said, of the "unpleasant aroma" surrounding memories of real estate bond issues.

The FHA holds it has adequate power to sponsor the new indenture and to promote use of it by the financial community. Assuming it becomes popular, authorities predicted it would encourage private enterprise in low-cost housing and bring down the long-time interest rate for such projects.

Housing experts hold that a drop of one-half of 1 per cent in fixed debt charges over the long run would mean more in reducing rent than a cut of 10 per cent in building costs.

REAL ESTATE LOANS BY BANKS INCREASE

Whether Coincidence or Otherwise Modest Gains Follow Bank Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Small but persistent gains in real estate loans have been recorded in recent weeks for member banks of the Federal Reserve System in leading cities.

Whether through coincidence or otherwise, the modest expansion has taken place mostly since the passage of the 1935 banking act, which liberalized powers of member banks in lending against real estate.

The real estate provisions of the bill were designed to encourage banks to invest more of their time funds in mortgages and to stimulate building revival.

Records of the Housing Administration reveal that more than 41 per cent of the mortgages accepted for insurance have been handled by national banks, all of which are required to belong to the Reserve System.

State banks handled about 27 per cent of the total insured since the inception of the FHA's "single mortgage system," providing for amortization of loans over a long period, and nearly 17 per cent by savings and loan associations.

Mortgage companies handled only about 2 per cent and savings banks 5.5 per cent.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY FOR SALE

HANLEY RD.
LAKE FOREST
CLAYTON ROAD

This Distinguished Residential Development Has a Most Convenient Location . . .

On CLAYTON and HANLEY ROADS

LAKE FOREST

Until recently Lake Forest was a private estate flanked by modern highways and surrounded by exclusive homes. The unusual natural beauty and perfect location of the property made it ideal for residential development. Both public and private schools are close by. Stores and neighborhood essentials are convenient. Churches of every denomination are in the vicinity. Street cars, service cars and other transportation facilities are available, and it is but 20 minutes from downtown by automobile!

Evidence of the desirability of living in Lake Forest is indicated by the alacrity with which these homes have been accepted. Today there are only a few homes remaining, and if you would join this distinguished colony, we urge an early visit.

Drive Out to Clayton and Hanley Roads This Afternoon and See These Homes. We welcome visitors.

SPECIALS

IN USED CARS TODAY

Many late-model cars, in splendid condition, have been traded in on the new 1936 Buick. Now is the time to take advantage of a buyers' market. We must move these cars to make room for others. Below are just a few:

1935 BUICK SEDAN—Built-in trunk, Series 40; black; good rubber; looks and runs like new; save 50 per cent; written guarantee.

1934 BUICK 5-PASS. COUPE—Built-in trunk; black; 6-ply rubber. This is an outstanding car; a demonstration will prove it.

2—1933 PLYMOUTH—5-passenger cars

2—1932 PLYMOUTHS—P.B.'s — 2 coaches, 1 sedan, 1 coupe; all in A-1 condition; good, economical cars going at the right price.

We have a large selection of Fords, Chevrolets and Plymouths and 20 others priced from $79.50 to $200. Come in and look them over.

CONGRESS will be asked soon aft thorize the expenditure by the F 000 for the proposed memorial Western pioneeers on the St. Louis who failed recently after nearly three an executive order pledging the Go three-fourths share of the total cos with a delegation of St. Louisans d for the long-delayed project.

Dickmann and members of the St. Louis committee promoting the memorial were told before they left Washington, when the last hope of obtaining President Roosevelt's signature to an order authorizing a start on the work had faded, that it would be no easy task to get Congress to approve an appropriation for the memorial.

Attitude of Congress.

They were warned there would be many obstacles, and chief among them the attitude of Congress at the time a resolution was first introduced creating a national commission to draw up plans for the memorial. When economy-minded Representatives suggested that Congress would eventually be asked to finance the memorial, it was denied on behalf of the sponsors of the St. Louis project that demands would be made on the Government.

Representative John J. Cochran of St. Louis sponsored the resolution at the request of Mayor Dickmann. First Dickmann and the St. Louis group had come to Cochran and Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri with a resolution calling for an appropriation of $35,000,000 for construction of the memorial. Cochran advised Dickmann it would be impossible to obtain adoption of this resolution, but nevertheless he introduced it in the House and Clark introduced it in the Senate.

The first resolution never got out of the committee to which it had been referred, and the St. Louis promoters of the memorial were persuaded to draft a second resolution that merely called for the creation of a United States territorial expansion memorial commission on which were to be three members of the House and three members of the Senate. Section 3 of this second resolution specifically stated that the Federal Government was not to be held responsible for any indebtedness contracted by the commission. The language of the resolution made clear, or so its framers intended, that the Federal Government was not to be put to any expense in the matter.

Earlier Assertions.

The Senate adopted the resolution without a word of discussion but in the course of debate on it in the House several Representatives suggested that the resolution was merely an opening wedge preparatory to asking Congress for funds. Representative Cochran denied this was the intention of the promoters. The debate in June of 1934, as set down in the Congressional Record, illustrates the difficulties the St. Louisans will encounter when they come back to Congress asking for $22,500,000.

"The people in the area are extremely anxious for the passage of this resolution so that the permanent commission can be organized," Cochran said, sponsoring the resolution. "We have precedents for the passage of legislation of this kind. One passed in the last Congress which provided for a commission to investigate a similar project in North Carolina—the advisability of erecting a suitable memorial in honor of the first white child born in America. I do not think there is any more I can say in reference to this resolution. It is sponsored by Republicans and Democrats alike."

Many Difficulties Will Confront Jefferson Memorial Sponsors In Their Appeal to Congress

Likely to Be Reminded of Original Statement That Federal Funds Would Not Be Sought, When Big Appropriation Is Requested.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.

CONGRESS will be asked soon after it convenes in January to authorize the expenditure by the Federal Government of $22,500,000 for the proposed memorial to Thomas Jefferson and the Western pioneeers on the St. Louis river front. Mayor Dickmann, who failed recently after nearly three weeks in Washington to obtain an executive order pledging the Government to expenditure of its three-fourths share of the total cost, has said that he will return with a delegation of St. Louisans determined to get Federal funds for the long-delayed project.

Dickmann and members of the St. Louis committee promoting the memorial were told before they left Washington, when the last hope of obtaining President Roosevelt's signature to an order authorizing a start on the work had faded, that it would be no easy task to get Congress to approve an appropriation for the memorial.

Attitude of Congress.

They were warned there would be many obstacles, and chief among them the attitude of Congress at the time a resolution was first introduced creating a national commission to draw up plans for the memorial. When economy-minded Representatives suggested that Congress would eventually be asked to finance the memorial, it was denied on behalf of the sponsors of the St. Louis project that demands would be made on the Government.

Representative John J. Cochran of St. Louis sponsored the resolution at the request of Mayor Dickmann. First Dickmann and the St. Louis group had come to Cochran and Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri with a resolution calling for an appropriation of $35,000,000 for construction of the memorial. Cochran advised Dickmann it would be impossible to obtain adoption of this resolution, but nevertheless he introduced it in the House and Clark introduced it in the Senate.

The first resolution never got out of the committee to which it had been referred, and the St. Louis promoters of the memorial were persuaded to draft a second resolution that merely called for the creation of a United States territorial expansion memorial commission on which were to be three members of the House and three members of the Senate. Section 3 of this second resolution specifically stated that the Federal Government was not to be held responsible for any indebtedness contracted by the commission. The language of the resolution made clear, or so its framers intended, that the Federal Government was not to be put to any expense in the matter.

Earlier Assertions.

The Senate adopted the resolution without a word of discussion but in the course of debate on it in the House several Representatives suggested that the resolution was merely an opening wedge preparatory to asking Congress for funds. Representative Cochran denied this was the intention of the promoters. The debate in June of 1934, as set down in the Congressional Record, illustrates the difficulties the St. Louisans will encounter when they come back to Congress asking for $22,500,000.

"The people in the area are extremely anxious for the passage of this resolution so that the permanent commission can be organized," Cochran said, sponsoring the resolution. "We have precedents for the passage of legislation of this kind. One passed in the last Congress which provided for a commission to investigate a similar project in North Carolina—the advisability of erecting a suitable memorial in honor of the first white child born in America. I do not think there is any more I can say in reference to this resolution. It is sponsored by Republicans and Democrats alike."

"What is the salary to be paid these commissioners?" Representative Carter (Rep.), California, asked.

"None whatever," Cochran replied. "The only cost to the Government is for printing this resolution."

"The Government," he added in response to another question, "is obligated in no way for any expenses of the commissioners or anyone else."

Questioned by Martin.

"The gentleman will not say that they will not come to Congress later for an appropriation?" Representative Martin (Rep.), Massachusetts, asked.

"No one has indicated to me there is any such thought in their minds," Cochran replied.

"But he will not guarantee that they will not come back and ask for an appropriation?" Martin demanded.

"They would have a hard time getting it," Cochran said. "I doubt if the commission will be here in my time asking for money," the St. Louis Representative said in response to still another question from Representative Jenkins, an Ohio Republican.

Jenkins asked why the City of St. Louis could not "take care of this," and Cochran replied that "it probably could" but that it was desired to have all the states in the Louisiana Purchase area share in the memorial. At this point Representative Taber (Rep.), New York, demanded to know if this was not like the first resolution which called on the Federal Government to "contribute" $30,000,000. In reply, Cochran said:

"I was requested to introduce such a resolution and the day I introduced it in the House I gave to the press a statement that, in my opinion, it would never get out of the committee. I explained that Congress would never approve of such a proposition. This is a new resolution, and is so worded that it makes no charge on the Government and no appeal for even an authorization, let alone an appropriation. The resolution passed the Senate without an objection; without even being discussed."

Cochran on Financing.

At this point Cochran was hard pressed, several Representatives offering objections. One speaker pointed out that it was proposed to spend twice as much on the memorial ($30,000,000) as the original cost of the Louisiana Purchase ($15,000,000). Two or three Democrats came to Cochran's aid, defending a memorial to Jefferson. Representative Jenkins demanded to know where, "if the Federal Government is not supposed to pay anything toward this $30,000,000," the money was coming from.

"The commission is going to get the money throughout the area covered by the Louisiana Purchase, an area valued now at close to 200 billion dollars," was the reply.

"The public-spirited citizens interested in the project feel that it will benefit the unemployment situation, and that is one thought behind it," Cochran said when pressed further by Jenkins. "Blocks of buildings will be removed and a splendid memorial thereon is the goal. They are going to try to find a way to raise money to construct a memorial and if the memorial is contructed, it will require labor to construct it. This means work for the unemployed. It is, I admit, a gigantic task, but if the gentleman only knew the personnel that compose the association he would have hope that they will reach their objective as I have."

Rival Memorial Plan.

Representative Boylan (Dem.), New York, objected to the memorial because, he said, the place for a memorial to Thomas Jefferson is in Washington. He pointed out that for nine years he had had a bill before Congress calling for such a memorial.

Congress at the last session appropriated $15,000 for the expenses of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission which was authorized to draw up plans for a suitable memorial to Jefferson in the capital. Certainly this will be a factor in the opposition when the St. Louis group seeks to have the river front memorial authorized.

"This is the place and this is the city where it should be, not out along the western bank of the Mississippi," Boylan said. "The nation's capital is the place where it ought to be, if the states in the West want this memorial, why do they not start it and pay for it, and not come here looking to the Federal Government for help?"

At last, with the aid of Democratic leaders in the House, the St. Louis resolution was brought to a vote. From the Republican side came a demand for a standing vote, with the result that 115 votes were cast in favor of the resolution to 15 against it. The vote came late in a night session, when members were eager for adjournment, and few were present. Moreover, a standing vote is not a vote of record.

$2,450,000 "Earmarked."

What Mayor Dickmann and members of the St. Louis committee sponsoring the project, including Luther Ely Smith, chairman, and Russell Murphy, executive secretary, obtained in their three weeks in Washington was a pledge that $2,450,000 of the four-billion dollar Works Relief fund would be "earmarked" for the memorial until Jan. 15; that is to say, this amount would be reserved for St. Louis out of the swiftly dwindling works fund until the middle of January. If the St. Louis group has not obtained authorization of the full $22,500,000 from Congress by that time, then presum-

Embargoes and the Constitution

How Far Can Congress Go in Prohibiting Exports to Italy and Ethiopia? This Question Will Arise When Temporary Neutrality Act Rushed Through Last Session Comes Up for Revision in January.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.

HOW far can the Government make use of the anti-war sentiment in this country to regulate or stop shipments of American goods to warring nations? How will the farmers, miners, industrialists, bankers and business men generally view a policy prohibiting sales of commodities used or useful in waging war? And since the question has not been adjudicated by the courts, exactly what constitutional power does the Congress possess to lay embargoes on exports?

Many answers will be given to these questions shortly after Congress reconvenes in January and starts to work out permanent legislation to replace the temporary neutrality compromise rushed through the closing days of the last session, of which the important arms embargo section will automatically expire Feb. 29.

There is evidence that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull are now testing the sentiment of the country by experimenting with the Italian-Ethiopian embargoes, hoping to learn what sacrifices in trade would be possible should the African war spread to other countries.

Extent of Embargoes Long a Vexing Question.

The extent of the embargoes that might be laid on goods leaving this country is a question that has vexed every President and every Congress that has attempted to keep this country out of war and at the same time to foster American trade. The debate in the Senate on the temporary resolution disclosed that embargoes, like the tariff, have their local applications, and hence, political significance. Although the resolution passed the Senate with only two dissenting votes—Bankhead of Alabama and Gerry of Rhode Island, both Democrats—these debates demonstrated that there was a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes "arms, ammunition and implements of war," the general undefined category of commodities barred from export to belligerent countries.

The State Department relies on the famous "commerce clause" of the Constitution: ("The Congress shall have power . . . to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states and with the Indian tribes") for the right of Congress to lay embargoes. Department officials say that the exercise of this power has not been seriously challenged by any citizen and consequently the extent of the power has not been settled by the United States Supreme Court. Of course, as in other instances of constitutional grants of power to Congress, the power must be exercised in conformity with other provisions of the Constitution, such as the "due process" clause of the Fifth Amendment, and such exercise cannot be arbitrary, wanton, unreasonable or capricious. It is on this point that the Roosevelt administration and Congress must be circumspect if permanent neutrality legislation is to withstand successfully challenge in the courts.

Delegation of Power Possible Point of Attack.

Another constitutional objection that might be raised in the forthcoming debates is the delegation of power to the President, or the executive departments. This point has been raised repeatedly in many of the challenges of existing New Deal legislation, and was perhaps the most controversial issue in the debates on the present temporary resolution.

President Roosevelt was willing for a law giving him discretionary power to lay embargoes but Congress insisted on a mandatory resolution compelling the President to announce embargoes in the event of war. The compromise—Senator Hiram Johnson of California described it as a "makeshift"—called for a mandatory embargo on the export of arms, ammunitions and implements of war to all belligerents in the event of war within six months, the President won the concession that the embargo section should expire Feb. 29.

> ### What Is Contraband?
> WHAT are the materials capable of use in war? The categories may be as vague as the undefined limits of "arms, munitions and implements of war" contained in the present law. Almost any commodity may be diverted to war purposes these days. The final British list of contraband in the World War contained more than 1000 commodities, beginning with "abrasive materials" and ending with "yeast." The American War Department has listed some 4000 peacetime products which can be used for military activities. For example, monium nitrate may be used either as a fertilizer or as an explosive, and cotton is a component of TNT. Oil is needed for battleships and transports; gasoline for military trucks and airplanes. Without copper and steel a modern war could not be waged? Where will the lists end?

The Foreign Policy Association, commenting on the existing law, insists that "as the basis for a permanent policy, the compromise fails to meet the requirements of effective neutrality or effective prevention of war.

Resolution Ignores Trade in Contraband.

"On the one hand," the association says, "the resolution falls short of the strict mandatory program advocated by the congressional keep-out-of-war bloc. It does not prohibit loans and credits to belligerents and it ignores the difficult question of trade in contraband. Our experience in the last war demonstrated that trade in cotton, wheat and other raw materials, which found their way into the belligerents' lists of contraband, may prove as dangerous to neutrality as trade in guns and shells.

"On the other hand, the mandatory features of the resolution are strongly opposed by the President and the State Department on the ground they will hamper the executive in dealing with future situations which cannot be foreseen, and obstruct a policy of co-operation to prevent war.

"The real issue confronting the American people is whether the United States can formulate any consistent policy with respect to war. The mere grant of discretionary power to the President does not constitute an effective policy to prevent war. After refusing to associate with the League of Nations for 17 years, the United States now finds the possibilities of helpful co-operation severely limited."

Granting of Discretionary Power Still the Issue.

The Senate debates and the later actions of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull indicate that the session will find Congress sticking to its demands for rigid mandatory action and the President maneuvering for discretionary power.

The President and Hull seem intent on showing Congress that if granted discretionary power, they could be counted on to withstand pressure brought on them by economic groups, such as farmers and miners, who produce raw materials. In the Senate debates, there was considerable discussion as to whether raw materials constituted "implements of war."

Senator Ashurst, who has consistently fought for the copper industry of his state, frankly declared that raw materials were implements of war, and should be included in the embargoes.

"If we pass this resolution," he declaimed, "let us pledge ourselves and our consciences that we shall live up to it. But what will be the temptation? As soon as war begins wheat may go to $2 a bushel. Let us agree that not a bushel of wheat shall be exported. As soon as war begins copper may go to 30 cents a pound. As soon as war is declared cotton may go to 40 cents a pound, but let us agree not to export a pound. As soon as war begins, the price of mules from Missouri will quintuple. That will be true of other articles of commerce. Let us live up to the resolution if we shall pass it."

Dispute in Senate Over What Constitutes Contraband.

Chairman Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would not concede that cotton, copper and oil were implements of war, or even contraband. He relied on the 1924 Geneva convention which defined arms, munitions and implements of war. Senator Gore of Oklahoma speedily pointed out to him that the World War had scarcely begun when England declared cotton contraband.

Since the enactment of the temporary resolution, President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Secretary of Commerce Roper and several Senators and Representatives have indicated that permanent legislation to be discussed next session will be more far-reaching than the present law. For instance, Roosevelt went beyond the mandatory part of the law when on Oct. 5 he warned that Americans who voluntarily engaged in transactions of any character with either of the belligerents, Italy and Ethiopia, did so at their own risk. On Oct. 30 he announced that the Government was keeping informed as to all shipments consigned for export to the belligerents.

Thus, the Executive's consideration passed from munitions and implements of war to materials as did the congressional debates. Hull intimated at a press conference that cotton might be embargoed, and Ickes, as Federal oil administrator, warned American oil producers not to sell their products for war purposes. Roper warned American ship owners indebted to the Government that they must obey the spirit of the existing law.

1000 Items on British Barred List in Great War.

What are the materials capable of use in war? The categories may be as vague as the undefined limits of "arms, munitions and implements of war" contained in the present law. Almost any commodity may be diverted to war purposes these days. The final British list of contraband in the World War contained more than 1000 commodities, beginning with "abrasive materials" and ending with "yeast." The American War Department has listed some 4000 peacetime products which can be used for military activities. For example, ammonium nitrate may be used either as a fertilizer or as an explosive, and cotton is a component of TNT. Oil is needed for battleships and transports; gasoline for military trucks and airplanes. Without copper and steel a modern war could not be waged. Where will the lists end? The Supreme Court may have to decide, if some American thinks his constittuional rights to dispose of his own property has been invaded.

The Roosevelt administration and the keep-out-of-war bloc in Congress are looking farther ahead than the localized African skirmishes. The debates and the top-heavy votes on the temporary law last session indicated that a large majority of Senators and Congressmen believed their constituents favored heavy economic sacrifices in the effort to keep out of war. The State Department's inspired stories this week about quotas on raw materials to belligerent nations indicate that the administration is feeling its way as to how far it can go next session. The State Department has been studying neutrality and embargoes since last December. The administration was caught off guard in the closing days of the last session and was forced to compromise with the isolationist Senators. The next session will see a second battle between these groups, and while two months is not a long time for congressional study and debate a new neutrality policy may be enacted into law when the present "makeshift" is discarded.

An American Abroad Tells What the War in Abyssinia Means to the United States

Declares Selling Supplies to Italy Would Lead to Danger of Trouble With Nations Applying Sanctions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

BELFAST, Nov. 18, 1935.

TO ME, an American abroad, current events here and at Geneva have a special interest in respect to possible changes in our foreign policy in 1936. The inclosed article presents what I believe to be the commonsense view of things affecting ultimate recovery on both sides of the Atlantic. . . .

JOHN M. DAVIDSON.

VOICES FROM THE PAST

"AMERICA will be rich, prosperous and wealthy as the result of this war. We shall have made untold millions out of the woe and swelter of Europe. The money which has come to us from these people is money in trust, and unless America recognizes this trust she will pay dearly and bitterly for its possession." These words were spoken by Mr. Herbert Hoover two months before we decided to enter the Great War. Put the name "Abyssinia" in place of "Europe," and the warning applies with equal force today.

In his broadcast of Oct. 23, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of State, said: " . . . Many of us are accustomed to say that in this great depression, we are now suffering from the results of having gone into that war. This is not entirely true. We are really suffering principally from things which happened in that war long before we joined it. For three years we kept out. It was during those three years that the principal economic dislocations took place which have resulted in America's sufferings now."

Portent of the Future.

Moral considerations apart, the Abyssinian affair is of little moment to us, but it is of the greatest significance as a portent of the future, of impending events that cast their shadow before. The governments of three great Powers — Japan, Germany and Italy—have become a law unto themselves and their actions threaten the peace of the world. In recent years profound changes have taken place in the life and needs and in the ambitions of nations to the East and West of us, and the first tidal waves of these upheavals now reaching us across thousands of miles of sea water are only beginning to be recognized as the advance guards of greater waves to come.

"We should have learned," continued Mr. Stimson, "that the chief problem of the world today is war prevention, not isolation; that isolation in the modern world is a fantastic impossibility, so far as keeping out of economic trouble is concerned." Only last August Senator Pope said: "The world today is traveling in the same ship. Whether we like it or not, attempts to isolate ourselves from the other passengers do not help if the ship is torpedoed. To endeavor to find a way to keep that ship afloat is a much more courageous and honest way of facing the situation than to attempt to say we are not even aboard," while Mr. Charles Warren, assistant Attorney-General in charge of neutrality enforcement during the Great War, said some time before: "Many Americans (of whom I am one) believe that the most likely way to keep the United States out of war is for this country to co-operate actively with other nations in attempts to prevent the occurrence of war."

Temptation of the Market.

Continuing his broadcast, Mr. Stimson said: "For the first time in the history of the world, the 58 nations who constitute the League have been able . . . to decide with practical unanimity upon who was at fault in bringing on the war; that the Government of Italy is the aggressor which has forced this war upon the world." He cited the action of the League in calling upon the Duce to cease his acts of aggression, and the Duce's defiance. In the face of this situation, says Mr. Stimson, "the conduct of our own Government is prescribed (why not say hampered?) by the terms of the joint resolution adopted by our Congress on the 31st of August last . . . (which is) likely to do more harm than good." If the other nations are obliged to put embargoes on supples not on our list the effect, he says, may be "to leave the field entirely open for American traders to rush in and take advantage of the enticing market which is thus presented for selling supplies to Italy. This would produce a very serious danger of ultimate trouble between us and the nations which are doing their best to stamp out this war."

That danger is very real. Geneva looks with concern upon the Duce's marble-sculptured maps of Caesar's Mediterranean Empire erected along the Via dell' Impero in Rome—so suggestive of his ambitious plans for territorial expansion by force of arms from Morocco round to the Indian Ocean, and so reminiscent of the grandiose maps of "Pan-German Empire" exhibited prior to 1914. Mussolini and Hitler both claim that they need more territory for their surplus populations, yet seek to increase the birthrate, degrading motherhood to the level of mere breeding machines to recruit their man power. Both preach the nobility of war and decry the virtues of democracy. But both these dictators must come before the court of world opinion with clean hands if their claims for more territory are to receive recognition.

Where the Answer Lies.

Mr. Stimson rightly reminds us that, so far, not a word has been uttered by the Administration (Congress being out of session) to point out that Italy has violated solemn covenants and treaties, and promises made to us in the Kellogg Pact. "In short, nothing has been said to rouse in our people any feeling that a moral issue is involved, that over 50 nations, with all their national differences and interests, have been able to unite in a verdict against the nation which is now seeking our assistance to get supplies for an aggressive war." In 1919 Senator Glass, former Secretary of the Treasury, said that for nearly three years before we entered the Great War we profited tremendously; immense profits were made. But, as Mr. Hoover prophesized more than two years before him, we paid dearly and bitterly for it. Will the voice of the administration today be heard louder than those voices from the past? Will it be sufficient to arouse our people and our Congress to the realities of the situation?

The answer lies largely in the hands of that great majority of our people in the Middle West who see and hear less, and perhaps care less, about anything but local issues; who would snatch a temporary profit in war supplies—food, cotton, oil manufactures—at the expense of the Covenant-supporting nations, not realizing the harm they can do. Yet it is the decision of this great majority that will determine congressional action on world peace. It is these farmers and business men who will determine whether America will make good her professed stand for the preservation of peace and the plighted word or will leave the League in the lurch for the sake of monetary profit. The four great countries outside the League—Japan, Germany, United States and Brazil—have a combined population of

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

For a Stricter Neutrality Policy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE American people favor a stricter "keeping-out-of-war" neutrality policy than the President, in deference to commercial and business interests, has yet enforced. The present makeshift neutrality legislation, which does not include unassembled munitions and which cannot be extended to financing and raw materials for war, can hardly be expected to keep the United States out of war.

Shipments of cotton linters, scrap iron, oil, trucks and other items necessary for the prosecution of Italy's imperialist war are still being made, despite President Roosevelt's and Secretary Hull's warnings. The very hesitancy of the administration to publicize all export trade to either of the belligerents leads one to believe that the President is willing to gamble lives against war profits.

The responsibility for the present inadequate legislation rests squarely with the administration. Since having opposed stricter proposals in committee, the President has made a show of having become the nation's No. 1 neutrality advocate.

With the coming session of Congress rests the responsibility for a thoroughgoing program of mandatory embargoes on all trade or financial relations with nations engaged in armed warfare. Such legislation is necessary if American commercial interests are not to nullify the peace efforts of the League, and if the United States is not to be drawn into a foreign war. Further, the enactment of such a policy would be a declaration to the League that if its Powers resort to armed force as against non-military sanctions, they will sacrifice our assistance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE writer is not so certain that the majority of the country agrees with Mr. Roosevelt when he said the Supreme Court decision in the NRA case takes us back to the horse-and-buggy days.

However, with the President's family constantly in the headlines for speeding, knocking over lamp posts and uprooting fire plugs, the writer thinks it would be a good thing if the Roosevelts went back to the horse-and-buggy days.

The Old Hannibal Bay Mill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SURELY Mark Twain must have played around the old Hannibal bay (water-wheel) mill when he was a boy. This old mill is four miles north of Hannibal, and is fast going to ruin. One side of the roof is almost off. The first bay mill was built before 1835 by Stephen Glascock. It was replaced by the present mill, which was built close by, between the years 1842 and 1844, by Daniel Hendrix. Wooden pins were used mostly, instead of nails, and much of the machinery is of wood. The building is 40 feet in length and in breadth and is five stories high. It is supposed to be the oldest mill west of the Mississippi.

Before the Civil War, ox teams used to come several days' journey to the mill to get corn ground into meal and to get graham flour. The mill also sold salt and oil, and tobacco, too. There was a picture of this mill at the St. Louis World's Fair of 1904, and postcards used to be sold widely, having a picture of the mill and one of Mark Twain. He was 7 years old when the mill was built. What a book he could have written about it, but he must have plumb forgotten it in his writing days.

My grandfather, Martin S. Shaffer, and my uncle, Grant Shaffer, were the last people to own and operate this mill; they owned it for 29 years and shut it down about 1900. I have pictures of the mill and many old relics of it—a wheelbarrow, the account book and the last meal sack.

As Il Duce Goes Calmly On.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HAVING been in one mix-up when America helped "make the world safe for democracy," I don't give a rap about what goes on in Europe, and I'd mind my own business; but I can't help expressing my sentiments when I see certain provocative statements.

It seems to me that when people of the type of Marconi enlist their services in Italy's African mission, then Italy's objective must appeal to them as being just. The Ethiopians, in fact, seem disposed to accept the "lethal cup," if we consider the cities that have been taken without a struggle and the two Ethiopian chiefs who have gone over to Italy's side. Recall the words of George Bernard Shaw: "I am sorry for Ethiopia's troubles, but when it comes to the point of upholding tribal civilization against ours—then tribal civilization must go."

The Duce, charged as he is with aggression and plunder, mocked by some with the doctrine of "noblesse oblige," threatened by the League with economic strangulation, calmly continues his mission, confident that his cause is just and confirmed in his belief by millions of his countrymen and others—honest, impartial observers who realize that Ethiopia should be proud to exclaim, "Civis Romanus sum" (I am a Roman citizen).

A NAVAL EXPANSION CONFERENCE?

Representatives of the leading naval Powers will meet in London this week for what is officially called a naval limitation conference. It will be surprising if the parley is not in the end a naval expansion conference. So gloomy is the atmosphere in which the conference assembles that many observers consider it merely the prelude to a revived and greater naval armaments race. Mr. Roosevelt expressed a common sentiment at a press conference last week when he indicated that this country would be greatly pleased if, as a result of the parley, naval armaments could be held at their present levels.

The conference is meeting to fulfill the treaty terms calling for renewed discussions before termination of the Washington and London naval pacts, which expire Dec. 31, 1936. The former expires by reason of Japan's notice of abrogation last December; the latter by limitation. With unrest prevailing throughout the world, and the major nations engaged in strengthening their armaments, there seems little chance that the restrictive principles written into the previous treaties will be reinstated. The prospects are, rather, for a pact calling for larger navies, or no agreement at all and a wide-open race with the sky (or the endurance of the nations' taxpayers) the limit.

The conversations in London last year, in which England, America and Japan took part, were preparatory for the present meeting, and disclosed differences of opinion that remain unreconciled. Japan held out for parity with the two other nations. Compromise offers made at that time were rejected. The situation appeared serious enough then, but Japan's new drive against China makes its intentions for mastery of the Pacific even clearer than before.

The French and Italian positions, previously marred by years of bickering, now have taken on a critical aspect. Because Anglo-Italian relations now are strained, with supremacy in the Mediterranean apparently at stake, any hopes for a conciliatory attitude on Mussolini's part must be eliminated. The newcomer in naval circles, Germany, also adds to the complications. When Hitler denounced the Versailles Treaty, and Britain sanctioned the breach with the extraordinary treaty approving a German navy of a strength up to 35 per cent of England's, the French position became critical. With a reviving Germany on the one hand and a determined Italy on the other, France obviously is in no mood for reducing naval strength.

England is definitely committed to a stronger navy. This was one plank in the Government's manifesto at the recent elections, and was strongly indorsed by the voters.

The United States is building up to treaty strength, under an appropriation of record size for the current fiscal year. If withdrawal from the Philippines relieves this country of commitments in the Western Pacific, if the neutrality policy relieves the navy of its duty of protecting American commerce, modifications may be possible. The size of the American navy, however, will depend largely on what other nations do. Mr. Roosevelt made this clear in his Armistice day address, when he said: "The more quickly they (the other nations) decrease their armaments, the more quickly and surely shall we decrease ours."

In a rational world, a world not distracted by fears and rivalries and hatreds and ambitions, a naval conference would take such a statement as its starting point, for consideration of how much each nation was willing to decrease its forces. This cannot be the starting point of the new conference, however. Each nation will seek to better its position, by obtaining concessions in a favored category of naval armaments, by asserting its right to greater total strength, by threatening to leave the parley if the point is not granted.

The only hopeful factor is that the delegates enter the conference with no illusions whatever. Gone is all the hope of extensive reductions that has ushered in each previous naval parley. Plain to every delegate, too, is the knowledge of what a crushing cost his own country must bear if a general armaments race is the outcome.

Perhaps, squarely at the edge of the precipice, with suicidal war or national bankruptcy waiting at the bottom, common sense may yet prevail. If the peoples of the participating nations could be free of the distracting propaganda with which many of them are deluged, and could vote on the parley's course, it would certainly be a naval reduction and not a naval expansion conference.

NEWS FROM ITALY.

M. E. Ravage's article, "Discontent in Italy," published recently under the cartoon, is a highly interesting appraisal of Italy's domestic sentiments. It serves to stimulate the rather startling thought that, in the last 13 years, the news from Italy has been so garbled and censored, when it has not been suppressed entirely, that the world has had little opportunity of knowing what the Italians really have been thinking.

Much, of course, has been written by the anti-Fascist Italians who were exiled or who fled before Mussolini's wrath. Their bitterness and partisanship have invested their utterances, in many cases, with more heat than light. Moreover, once out of Italy, they were no longer able to keep a finger on the Italian pulse. Newspaper writers in Italy have been handicapped by censorship. Travelers' accounts are usually superficial and many of them reveal little else than a stereotyped version of the glitter and pomp with which Mussolini has invested himself.

Mr. Ravage, a well-informed journalist, tells of the unhappiness in Italy that has extended even to the army; of the rumors of mutinies; of wage cuts, unemployment and deprivation of working men of their bargaining power; of business men who find themselves in a veritable straitjacket of regulations which kill private initiative; of investors who have been compelled to deposit their holdings of all their foreign stocks, bonds and other credits in the Bank of Italy for possible use by the State; of Italy's unfavorable trade balance; and, finally, of the Ethiopian fiasco which is draining Italian blood and treasure.

Is it possible that the liberty-loving millions of Italians became a different sort of people at the exact moment that Mussolini completed his march on Rome? They may have been temporarily dazzled by the advent of a Man on Horseback, but surely in the process of years they must have renewed old faiths in contemplating the tinseled emptiness of a regime which demands that all human beings be subordinated to an abstraction called the State. What must be their feelings now that 51 nations of the world are arrayed against Italy, cutting her off from credit, from munitions and, worse, from many kinds of raw materials and goods needed for existence?

Perhaps the most potent single act of war by England against Germany was the cutting of the latter's trans-Atlantic cable. Similarly, the stranglehold Mussolini has placed on the Italian people rests largely upon the suppression of free speech and free press. Never has any man lived who could perpetuate such a grip, who could still forever the passion for freedom that is at least latent in all peoples.

Mr. Ravage does not think Mussolini is through in Italy, but he makes it clear that a bitter broth is being brewed in the pot of a harassed and dictator-ridden people.

ANTI-NEW DEAL SENTIMENT.

The anti-New Deal sentiment in the first report of the Literary Digest poll is accentuated by the second week's results, which show 91,351 persons who "now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date" as against 115,736 who are opposed. The percentages are 44.11 for and 55.89 against. Four Southern and Southwestern states, traditionally Democratic, are included, and eight Middle Western states. It is the general belief that, in order to win in 1936, Mr. Roosevelt will have to bank heavily on the South and the Middle West.

On various grounds, we have previously urged caution against making broad generalizations from the poll. For one thing, the number on record is still small; for another, the question asked by the Digest is unhappily phrased. Again, there is a difference between voting upon Mr. Roosevelt's acts and policies and making a decision between him and another candidate. As to the last, many persons who now disapprove the New Deal's policies may be unwilling, in spite of that, to support a candidate pledged to tear down the whole New Deal structure.

With these reservations, however, it is reasonable to deduce, not only from the Digest poll, but from the Michigan, Rhode Island and recent scattered elections, that an unmistakable current is running against the New Deal. The election results of 1932 are definitely past history; the even more amazing congressional elections of 1934, when, contrary to most precedents, the party in power increased its membership, no longer represent the mood of the country.

X EQUALS MAXIMUM HIGHWAY SPEED.

Failure of automotive and highway engineers to co-ordinate the designs of motor cars and the paved roads on which they run has begun to attract the attention of the engineering profession. The great increase in speed capacity of automobiles built in recent years has accentuated the need for collaboration between the designers of the machines and those who lay out cross-country routes.

While America has progressed from horse-and-buggy thoroughfares to 40 or 50-mile-an-hour pavements, the motor car has continued to leap ahead. Almost any machine produced today will do 70 miles an hour; many will make 80 or better, and a few manufacturers claim even 100 for stock models. Few, if any, main highways were planned for driving at this pace. Sight distances for the driver are too short, curves too sharp, hills too steep; hills, trees, billboards and buildings obstruct the view. Pavements, though being widened to an increasing extent near population centers, frequently are of inadequate width for fast cars.

In a paper published in American Highways, J. W. Wheeler, Indiana Highway Commissioner, says:

> Mounting speeds of highway travel are arousing concern among highway engineers. At the speeds that now prevail, a road built only 10 years ago is obsolete as a track for the vehicles which travel it, even though it has 10 or more years of structural life remaining. Will the roads that are being built today similarly become obsolete 10 years from now? Such rapid obsolescence obviously may not be tolerated. The road builder long ago recognized the problem and sought to find a solution in his early attempts to prescribe maximum travel speeds. But the road user soon overruled him, with the active support and assistance of enforcing agencies and legislatures. Other solutions are being attempted. Is there no limit to which we can build? Is there not some speed that we can decide upon, both the highway engineer and the automotive engineer, that is sufficient, and then build to it? Let the automotive engineer build a better car that will do X miles an hour, and let the highway engineer design the perfect, or as near the perfect road as possible, for X miles an hour, and then all stick to it.

Mr. Wheeler relates that he knows from personal experience with a 100-mile-an-hour car on his own roads that "the highway of yesterday is unfit for the motor car of today." He is of the opinion that the unknown quantity of X in his speed formula might resolve itself into about the speed that had been developed in first-class railroad practice, which generally attains or exceeds 60 miles an hour. He recommends main roads designed for travel up to this maximum without restriction, with lower speeds in certain zones and flexibility of design to permit ready revision of surface width, shoulders, bridges, intersections and other features.

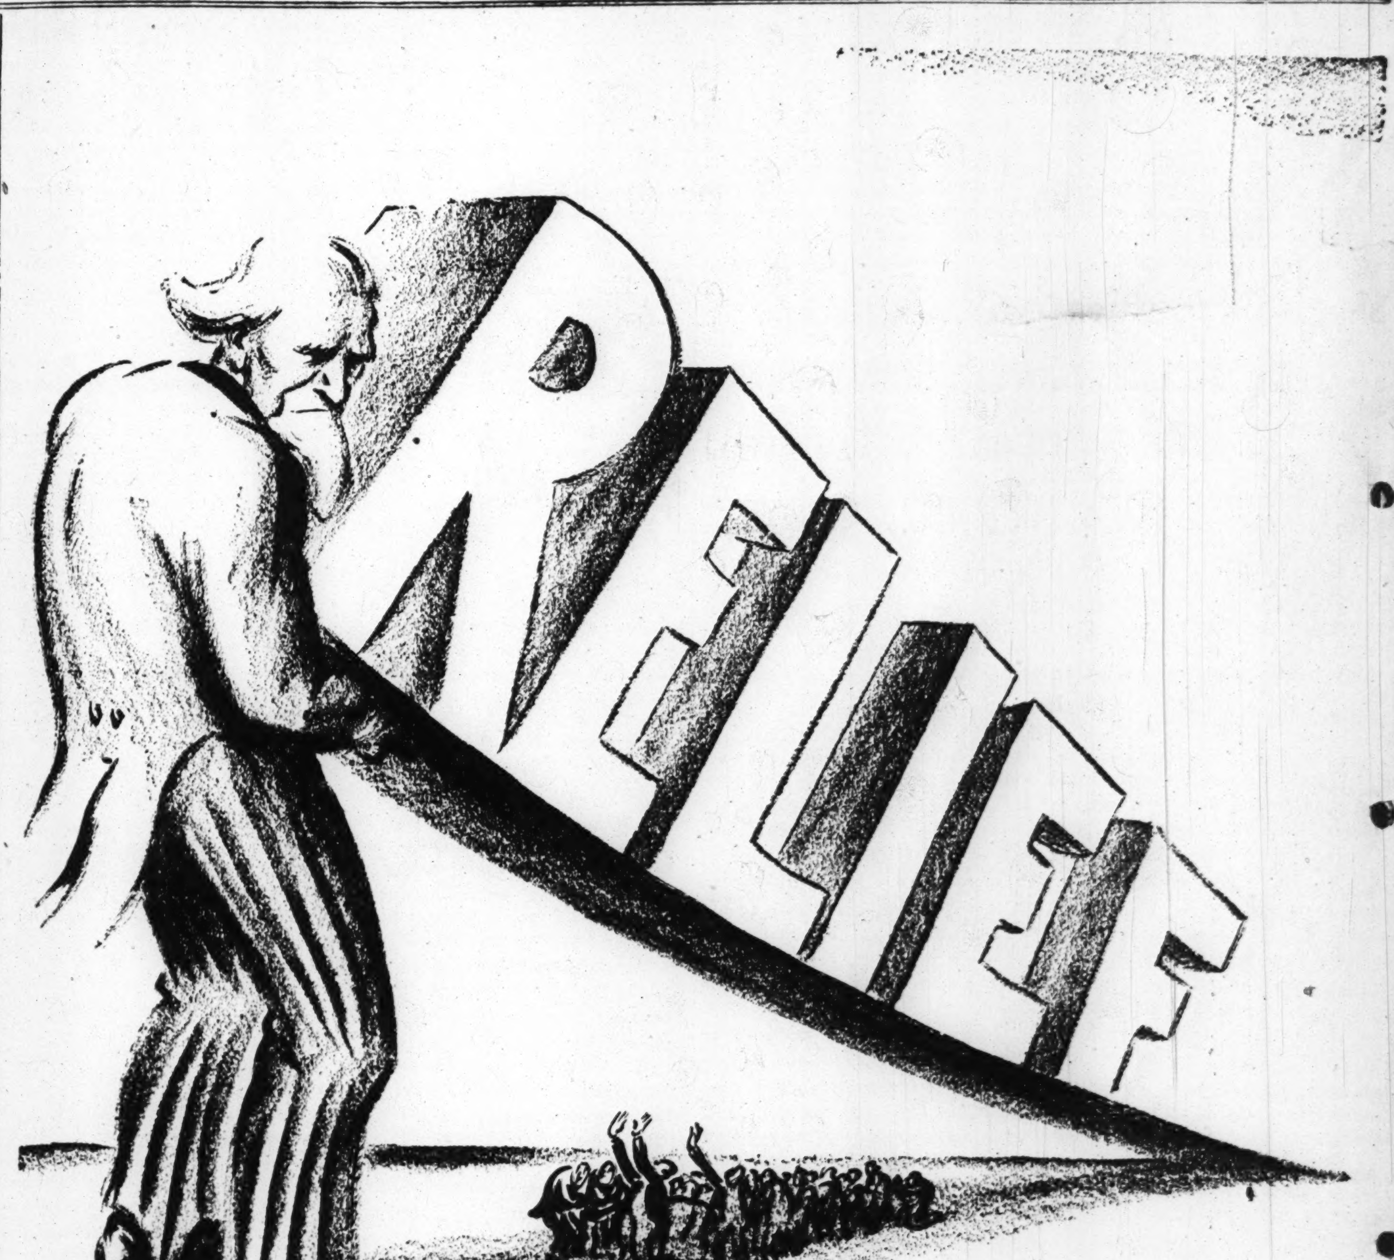
LABELS IN BRAZIL'S REVOLT.

Forces of the right invariably term their opponents Communists; those of the left invariably refer to their opponents as Fascists. These epithets have become commonplace, whether the rivalry of the two camps is conducted with oratory or bullets. The rebellion just put down in Brazil was no exception, and there is reason to think that neither appellation was strictly accurate. The army revolt centered around an organization called the Socialistic National Liberating Alliance, of admittedly radical tendencies, though the Brazilian Government's contention that it is financed by Moscow remains to be proved. The Government, on the other hand, is conservative, nationalistic and favors centralization. It has been criticised by the opposition for failure to attempt suppression of the formidable Fascist movement, and this inaction has been attributed both to timidity and to sympathy.

The issues were by no means so clear-cut as a head-on conflict between Communism and Fascism. Rather, the strife was between factions having definite tendencies toward the two extremes of political doctrine. The army itself is disunited, with the enlisted men tending toward the left, the officers to the right. In a Latin country where force is frequently a political weapon, the situation contains the seed of more trouble in future.



THE STATES: DON'T LET IT DOWN ON US!

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Not Soon to Be Forgotten

THE VOICE OF BUGLE ANN. By MacKinlay Kantor. (Coward-McCann, Inc., New York City.)

IF THIS writer had been asked a little while ago to name one story dealing with the Missouri hill country that seemed to have, more than any other, the magical qualities (difficult to define) that distinguish a masterpiece from merely good or even excellent work, he would have named "The Hound-Tuner of Calloway," by Raymond Weeks.

It must be about 10 years since that story was read, and still to think of it is to experience the exhilarating uplift of an enchanted moment. The book achieved a success of esteem, and may have sold reasonably well; but the commanding voice of publicity was lacking, and even though one heard of the book, there was no compulsion to read it in self-defense.

If the same question were asked now, two stories would have to be named, and there might be a strong temptation to place the "The Voice of Bugle Ann" before "The Hound-Tuner of Calloway," but for the fact that it is, first of all, the quality of uniqueness that distinguishes both. Still, it might be argued with force that Kantor's story sweeps the wider range of emotion, achieving as it does, in certain passages, something of the unmistakable Aeschylean mood.

The hero is old Spring Davis, connoisseur and breeder of fox-hounds, and the heroine is Bugle Ann, the fine and final flower of all the generations of the Davis dogs. She was "the sweetest-mouthed hound in Missouri," so old Spring believed, and "her voice was something to dream about on any night when she was running through the hills—high, round, with that queer and brassy resonance which made you think that ghosts were out there somewhere sounding taps without any armies to follow them."

The action takes place in the "Heaven Creek" country, which might be almost anywhere in the Missouri hills; and the characters are all familiar to anyone who has lived long in the Ozarks—the Lanceys, the Roysters, the Armstrongs and such. It's all quite commonplace in setting, and the people are those one knows. But very early in the story a sympathetic reader begins to feel some compelling magic at work in the simple, forthright narrative; and as a result, the familiar commonplace world is transfigured into "something new and strange" and packed with wonder.

The tale is intensely poetical in the one true and generally neglected sense of the word; and what, to the merely factual regard, would seem only a sordid affair growing out of a foolish quarrel over a "houn'-dawg," develops at length the dignity, the pity and terror, the weird beauty of Greek tragedy.

THOSE who like to give beautiful books for Christmas presents should be more than ordinarily interested in the first six issues of the Heritage Press, New York City. They are: "David Copperfield," illustrated by John Austin; "The Song of Songs," illustrated and illuminated by Valenti Angelo; "The Scarlet Letter," illustrated by W. A. Dwiggins; "Romeo and Juliet," illustrated by Sylvain Sauvage; "A Shropshire Lad," illustrated by Edward Wilson; "Manon Lescaut," illustrated by Pierre Brissand. All but the fourth in the list are bound in leather, and all are fine examples of typographical art. The "Shropshire Lad" and the "Song of Songs" are especially beautiful, the latter being a perfect little gem of a book.

THE NEW IMPERATIVE. By Walter Lippmann. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

THE volume is composed of an article entitled "The Permanent New Deal," which appeared in the Yale Review last June, and the author's Phi Beta Kappa oration delivered at Harvard University during the same month. In the first, Mr. Lippmann contends that, essentially, the New Deal did not begin with the Roosevelt administration but with the crash of 1929; that the new conception of the function of government was brought about not by party influence but by economic necessity; and that "government must henceforth hold itself consciously responsible for the maintenance of the standard of life prevailing among the people."

The "new imperative," as discussed in the second half of the volume, is concerned with the necessity of accepting the new view of governmental function, and of educating the rising generation in keeping with that necessity.

"If you wish to know," writes Mr. Lippmann, "why the young men are tempted by Communism, by Fascism, by almost anything which is emphatic and bold and positive, this is the reason: those who sit in the seats of authority are preaching a gospel of frustration. If you wish to know why, in spite of all our schools and colleges, the level of competence in public life is low, this is the reason: we are not training men to govern; we are teaching them to believe that in great matters it is unnecessary to govern. If you wish to know why the political sciences are not a true discipline for the future guardians of our civilization, but are a haphazard collection of disconnected specialties, this is the reason: it is disreputable to hold and to declare a positive and coherent conception of the function of the state in a modern economy."

THE SPANISH MAIN. By Philip Ainsworth Means. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

FOR one reader at least, it has become a thrilling experience to follow the career of Philip Ainsworth Means, for it seems hardly to be questioned that he is definitely on the way to the achievement of enduring greatness as a historian.

Four years ago, he published his enthralling and masterly work, "Ancient Civilizations, of the Andes," which was followed in the next year by "The Fall of the Inca Empire"—equally fine in every way. With publication of "The Spanish Main," the largeness of the scheme upon which he has been working becomes apparent.

In the first work, he built the background of pre-Spanish history in South America. In the second, he dealt with the coming of the Spaniards and their conquests. The third work, here noted, is concerned with the efforts of the English, French and Dutch to wrest power in the New World from the Dons.

"I hope," the author confides, "in later volumes to be able to set forth other and less known parts of the colonial labors of Spain, of Portugal and of other European nations in the colossal task of opening up the New World to European influences, following this with a study of Spain and her rivals in America during the eighteenth century, and ending up with a work on 'The Origins of the Hispanic American Nations.'"

With so much already accomplished at the age of 43, Means should be able to complete his great scheme while still at the height of his powers; and that is something good to think about.

GREEN HILLS OF AFRICA. By Ernest Hemingway. (Charles Schribner's Sons, New York City.)

"IN THIS book," so the publisher avers, "Ernest Hemingway has recorded the events of an exciting hunting expedition in Africa so skillfully as to infuse into it those qualities of imagination, perception and suspense which one usually finds only in a masterpiece of fiction." When a highly respected old publishing firm speaks thus about a book, it ought to be a whale!

Mr. Hemingway himself holds the work in high esteem, for he confides: "The writer has attempted to write an absolutely true book to see whether the shape of a country and the pattern of a month's action can, if truly presented, compete with a work of the imagination." When a world-renowned author speaks thus of his book, it ought to be at least two whales!

After reading the book with a breathless expectancy, wondering when those "qualities of imagination, perception and suspense" would begin to eventuate, two things seemed perfectly clear, to-wit: that Hemingway is doubtless a jolly hunting companion; that he had a right good time shooting kudus and rhinos by day, and perhaps an even better time getting tight in the evenings—not to mention frequent draughts of the Oh-be-joyful during working hours. One gets the impression that fire water was plentiful in that outfit. Not that one begrudges the abundance. This is no temperance lecture. It's a hunting expedition of another sort—hunting for that promised literary treat.

Still, it cannot be questioned that the book is exceedingly "virile" and "frank." You've got to give it to Hemingway—he can "cuss," as he frequently proves in the present opus. It is not inconceivable that he knows as much naughty language as any of our other modern masters, which is saying a great deal, as some of them know very little else.

He can write smashingly virile sentences when he lets loose, as for instance: "I know just what kind of a s—— I am and I know what I can do well." Only, being a powerful writer, he says it right out loud.

Did you ever sit perfectly sober and listen to an illuminated gentleman garrulously enjoying his personal liberty?

Did Mr. Hemingway write much of his book in the evenings?

CLARK M'ADAMS FUNERAL IS HELD AT ARTISTS' GUILD

Scripture Readings and Prayer by the Rev. George R. Dodson, Address by Dean Otto Heller.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO "TRUE IDEALIST"

Final Exercises for Post-Dispatch Contributing Editor Are at Valhalla Crematory.

The funeral of Clark McAdams, contributing editor of the Post-Dispatch, was held yesterday afternoon at the Artists' Guild. The central hall of the guild, and the rear half of the connecting Little Theater, were filled with professional and artistic associates and personal friends of Mr. McAdams.

At 2:30 p. m., when the funeral began, mechanical and other activities of the Post-Dispatch were stopped for one minute.

Flowers of autumn, banked along the rear and side walls, were beside and behind the casket, which was covered with lilies. Some of the small paintings on the walls were hidden by the floral tributes. The paintings, composing the Guild's annual water-color exhibit, included works of numerous friends of Mr. McAdams, who had been for 22 years president of the Guild.

Passages from Old and New Testament scriptures were read by the Rev. Dr. George R. Dodson, pastor of the Unitarian Church of the Unity, and were followed by a brief prayer.

Memorial Address.

Dean Otto Heller of Washington University then delivered the memorial address, which he began with the reading of Mr. McAdams' favorite poem, William Ernest Henley's "Invictus," the opening stanza of which is:

Out of the night that covers me,
  Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
  For my unconquerable soul.

The final lines are:

I am the master of my fate,
  I am the captain of my soul.

"To those who knew Clark McAdams," the speaker said, "could any words so adequately express his indomitable will to make the most and the best of his life?

"In the realization of the heroic manhood of his character there is no immediate solace. To face our bereavement with any composure at all, we should count against this unspeakable loss the undying enrichment of our lives through his friendship.

"His tireless exertions for the greater happiness of others more than touched the many spheres to which they extended. Because he was a born leader of men toward a brighter light, he inspired every cause that his generous heart embraced."

Dr. Heller then spoke of the work of Mr. McAdams for the Guild, saying that the organization and the Little Theater, of which also he was president, owed their present stability chiefly to him. He told of Mr. McAdams' work for art in the city and State, and said the conception and realization of the mural decorations in the present State Capitol were in large measure his work. His activity for the protection of wild life, and his love for birds, also were touched upon.

"High Editorial Courage."

"The main channel of his public influence," the speaker said, "was, of course, the press. No station in life requires more steadiness and purity of motive than the editorship of a great newspaper; and there is none that puts those qualities to a severer strain. But the manhood of Clark McAdams as a publicist proved equal to any test.

"Like any true idealist, he cherished his preconceived beliefs; yet he controlled them by that orderly concentration of thought of which he was so singularly capable. His thinking was luminous, level-headed and uncompromising. When, with the aid of all his great and brilliant resources, a final opinion was reached, he could not be budged from his position by temporal or material policies. His rich reward was the universal respect of the entire newspaper fraternity for his high editorial courage.

"I have promised not to eulogize him, but how can one fail to praise when there is nothing but good to say? Clark McAdams' great goodness was reflected in his incorruptible faith in human nature. His political liberalism, gravitating about an absolute confidence in the central principle of democracy, is thereby explained. Keen and quick to perceive the foibles and follies as well as the ins and crimes of society, he never referred them to the inveterate badness of men, only to their incomprehension. The cure was education.

"Fought Always for Causes."

"A campaigner case-hardened in many battles, he fought always for causes, rather than against persons. He had an inexhaustible reservoir of indignation for injustice of any sort, but spent little anger on the perpetrators. In his most sweeping condemnations he still drew a difference between a system he thought wrong and the men involved in it, because he had al-

"Fought Always for Causes."

"A campaigner case-hardened in many battles, he fought always for causes, rather than against persons. He had an inexhaustible reservoir of indignation for injustice of any sort, but spent little anger on the perpetrators. In his most sweeping condemnations he still drew a difference between a system he thought wrong and the men involved in it, because he had almost no capacity for personal enmity. And how could his attitude have been other than friendly to all the world, when with all his soul he believed in working for the general good? He was the most socially conscious person of his community. Never have I known one more closely related to the whole life of mankind, and so infallibly on the side of the angels.

"He always gave, gave, gave, asking for nothing in return. Were I to single out the noblest trait of his character, I should point to a total absence of selfishness. He was by no means, as men of ideal vision are so apt to be, unfitted for affairs. His views stayed well within the range of experience, and his concrete achievements testify to an extraordinary practical ability. Yet for a successful man of business, had he elected that career, he lacked one essential quality. Avid for work as he was, he could not be made to work for himself. Indeed, his aloofness from egoism went so far that, as soon as anything bade fair to turn to his personal advantage, he lost interest in it."

In a further recital of Mr. McAdams' traits, the speaker told of his lifelong habits of study, his modesty and absence of display, and his joy of living.

"He saw the world bifocally," Dr. Heller said, "through the eyes of wisdom and of an incomparable sense of humor, which never deserted him in hours of darkness, and was, like his philosophy, securely grounded in a profoundly serious, but also profoundly kindly, view of life.

Stevenson's "Requiem."

"No man ever had a deeper attachment for nature. He loved her in all her manifold self-expressions, and felt in fraternal intimacy with her creatures, beasts, birds, flowers, trees and stones. In the wide spaces his spirit was most at home, and at its best on the hills and streams of his beloved Ozarks. No wonder Clark McAdams loved this little poem"—and the speaker closed with recital of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Requiem."

Under the wide and starry sky
Dig the grave and let me lie,
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will.

This be the verse you grave for me:
Here he lies where he longed to be;
Home is the sailor, home from sea,
And the hunter home from the hill.

Members of the immediate family and a few friends attended the final exercise at Valhalla Crematory.

SPEAKER SAYS TEACHERS OVERDO BRITISH LITERATURE

Michigan U. Professor Urges More Critical View of English Standards.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 30.—An assertion that too many teachers use British standards in assigning literature studies was made today by Prof. Howard Mumford Jones of the University of Michigan in an address before the National Council of Teachers of English.

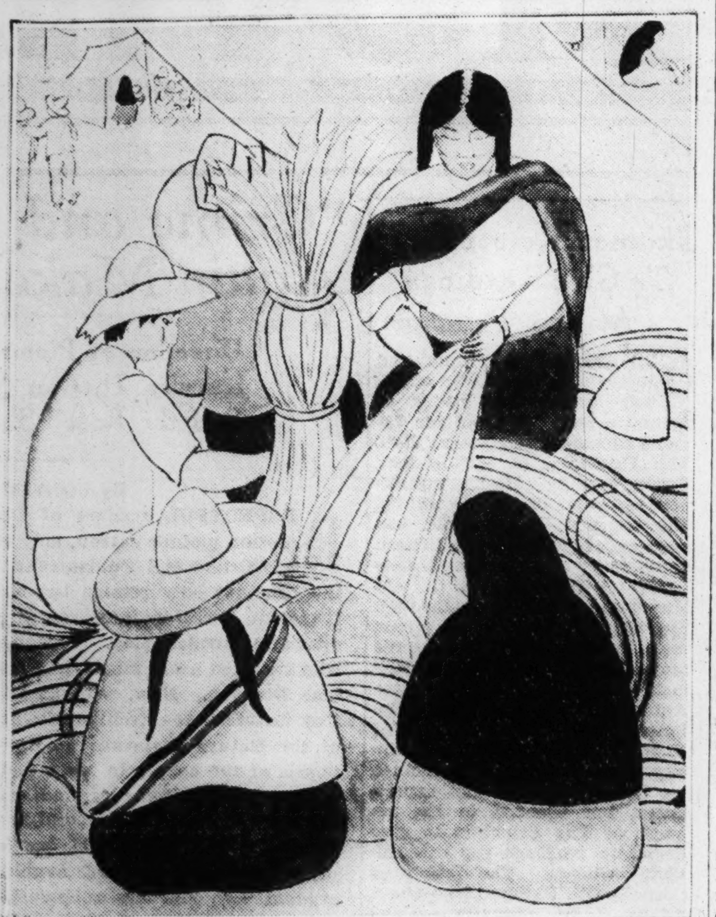
"We are perhaps the only great nation in the world that accepts uncritically its literary standards from a country thousands of miles away," Jones said. "I do not wish to cut off the American student from reading Chaucer, Shakespeare, Milton, Wordsworth and Dickens and other English writers, but British literature can be overdone for American consumption."

Prof. W. H. Coleman of Bucknell University, predicted that in 10 years colleges will substitute a world literature course for the old-time, traditional English survey.

Socialist Convention to Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—The Socialist party will hold its national convention in Cleveland the latter part of next May, it was announced today. A committee headed by Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, is preparing agenda for the convention. Clarence Senior, secretary, declared the new meeting "can be compared to the convention we held in St. Louis during the trying days of 1917 to declare our opposition to the last World War."

Mexican Influence in Painting



"TOLUCA," by Bernice Singer, one of the pictures in the Artists' Guild's current exhibition.

SCENES OF MEXICO AT ARTISTS' GUILD

Influence of Country Below Rio Grande Shown in Exhibit.

The passing of the Paris and Provincetown influences in contemporary American art, and the new interest in what has been going on south of the Rio Grande, are strikingly evidenced in the fifth annual exhibition of water colors and craftwork now on view at the Artists' Guild, 812 Union boulevard.

Mexican scenes, done with the economy of detail and emphasis on pattern characteristic of the work of leaders in the development of modern Mexican painting, are found frequently among the 175 water colors and pastels which are hung on the walls of the main gallery, the little theater, and the new "little gallery."

Peter Mariner, the Guild's new director of activities, says about 20 St. Louis artists recently have made visits to Mexico. Many of this group are represented among the 72 painters who have contributed to the present exhibition. Among them are Helen Louise Beccord, Alice R. Knight, Bernice Singer, Sophie E. Schweich, C. O. Ames, Jessie M. Gleyre, Louis E. Mutrux and James Auer.

Not long ago an exhibition such as the one now at the Guild would have featured bright little fishing smacks and vases of flowers after the manner of the impressionists, but few of these can now be seen.

In addition to the pictures, there are about 30 examples of craftwork by 16 exhibitors. One unusual item is a "metal batik" by Ruth Lionberger and Genevieve Lawler. This is a sheet of pewter, intended for a wall decoration, in which the design is etched by an acid bath over parts of the sheet not protected by a wax surface.

A "treasure" chest by Marjorie Euwer of tooled leather bound with copper is an example of fine workmanship. Another exhibit in the craft section is a small circular table designed by Jules Gottschalk, in which plate glass and naturally finished wood are employed. There are batiks by Lucy Cable Mackay, Tanasko Milovich and others.

COCHRAN BLAMED FOR LAW BARRING WIVES FROM JOBS

Woman's Party Speaker Declares Missouri Congressman Has Blocked Its Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30.—Congressman John J. Cochran of Missouri was attacked in a speech by Mrs. Edwina Austin Avery today before the National Woman's party convention here. She declared Cochran was responsible for the married women's clause of the 1932 Federal Economy Act.

"The law, while purporting to prevent the employment of both husband and wife in the Federal service, was actually designed, and what was worse, has been enforced in such a way as to set up a very effective bar to the gainful employment of married women not only in the Federal service but throughout the country, because State and local governments and business have as usual followed the leadership of the National Government," she said. "Mr. Cochran was able to get this particular atrocity passed in the first place because Congress was told that it was a temporary measure to spread employment. When the question of its permanency was put to the Attorney-General by the Civil Service Commission, he ruled that the law was permanent legislation.

"The law has been kept on the statute books by Mr. Cochran's refusal to report from his committee any bill calling for its repeal."

She asserted that actually the law had deprived only 1600 women of their jobs directly. Mrs. Avery is chairman of the Government Workers' Council of the woman's party.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO POLICY FOR CITIES OUTLINED

Budget Director Meyers Thinks National Association's Recommendations Sound.

City Budget Director Arthur C. Meyers made public yesterday a recommended policy for municipal debt administration as summarized from the preliminary report of a committee of the Municipal Finance Officers' Association at the association's conference at Knoxville, Tenn., last month. Meyers is chairman of the committee and vice-president of the association.

His summary contained 12 recommendations, based chiefly on a pay-as-you-go financial policy coupled with adequate taxing power to assure the going concern value of municipalities for credit purposes. Some of the recommendations were adopted by the convention and some were those only of the committee, but it was unnecessary to differentiate, Meyers said, since "taken all together they represent sound practice in current municipal debt administration."

Percentage of Defaults Small.

Preliminarily citing facts which he said were not generally known, Meyers declared that although the number and amount of municipal debt defaults had seemed large, actually less than 2 per cent of the municipalities in the country had defaulted with not more than 5 per cent of all outstanding municipal debt involved.

The first recommendation was for a marked shift by municipalities to the pay-as-you-go basis, as there was after the six-year depression ending in 1879. Although the total municipal debt decreased $144,000,000 in 1933, Meyers said, the trend since then had again been upward, due mainly to a favorable bond market and the impetus given to borrowing from PWA.

The next three recommendations were for an unequivocal stand by financial officers against debt repudiation and unfair compositions of principal and interest; sparing creation of improvement "authorities," separate from the municipal corporation, invested with power to borrow for construction of self-liquidating undertakings; systematic study by cities permanently unable to meet their debts in full of their present and probable capacity to pay.

Against Tax Limitation.

Taxation was the subject of the fifth, sixth and seventh recommendations. Municipalities, it was recommended, should strongly oppose tax limitation in any form, including the movement for high homestead exemptions.

Municipalities the bonds of which may be reasonably retired under existing maturity schedules, Meyers said, should avoid refunding in order to reduce tax rates. He said too great emphasis could not be placed on the fact that retirement of debt was better than refunding the obligation even at a lower interest rate.

Tax anticipation warrants, unless they could be retired at maturity from revenues in anticipation of which they were issued, were condemned. Proper tax collection procedure, including quarterly tax payments and discounts for pre-payments, would eliminate the need for most short-term borrowing, Meyers added.

Relief Bonds Opposed.

Meyers' summary emphasized the need for abandoning issuance of municipal bonds for unemployment or emergency relief, to aid private enterprise or to cover operating deficits. Furthermore, Meyers said, there should be drastic restrictions on the issuance of special assessment bonds, as "too often these special-specials have been mere subsidies to real estate speculators."

Cities should guard against too free an encumbrance of revenues from operating utilities, it was suggested, and neither should an administration be led to believe that self-liquidating bonds were not a part of the community's debt burden.

Another recommendation was for legislation requiring, at the time of issuance of bonds, authorization of a continuing tax sufficient to retire each maturity and meet all interest payments. Broadening of the municipal tax base, Meyers said, naturally would strengthen municipal credit.

Maintaining Credit.

The last recommendation was for maintenance and improvement of municipal credit through co-operative action. Defaults of a few municipalities injured the credit of all, it was pointed out.

"In the last analysis," Meyers said in conclusion, "the strength of municipal credit is based on adequate taxing power, good will and going concern value.

"There is urgent need to dispel the erroneous notion that a majority of cities are bankrupt and an equally urgent need that the broad principles outlined here, as well as the exhaustive studies made by the Municipal Finance Officers' Association, be made available to every municipality."

French Gift to Kentucky Town.

By the Associated Press.

VERSAILLES, Ky., Nov. 30.—The City of Versailles Kentucky accepted a spontaneous gift today from Versailles, France. A silver vase containing earth from the grave of an American soldier who died in France arrived addressed to the mayor, to perpetuate, "With the memory of so many centuries of French glory, the memory of the French town which was the cradle of the independence of the United States."

CROAT CONFERENCE ASKS LEAGUE TO FREE COUNTRY

Delegates Say State Was Forced Into Yugoslavia by Serb, Alexander.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—In a manifesto made public today by a group which termed itself the "second national Croatian Congress," the League of Nations was asked to take steps to assist Croatia to freedom outside the Yugoslavia kingdom. The manifesto was approved by delegates from the United States, Canada, Europe and South America.

The manifesto asserted that "the State of Croatia, to which with other nations, was guaranteed by the American President Woodrow Wilson in the peace treaty of 1918 the right to determine its own destiny was, by the false and wicked representations of the Serbian Regent Alexander . . . forced into the so-called State of Yugoslavia."

It added that the oppression and acts of the Yugoslavian authorities has "resulted in a reign of terror, under which assassinations and massacres of Croatian leaders and people have been accomplished."

FIVE LENINGRAD CITIZENS SEIZED AS ESTONIAN SPIES

Documents Incriminating Them Found on Body of Secret Agent Killed Trying to Escape.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Nov. 30.—Tass, official Soviet news agency, announced today the "liquidation" of an alleged Estonian espionage organization in Leningrad. Five Soviet citizens charged with being in the pay of the Estonian secret service are under arrest and awaiting trial.

The arrests resulted from an investigation into the fatal shooting of an alleged Estonian spy last Sept. 16. The spy, M. Kirishok, was killed while attempting to cross the border into the Soviet Union. In a running fight he killed a Soviet border official before he was killed. Documents incriminating the Leningrad "ring" members were found on his body.

SPEECH TEACHERS TO MEET

Five From St. Louis District on Program at Columbia.

Addresses will be delivered at the annual convention of the Missouri Association of Teachers of Speech at the University of Missouri, Columbia, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday by five teachers from the St. Louis district.

These teachers and their subjects are: Ruth Kelso Renfrow, Hosmer Hall, "Co-ordination of Speech With Other Departments"; Virginia Lee Comer, Maryville College drama department, "Consistency in Costuming"; Leo B. Fagen, St. Louis University psychology department, "Reading Disabilities of Stutters"; F. Cowles Strickland, director of the Little Theater, who will lead a discussion of plans for organizing directors of dramatics, and Lloyd Weldon, Maplewood High School, who will preside over a discussion on "Debate and Public Speaking."

ALUMNI REUNION FRIDAY

Graduates of Old Manual Training School to Meet.

The annual reunion of alumni of the old Manual Training School, a division of Washington University from 1880 to 1917, will be held Friday evening at Lee Hall on the university campus. A reception will be held at 6 o'clock, followed by a dinner in the Commons.

The principal speaker will be Walter K. Begeman, assistant principal of Hadley Vocational School. Alfred Fairbank, a vice-president of Boatmen's National Bank, will preside. Other speakers include Assistant Chancellor Walter E. McCourt; Homer L. Thomas of Birmingham, Ala., a former instructor of the school, and Jimmy Conzelman, head football coach at the university. Smith Academy, which was consolidated with the Manual Training School between 1915 and 1917, will be represented by alumni.

Monument to Chef.

VILLENEUVE-LOUBET, France, Nov. 30.—A monument to Auguste Escoffier, famous chef, will be erected here in his home town. On the base will be engraved a list of the dishes he invented, including Peach Melba.

American Abroad Tells What War Means to U. S.

315 millions; the United States, the greatest trading nation of them all, representing nearly one-half.

The Good Neighbor.

The conscience of 58 nations, large and small, rich and poor, near and distant, has condemned the Duce's cynical violation of Covenant and pact and his attack upon a weak, unarmed and unoffending people. Some of them can ill afford the sacrifices they are making to stop the war. But what will be said of the richest nation on earth if, while professing to be the good neighbor, it remains content with a policy of self-protection and puts profit before principle? If America disappoints the League now, where will she stand in the estimation of the world? Will not a negative action by her be welcomed by those outlaw nations who have shown no regard for their pledged word, who have become a menace to civilization, watching like vultures, for the moment when they can descend upon the weak and disabled, and feed?

Whether the League's final resort to sanctions, weakened as they are by the absence of four great exporting and importing nations, will check aggression within a reasonable time is still in doubt; for speed and adequacy are essential considerations. The lure of profits at the expense of the sanctioneers may prove stronger than the desire to see right prevail. Further, the 60-odd signers of the pacts may rightly feel that the supposed security offered by the pacts becomes a dangerous illusion if collective restraint lapses into an ineffective neutrality which aids the aggressor but penalizes the aggressed.

America's Interest.

It may be too much to expect the Middle West, accustomed to think only of its own local interests and problems, to develop suddenly a deeper sense of our moral obligations; but if so, it is all the more necessary for the leaders of our people everywhere to make the issue clear to them before America commits herself too deeply to the wrong course. If our people who are so soon to vote in another election for President, if the Congress which is so soon to frame our future foreign policy, will not heed the warning given in Mr. Stimson's broadcast, will they listen to the voices from the past, some of which have just been quoted?

Many persons have sought to discredit the League in American eyes by accusing it of being for the Haves against the Have-nots; of upholoding the rich nations against the poor, the strong against the weak. It is not necessary to refute this untruth by argument; one need only to point to the world-wide condemnation of the Duce and to the fact that 58 nations upon the five continents have supported collective action against him, and at great sacrifice to themselves—Christian and Mohammedan, white-skinned and dark, republics and democracies east and west of Suez and north of the equator and south.

The Duce has threatened to leave the League if his plans for conquest are interfered with. Japan has already left it for the same reason. All Germany is under the heel of a dictator who can make her an even greater menace to the world than she was in 1914. America, sheltered by wide oceans on either side, preaches in the same breath, isolation and the good neighbor, world peace and trade with an aggressor, and hopes to have world trade without world responsibility, to enjoy recovery while the rest of the world is putting out a fire which may extend to all civilization. Verily we need a foreign policy, a policy based on moral as well as material issues. More than ever, America's interests are intimately bound up with stable world conditions. If her men of vision are to convince the country of this truth in 1936, then the full meaning of these fateful days at Geneva must be expounded in the clearest and most emphatic words at their command.

Difficulties in Congress Await Memorial Group

ably the $2,450,000 will go for other purposes.

The administration could, of course, extend the time limit from month to month, pending action by Congress. Actually the "earmarked" $2,450,000 has very little bearing on the basic problem that confronts Mayor Dickmann and the promoters of the memorial. Earmarking this sum was a friendly gesture on the part of the Roosevelt administration.

The real problem is to get Congress to authorize the project as a Federal one and appropriate funds for it. Authorization would release merely the $2,450,000 of WPA money to St. Louis. Under the terms of the bond issue enabling act, the Federal Government must put up $3 for every $1 of the city.

Congress will of necessity be called on for additional funds if the memorial is not to be dropped. This will come at a session on the eve of a political campaign in which wholesale spending seems likely to be a major issue. Furthermore, because of the administration's desire to make it a short session, appropriation bills will have the right of way and there will be thrown into the legislative hopper at once the Treasury and Postoffice appropriation bills.

Any appropriation bill, regular or special, is certain to evoke a flood of political oratory. The Democrats are sure to be sensitive on the subject of spending, hopeful of making the best possible showing with the budget and with Government retrenchment. On the other side of the aisle the Republicans will be keen to point out any evidence of new spending. It is a safe guess that the criticism aroused by the resolution intended merely to create a payless memorial commission will be magnified many times by a request for a large appropriation for the memorial.

What Will Be Necessary.

The mere machinery which a bill appropriating Federal funds must go through is formidable. The measure must first have the approval of the Director of the Budget. Then, before it can be called up on the floor for debate, it must have the approval of at least two committees in both the House and the Senate. Its sponsors, unless the measure bears the unqualified stamp of administration approval, must do no little jockeying to get such a bill brought up for consideration.

This is the situation that will confront the St. Louis delegation when they come back to Washington to put over its bill. They have already spent many weeks going from boureau to bureau and official to official in their futile quest for Federal dollars. Now they will have to combat a politically-minded Congress. One thing is clear, and that is that there will have to be an extraordinary amount of political pressure and trading if the $22,500,000 is to be authorized and funds are to be appropriated.

PROF. GARNER IN BERLIN TALKS ON NEUTRALITY

Says Nationals Should Stay Out of War Activity If Governments Do.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Prof. James W. Garner, lecturer on political science at the University of Illinois, told the Academy of German Law today the old distinction between neutrality of the state, as such, and neutrality of its citizens should be abolished as "illogical, if not immoral." He spoke at the invitation of the Ministry of Justice.

He pointed out the "chaotic" state of international law respecting rights of neutrals and belligerents in naval or aerial warfare, and said not a single controversy arising in the World War between belligerents and neutrals was settled by peace treaties or other post-war agreements.

The nations are "proceeding on the assumption that Europe at least is confronted by the prospect of another war," Prof. Garner said, urging that they make an effort to agree on rules they would observe in conducting war, if and when it came.

Otherwise, he said, there was danger that the next war would "be fought without rules at all."

He said controversies over the rights of neutrals were highly conducive to spreading war, once it started.

Therefore, he insisted, it was important that the old dinstinction between neutrality of the state and neutrality of the people—"the idea that while a government cannot furnish belligerents with money and implements of war, its nationals may"—should be abolished as a dangerous anachronism.

In any case, he said, "the world is unlikely to witness again the spectacle of the United States being converted into a veritable arsenal" for belligerents, while at the same time trying to remain neutral.

60 ENUMERATORS MAKING HEALTH SURVEY OF CITY

30 More Receiving Training for Study Financed by WPA; Part of Nation-Wide Canvass.

Sixty enumerators are now engaged in making a health survey of St. Louis under the direction of the United States Public Health Service. The work, financed by the Works Progress Administration, is part of a nation-wide survey to determine the prevalence of sickness and to gather data to be used in the prevention and control of disease.

The enumerators, who are canvassing the various district of the city, have been instructed in their work by trained supervisors. Information obtained in regard to illness and disability is confidential. It is sent to Detroit, where the statistical work is being done.

Thirty enumerators are still receiving preliminary training. The entire staff of 93 enumerators and 33 editors was selected from the rolls of the Missouri State Employment Service. St. Louis is one of 75 cities in which the survey is being made.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

"Great Waltz" Arrives, "Tobacco Road" Stays

Two Stage Productions on Boards for This Week — December to Be Busy Theater Month—Operetta Biggest Show of Season.

WITH the Auditorium Opera House spreading wide its stage tomorrow night to accommodate "The Great Waltz" and the American Theater still sheltering Jack Kirkland's sturdy drama, "Tobacco Road," St. Louis theater-goers view an unusual situation in the legitimate theater hereabouts, that of two stage productions running at the same time.

Time was, before the Shubert-Rialto went over to the cinema, that two legitimate houses were in simultaneous operation frequently. Last holiday season, "Roberta," at the American, and "Midsummer Night's Dream," at the Auditorium, divided the business, but "Roberta" cut the cloth and "Midsummer Night's Dream" left town in tatters.

If "Tobacco Road" should stay a third week, as some hope, the American would darken for only one night in December. "The Old Maid," which in early bookings, decided to take a half loaf locally, is set for six days beginning Dec. 16, instead of three, and "Three Men On a Horse" will gallop in on Dec. 22, to be followed by "Dodsworth," "Personal Appearance" and whatever else is available.

Right now "The Great Waltz" looks like the only musical possibility for some time, unless the picture version of "Anything Goes" is delayed until the New York musical comedy hit of last season can get out here. "Anything Goes" is set for a certain engagement in Chicago and St. Louis nearly always figures in the itinerary of a show going to the lake front.

"THE GREAT WALTZ," which began its tour in Boston on Oct. 3, has played since then in Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburgh, and will go from St. Louis to Cincinnati, Cleveland and then Chicago. It can play only in cities where big stages are to be found.

The engagement here is limited to five nights, from tomorrow night to Friday, with three matinees, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday. With a cast of 100 people, plus 40 musicians and stage mechanics and seven baggage cars of scenery and effects, "The Great Waltz" is certain to be the biggest show of the current season, even as it topped all others in size in New York last winter. It ran throughout the season there at the big Center Theater in Radio City, closed in early summer and reopened again for a brief run before taking the road, thus developing the claim that it had run two season on Broadway.

"The Great Waltz," based on the animosity between Johann Strauss Sr. and Johann Strauss Jr., the waltz kings of Vienna, started as a small musical play in the Austrian capital. Hassard Short persuaded Sir Oswald Stoll, English producer, to buy the English rights and London [illegible] Short's elaborated version as "Waltzes From Vienna," in August, 1931. The show ran for more than a year at the Alhambra Theater and went on tour.

Max Gordon, producer of "Three's A Crowd," "The Band Wagon" and "Roberta," saw the show in England and began to plan an enormous New York production. Short was entrusted with the staging of the production, Moss Hart was summoned to do a new book, Albertina Rasch the dances and Albert Johnson to design the settings.

GUY ROBERTSON, former Municipal Opera star, is playing the role of Johann Strauss Jr., that he had in New York; Lee Whitney, who sang at the opera in 1931 under the name of Greta Alpeter, is seen as Resi, the pastry shopkeeper's daughter with whom he falls in love; Gladys Baxter, another Forest Park favorite, is the Countess Baraskaja. Charles Romano as Johann Strauss Sr., Solly Ward, Vivian Fay, Sam Mann and Gladys Clark are other principals.

The show is played in 10 scenes depicting the haunts of gay Vienna in the latter half of the last century. The spectacular finale, in which the entire cast waltzes to "Beautiful Blue Danube," while scenery moves in automatically, is the high point, both musically and scenically.

The rivalry of the two Strausses is actual history, for the elder Johann Strauss, a favorite of a century ago, actually forbade his son to have anything to do with music and musicians. The son stole out to concerts at night, practiced at night, studied piano and violin in secret, and was a composer before he reached the age of 20. It was inevitable that he should encroach on his father's domain. Resi, the heroine, is no playwright's fabrication. The younger Strauss did teach her to play the piano and fell in love with her. But he had too much of his father's fiery nature to settle down and marry her.

"The Beautiful Blue Danube," which the son based on a folk song, was played for the first time in Vienna on Feb. 13, 1867. When the composer made his only American visit five years later, an orchestra of 1000 and a chorus of 20,000 was assembled for one presentation. It was Johann Strauss Jr., incidentally, who introduced an unknown young genius on one of his programs. The unknown was Richard Wagner.

AN encouraging feature of road shows coming to St. Louis this season is the presence of original stars in the casts. Henry Hull, in "Tobacco Road," was the original Jeeter Lester in New York, where the company now is headed by James Bell, the No. 3 Jeeter. It may be added, too, that "Tobacco Road," as being played now, is changed from the original only in the matter of three phrases, quite to the satisfaction of Jack Kirkland, author, who has gone back to New York to celebrate a second anniversary for the run there on Tuesday.

Robertson, of course, is to be seen in "The Great Waltz" and "The Old Maid," will bring Judith Anderson and Helen Menken here in their successful characterizations. "Three Men on a Horse" will be acted by the Broadway cast, and "Dodsworth" will have Walter Huston himself, who has not surrendered his part to any other actor.

Mummers Add Two Plays By St. Louisans To Year's Schedule

ENLARGING their schedule for the year, the Mummers have announced they will present two full-length plays by St. Louisans in March and April. The works are a comedy, "Here We Go 'Round," by Rita Oberbeck, and "I Pledge Allegiance," by Robert Hahnel and Martin Hasse.

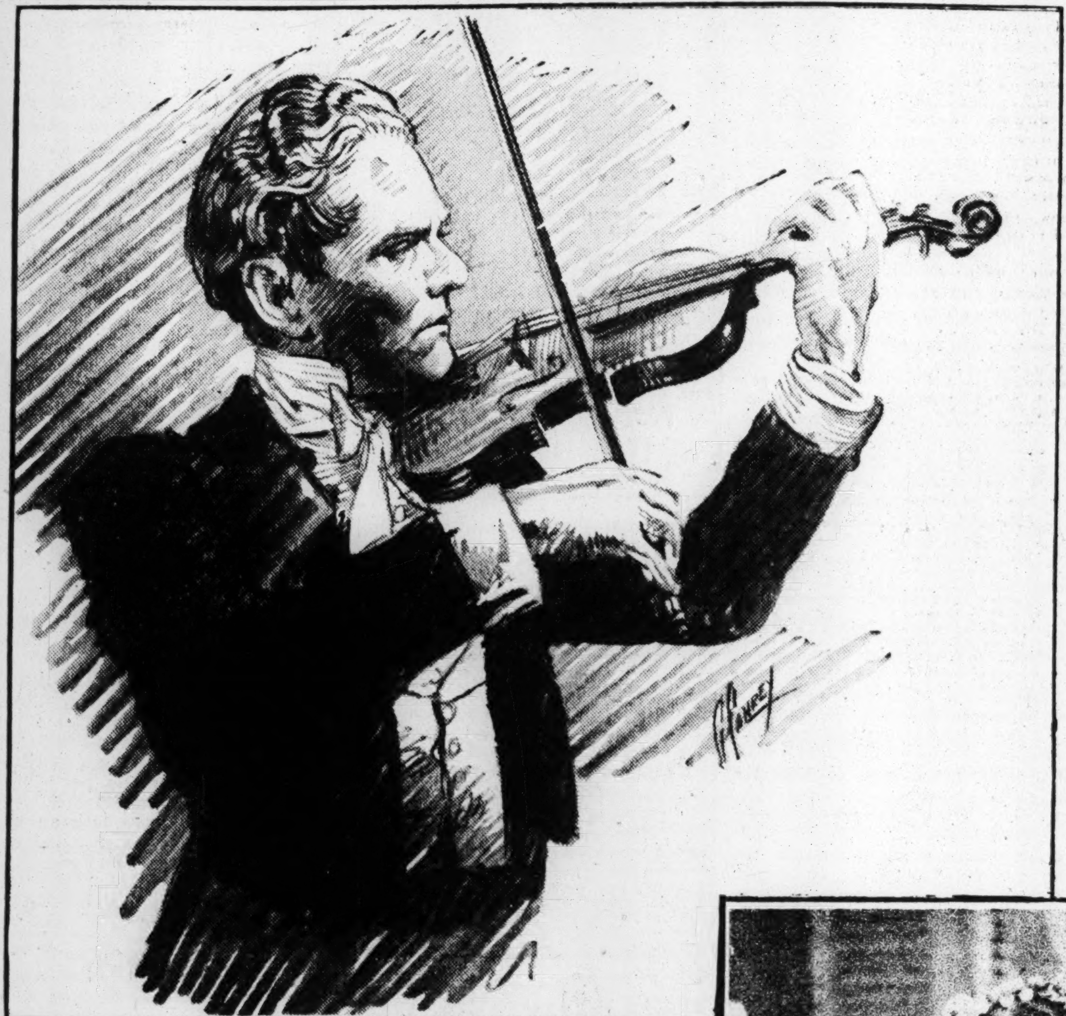
The first is based on the antics of a playwright, an actor and a novelist. The author, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Oberbeck, has appeared in several Mummers plays, was educated at Washington Univeristy and has written short stories and motion picture publicity.

"I Pledge Allegiance," done in a series of episodes without intermission, is supplemented by a musical score. It concerns the tragedy of a violin virtuoso who has been in the World War and cannot adjust himself afterward. Hahnel is the son of Eugene Hahnel, supervisor of music in St. Louis schools and was educated at the University of Missouri, the University of Chicago and Harvard. Hasse, a violinist himself, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hasse of Webster Groves.

Chamber Music Series To Start Next Sunday

The St. Louis Chamber Music Society, founded last year under the sponsorship of the Women's Committee of the Symphony Society, will open its second season of Sunday night concerts a week from tonight at the Woman's Club, 4600 Lindell boulevard. The opening program features Beethoven's Quartet in F, Opus 135. This is one of the group of five quartets the composer wrote as he approached the end of his life. The quartets are seldom heard nowadays.

George Brent and Ginger Rogers of "In Person," Shubert.



Guy Robertson, as the younger Johann Strauss, in "The Great Waltz," Auditorium.

Steindel Soloist, Guidi Conductor In Week's Concerts

MAX STEINDEL, solo 'cellist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will play the Saint-Saens Concerto for Violincello in A minor at concerts in the Municipal Auditorium Opera House next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. The orchestra will be directed by Scipione Guidi, concertmaster and assistant conductor, officiating for Vladimir Golschmann, who will be guest conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra this week.

The Saint-Saens Concerto, last performed here during the 1928-29 season by Maurice Marechal, was chosen by Steindel to pay tribute to the centennary of Saint-Saens' birth, on Oct. 9, 1835. The work is in three movements, played without pause. Steindel, descendant of a famous European musical family and himself a one-time prodigy in European capitals, has been solo 'cellist here since 1912, except for a three-year period which he devoted to concert engagements.

This week's orchestral program is built around Schubert's Symphony No. 7 in C major, last played here in 1928. The "Morceau Symphonique" from Cesar Franck's Poem-Symphony, "The Redemption," will open the concerts.

Next week the orchestra offers Lawrence Tibbett, famous baritone, as its soloist. Tibbett will sing "Where'er You Walk" from Handel's "Semele," Iago's "Credo" from Verdi's "Otello"; "Largo al Factotum" from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," "Wotan's Farewell" and the "Magic Fire" music from "Die Walkure" by Wagner. Golschmann will conduct.

This week's complete program:

"Morceau Symphonique," from the Symphony Poem "La Redemption" . Franck
Concerto for Violincello, in A Minor, Opus 33 . . . . Saint-Saens
I—Allegro non troppo
II—Allegretto con moto
III—Allegro non troppo (played without pause)
Symphony No. 7 in C Major. . . . . Schubert
I—Andante; allegro, ma non troppo
II—Andante con moto
III—Scherzo: Allegro vivace. Trio
IV—Finale. Allegro vivace

Russian Cathedral Choir Concert Dec. 10

The Russian Cathedral Choir, now on its first American tour, will be the next Civic Music League attraction, at the Auditorium Opera House the evening of Dec. 10. The choir, under the leadership of Nicholas Afonsky, is composed of both men and women, who have spent nine years in constant training. Kapiton Zaporoshetz, former basso of the Imperial Opera, is one of the soloists.

Peter Lorre in "Crime and Punishment," Fox Theater.

Film Forum to Show "Petersburg Nights"

The Film Forum, which is showing foreign language films of the 16-millimeter size, has chosen "Petersburg Nights," a Russian picture based on novels by Dostoievski, as its next feature. The presentation will take place at the Musicians' Hall, 3535 Pine boulevard, at 8 o'clock Tuesday night.

At the conclusion of the performance, the audience will vote on the production to follow, from a list including "Le Million," "Shame of a Nation," "A Nous, La Liberte," "Laughter Through Tears" and "The New Gulliver." All of the pictures carry superimposed English titles and dialogue. The showings are open to the public at an ordinary movie admission price.

Teicholz to Be Soloist.

Martin Teicholz, violincellist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will be guest artist at the fifth public concert of the Abendmusik Club at Sheldon Memorial, at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Skinner Returns To Give Readings At the Principia

OTIS SKINNER, distinguished actor on the American stage, will present a group of dramatic readings from his famous successes at Howard Hall, The Principia, at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening. He has not announced what the choice will be. Skinner, now 77 years old, has long ago celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as an actor. He secured his first part at the old Museum in Philadelphia, through the aid of the famous circus man, P. T. Barnum. Among his more popular plays were "Kismet," "Blood and Sand," "Mister Antonio," "The Honor of the Family" and "The Merchant of Venice." Skinner, already in the city, is making a tour to lecture on the drama and his experiences, but acceded to the request of The Principia to give dramatic readings for the student audience. The father of Cornelia Otis Skinner, who comes to St. Louis annually with a program of readings, the elderly actor was last seen here in 1932, with Maude Adams in "The Merchant of Venice."

Margaret Sullavan in "So Red the Rose," Orpheum Theater.

"First Lady," Satire On Life In Capital, New Broadway Play

ANOTHER witty satire on the nation's capital has made its bow on Broadway. It is "First Lady," produced by Sam Harris, whose made fame and much money with "Of Thee I Sing", and starring Jane Cowl. The authors are George S. Kaufman, who had a hand in "Of Thee I Sing," and Katharine Dayton, author of mocking comment on the country's statesmen in magazines.

"First Lady" is not the name of a character in the play but the title for which two women are angling. They are Lucy Chase (Miss Cowl), wife of the Secretary of State, and granddaughter of a beloved President, and Irene Hibbard (Lily Cahill), wife of the Chief Justice. Lucy, who was born "the White House baby," regards the position of "First Lady" hers by natural inheritance and she contrives to make the Hibbard path as rocky as possible.

In her conspiracy she enlists the lady who holds the nation's clubwomen obedient and a newspaper publisher of influence. But a remarkable sequence of political maneuvers leaves Lucy the awful irony of finding that she has placed her rival just where she wanted her not to be. The Washingtonians who figure in the plotting are portrayed by Stanley Ridges, Jessie Busley, Helen Brooks, Diantha Pattison, Oswald Yorke and Judson Laire.

Y. M. H. A. Play Tonight.

The Dramatic Club of the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A., which presented Richard Maibaum's three-act drama, "Birthright," last night, will repeat the performance this evening at the center, Union boulevard and Enright avenue.

"Crime and Punishment" Again Makes Fine Drama

Direction of Picture at Fox Characteristically That of Von Sternberg—"So Red the Rose" Shows Work of Vidor.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

RESPECTFUL readers of Dostoievsky, as well as the average motion picture patron, may venture to see the new screen version of "Crime and Punishment" at the Fox in perfect safety. For the film not only retains the basic structure of the novel but also, thanks to Director Josef von Sternberg, has been made into a vivid, dramatic murder play. Sternberg will be remembered as the lad who frittered away much time making eight-reel photographs of Marlene Dietrich. Now, without Miss Dietrich in the cast, he has settled down to the technique which makes him one of the geniuses of the picture business. In lighting and camera angles, in the emphasis of the beauty in black and white, in the views of misty places, where fish-nets hang around and light lies insoluble on the water, "Crime and Punishment" will be recognized as a Von Sternberg work. Such a background is the perfect complement to the performances of Peter Lorre, Edward Arnold and others. As Raskolnikov, the student who murders an elderly pawnbroker, Lorre is juvenile, arrogant, sarcastic and at the same time tortured. Except that his appearance belies him, Lorre would be giving the perfect performance. Opposed to him is Arnold, a calm, mature, well-fed police official, content to use psychology in trapping the culprit, chuckling as much at his own craft as at his victim. Mrs. Pat Campbell as the pawnbroker has a glitteringly valuable bit, Elisabeth Risdon is an ideal mother, Tala Birell excellent as the murderer's sister. Sternberg has them all react normally, attempting at no time to gloss over the horrible parts of the story. Even Marian Marsh, revealed in the past as one of the shallowest vessels available, approximates something of a dramatic actress. The Dostoievsky novel is admittedly more profound than the new picture. "Crime and Punishment," as now on the screen, is only a vitally intelligent detective story. But an attempt to have shown the inner workings of the soul more in detail might have been too much for the audience. Credit is due then to the present production, expertly handled from beginning to end, and clipped at its dramatic finish.

SO RED THE ROSE. The technique of another director, King Vidor, lends character to "So Red the Rose," at the Orpheum. The plot, inspired by the Stark Young novel, has no great merit. Those who read the book will recall that it gave an enticingly authentic description of the home life of the Mississippi nobility during the Civil War, here and there bringing in some poignant part of the tragedy to those families, but often concerned with merely gossiping about such things as Gen. Grant's false teeth. In the hands of Laurence Stallings, Maxwell Anderson and Edward Justus Mayer, the book has become a screen play telling how a Southern boy, Duncan Bedford, remained a conscientious objector until the Battle of Shiloh, then went to war and finally came back to Vallette Bedford, his cousin. Vidor, who can rest his fame on "Hallelujah" and "The Big Parade," does just that in "So Red the Rose." The scenes which accompany the title material appear to be duplicates of those in "Hallelujah," the conclusion of the picture, with Randolph Scott and Margaret Sullavan rushing toward each other, recalls the heavenly reunion of John Gilbert and Renee Adoree. "So Red the Rose" has its fine performances, by Miss Sullavan, Scott, Janet Beecher, Walter Connolly, Elizabeth Patterson and Johnny Downs (in the "Yankee boy" scene). Its emotional appeal is strong, its method of covering the war at no time tedious. The scene in which Sally Bedford—Agnes McGehee it was in the book—sets off for the battlefield of Shiloh to find her son's body, and one later in which she finds it are done magnificently, with the simplicity of which Vidor is individually capable. Other sequences are filmed as well, except where the slaves are assembled in the manner of an operatic chorus. Only a tendency to view the South as mint julep country, and an unimportance of story have kept Vidor from putting over "So Red the Rose" as brilliantly as some of his other successes. The Orpheum also is showing "To Beat the Band," a musical farce with Hugh Herbert and Helen Broderick.

METROPOLITAN. The troubles of opera production, with no money to pay orchestra, costume and scenery companies, and the other creditors, come up in "Metropolitan," at the Ambassador. We need not go into them, except to say that the show emerges on the right side of the ledger and Lawrence Tibbett hugs Virginia Bruce between curtain calls, and it's all over. Luis Alberni, one of the standard opera fixtures, and music from "Carmen," "The Barber of Seville" and "Pagliacci," all standard, too, are there. If the production generally matched Tibbett's singing, "Metropolitan" would have been the kind of a show to set a reviewer button-holing strangers, gasping out the good news. "On the Road to Mandalay" and "De Glory Road," sung together at the beginning of the picture, build a peak of emotion that is never reached again. "Largo Al Factotum," for example, comes later and while it is an enjoyable bit of vocal tap-dancing, it doesn't take anybody to "de glory." Aside from Tibbett, another notable thing is the unconventional settings for operas, ensembles which have the air of Busby Berkeley about them but which ought to set some fogies thinking.

IN PERSON. At the Shubert is Ginger Rogers in a picture, "In Person," and not in person. Straightening that out, motion picture audiences may settle down to enjoyment of a little comedy about a star who couldn't stand the excitement of being mobbed by autograph hunters and who, in Hollywood's modest manner, went around escaping attention by wearing a heavy veil with a sport outfit. A set of buck teeth, a pair of spectacles and a crusader's wig figure in the story, too, but finally George Brent gets Ginger up in the mountains and makes her wash dishes. She reacts favorably to the great outdoors, where piccolos sing all day long, and eventually sets out to marry him. Such is accomplished finally as a shotgun wedding. "In Person" should be set down as better than average in comedy situations, but lacking punch at the finish. "Frisco Kid," another session with Barbary Coast, completes the program. It is an extravagant melodrama, with many people milling around in gambling halls, torchlight processions and lynching parties.

"Mutiny On the Bounty" remains at Loew's. Among the week's offerings, the best line-up for quite a spell, it would rank at or near the top.

CODY, JOHN—In memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, who died Dec. 1, 1927.
Eight years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away,
With a smile on our face, still there's a heartache.
Longing dear Johnie for you.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

FRANCIS, GEORGE — Nov. 26, 1934.
Asleep in Jesus. Gone, but your loving kindness shall never be forgotten.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN, GRANDCHILDREN.

HAMMEL, GEORGE—In memory of my dear husband, who died Dec. 6, 1933.
Enshrined in my heart live memories dear. MRS. BERTHA HAMMEL.

HEPPE, CHARLES PHILLIP SR.—In loving remembrance of my husband and our father, who passed away Nov. 29, 1934.
As he lies in peaceful sleep
His memory we shall always keep.
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

LEAHY, AGNES—Died Dec. 4, 1934:
Surrounded by friends we are lonesome;
In the midst of our joy we are blue;
With a smile on our face we have a heartache;
Longing, dear mother, for you.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN, SISTERS and All Who Loved Her.

LENKE, ALFRED W.—In memory of my beloved husband, who departed this life Nov. 28, 1934:
The call was sudden, the shock severe,
When God called you home, my dear;
Surrounded by friends I am lonesome and blue,
My heart aches only for you.
Sadly missed by HIS WIFE.

MAURER, EDWARD—In loving memory of our dear brother, whom God called home Dec. 1, 1934:
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days.
Sincere and true in his heart and mind;
A beautiful memory he left behind.
He had a nature you could not help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold;
And to those who knew him and loved him
His memory will never grow cold.
Sadly missed by his SISTERS AND BROTHERS and All
Who Loved Him.
THE MAURER FAMILY.

RITTER, JOSEPHINE—In loving memory of my dear wife, who departed this life Nov. 30, 1921.

Sadly missed by HUSBAND.

ROSSMAN, JOHN H.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away Nov 30, 1934:
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
World's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore
Till God called him home, to suffer no more
Sadly missed by WIFE.

WESTBROOK, MAMIE—In loving remembrance of my dear wife and mother, Mamie Westbrook, who departed from us Nov. 28, 1934:
Time rolls on, it will not stay;
What grief we felt that sad day;
With one so loving, kind and true,
How hard it was to part with you.
The flowers we placed upon your grave
may wither and decay,
But love for you who sleeps beneath will never fade away.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, DAUGHTER AND SON.

WILHELMS-SCHEERER, EDNA—In sacred memory of our loved one who departed this life Dec. 1, 1934, age 31 years.

Miss Jaquelin Cary Chapman Engaged to Robert Sherman

Betrothal Announced at Cocktail Party at Chapman Home—Wedding to Be Important Social Event of Mid-Winter.

THE engagement of Miss Jaquelin Cary Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gaines Chapman Jr., and Robert Arnold Sherman of St. Louis, formerly of Westerly, R. I., was announced late yesterday evening to a group of young friends invited for cocktails at the Chapman home, 58 Kingsbury place.

The wedding, closely following the engagement announcement, one of the most important of the year, will take place in February. After their honeymoon trip, Mr. Sherman and his bride will return to St. Louis to live.

Miss Chapman received her early education at Mary Institute and the John Burroughs School, and was graduated from the Mary C. Wheeler School in Providence, R. I. In 1929 and 1930 she traveled in Europe with Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln, returning to Boston to study music. She was presented to society in the fall of 1931 at a ball given by her parents at the Bellerive Country Club, and is a member of the Junior League.

Miss Chapman is a sister of Mrs. Arthur Furber Greer of New York, the former Miss Alice Chapman, whom she and her mother will visit this week, and her grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Chapman Sr., of Detroit, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taylor Campbell, who lived in St. Louis many years. She is a niece of Mrs. Julian Perry Bowen of Grosse Point, Mich., and of Charles G. Chapman of Detroit.

Mr. Sherman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sherman of Westerly, is a graduate of the Taft School, Watertown, Conn. He was a member of the Ivy Club at Princeton, which he attended for two years before transferring to the University of Virginia where he was graduated He belonged to the St. Anthony Club at the latter college, and after moving to St. Louis five years ago became a member of the St. Louis Country Club.

Miss Catherine Cates To Wed Charles Hough

MR. AND MRS. LA MOTTE CATES, 4535 Maryland avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Catharine Cates, and Charles Hough of Los Angeles, Cal. Miss Cates, a graduate of Villa Duchesne, in the class of 1930, is a granddaughter of Mrs. Mullanphy Cates, and a niece of Mrs. Edmund F. Gorman.

With her mother, Miss Cates has been in Los Angeles for several months, and the wedding will take place there some time before Christmas.

Miss Helen Austin Wed to B. C. Miller

AT Grace Episcopal Church, Kirkwood, yesterday morning, at 11:30 o'clock, Miss Helen Virginia Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Austin, 433 South Kirkwood road, Kirkwood, was married to Bruce Clinton Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Miller of Pittsburgh, Pa., formerly of Webster Groves. The Rev. Dr. Robert O. Kevin performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a chive green suit of pebbled wool trimmed with a blue fox collar, a hat of the same shade and brown slippers. The short coat was fitted, and the blouse was of eggshell satin. She wore a corsage of lavender orchids. Mrs. Frank J. Bush Jr., sister of the bride and her only attendant, was gowned in a street-length dress of gold colored crepe fashioned with a tunic, the front and sleeves trimmed with covered buttons. She wore brown accessories and a corsage of green orchids. Mrs. Austin wore wine-colored crepe and a bouquet of gardenias.

A reception was to have been held immediately after the ceremony at the bride's home, but invitations to it were recalled on account of the illness of the bridegroom's grandmother. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will live in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Miller attended the University of Wisconsin at Madison where he became a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He was graduated from Washington University. The bride attended Washington University and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Miss Adele Morris To Be Wed Dec. 28

ANNOUNCEMENT was made last week of the approaching marriage of Miss Adele Eugenia Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carson Morris of Farmington, Mo., to Donald Jackson McClure, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell H. McClure, 114 Plant avenue, Webster Groves. The wedding will take place Dec. 28 at 4:30 p. m. at the Morris home.

Miss Morris attended Lindenwood College and was graduated from the University of Missouri, where she was a member of Alpha Phi sorority. Mr. McClure was graduated from Washington University, where he joined Beta Theta Pi fraternity. Mrs. Milton Pleasant Cayce, aunt of the prospective bride, entertained for her yesterday afternoon at a tea attended by Mrs. Charles W. Hudson, Mrs. Genevieve S. Logan and Mrs. McClure.

Miss Siegmund Is Married to W. H. Dittmann

MISS CATHERINE ELIZABETH SIEGMUND, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter F. Siegmund, 225 West Swon avenue, Webster Groves, and William Henry Dittmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Dittmann, 547 Sherwood drive, Webster Groves, were married yesterday at 4:30 p. m. at the Siegmund home, the Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, officiating. The simple service, which was witnessed only by the immediate families, was performed before a fireplace banked with greenery and white chrysanthemums, on either side of which stood slanting standards of white tapers.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Dittmann home. The bridal party, consisting of the bride and bridegroom, the bride's sister, Miss Christine Siegmund, and Frederick D. Powell, received with Mr. and Mrs. Siegmund and Mr. and Mrs. Dittmann before a fireplace decorated with chrysanthemums in the fall shades. The bride and her maid of honor wore slipper satin gowns made on Empire lines with short tight bodices and wide skirts in which the fullness originated at the waistline in back. The necklines were cut to a deep V in front and outlined by slightly ruffled collars. The sleeves were elbow length, puffed at the top, and the only ornament on the gowns were jeweled clips at the neckline. The bride's dress was of a brilliant shade of copper which was repeated in her colonial bouquet of pompoms and Joanna Hill roses. That of her attendant was jade green and her smaller bouquet was of copper-colored pompoms. Mrs. Siegmund wore an accordion pleated green chiffon gown trimmed with rhinestones and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Dittmann wore orchid velvet and orchids to match.

The bride received her education at Ward-Belmont College, Nashville, Tenn., and at Washington University, where she became a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Mr. Dittmann also attended Washington University and is a member of Sigma Chi. After spending a week in Chicago they will be at home at 605 State street, Alton.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Elizabeth Virginia Siegmund, a sister of the bride who is studying at Ward-Belmont College; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bluthardt of Minneapolis, grandparents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Sharp of Minneapolis, uncle and aunt of the bridegroom, and their daughter, Miss Sue.

Miss Jane Helbig Becomes Bride of Diedrich F. Rixmann

WHITE chrysanthemums and greenery decorated Emanuel Episcopal Church, Webster Groves, for the wedding last night at 8:30 o'clock of Miss Jane Annie Helbig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Helbig, 522 Hollywood place, Webster Groves, to Diedrich Friedrich Rixmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Diedrich Rixmann of Centralia, Ill. The service, which took place by candlelight, was conducted by the Rev. J. Manly Cobb.

The bride was gowned in ivory-colored satin, molding the figure to the knees where it flared into a train. It had dolman sleeves trimmed with rows of covered buttons, which were also used down the back of the dress. The high cowl neckline was draped above several rows of shirring. The veil was attached, by a wreath of orange blossoms, to a cap of Venetian point lace worn by her mother at her wedding and she carried her mother's handkerchief of the same lace. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Virginia Leigh Cook was maid of honor, and Miss Janette Blackmer Miller bridesmaid. Miss Cook wore peach-colored moire with a full skirt shirred to the waist. It had a V neckline trimmed with a collar and a cluster of gold grapes at the front. The sleeves were short and puffed, and she wore a brown maline off the face hat and brown slippers. She carried an arm bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums. Miss Miller's gown and accessories were made like those of the maid of honor, but her dress was ginger colored. Mrs. Helbig was gowned in maroon crepe moire, and Mrs. Rixmann in French blue shot with silver. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

George W. Schaeffer was best man, and the ushers were Bert A. Lynch; Donald L. Freeman of Kansas City, Richard C. Baldwin of Centralia, Ill., and John G. Chapman of Burlington, Ia.

Immediately after the wedding a reception was held at the Helbig home for the bridal party, the two families and a few friends. Out of town guests included: Miss Elizabeth and Miss Marie Rixmann of Centralia, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rixmann of Nashville, Ill., Reinhardt Rixmann, relatives of the bridegroom, and Mrs. A. V. B. Hall of Evanston, Ill., an aunt of the bride.

The bride is a member of one of the old St. Louis families and is a great-granddaughter of Asa An[illegible]. She attended Washington University where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mr. Rixmann also attended Washington University and was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Miss Virginia Leigh Cook entertained at a dinner party Friday after the rehearsal at her home, 222 Spencer road, Webster Groves, for the bridal party and these friends: Miss Jane Scholz, Miss Catherine Taylor, Miss Betty Greenland, Miss Clara Louise Frampton, Miss Elizabeth Faring, Mrs. John W. Cook, William Milton and Alan Caldwell.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.

NOT until after his death did the town begin to appreciate the color lent its social scene by the late Prince Matchabelli. The Russian naval ball came around a week or so ago, and it was strikingly apparent how much his absence deprived the occasion of the fun and gayety of other years. When Matchabelli ran the party most of the White Russians came in their old uniforms, dating from the days of the Czars, and danced Cossack dances and sang old songs until breakfast time. It was a spiritless fellow who didn't wear his decorations or military tunic, and the band used to play the national anthem when the Grand Duchess Marie made her entrance in native Russian costume. This year the ball was just one more white tie levee and a dreary one.

There were no uniforms, no decorations, no Matchabelli to lead the dancing in his skirted Cossack coat with cartridge cartouches swung over the front of it. Every one sat and adjusted monocles at each other, for all the world like the Charity Ball, or any other fixed but not too festive feast. It was all high-toned, but not too gay, and toward the middle of the morning almost everybody seemed to find themselves in John Perona's El Morocco, or across the street in Barney Gallant's new spot. Perhaps New York's Russians really have forgotten the old days and have settled down to be mere prosperous Manhattanites. Certainly they have shed all the old abandon which used to characterize their parties, and the town is the poorer for their conformity.

Speaking of Barney Gallant's little boite de nuit, it is one of the handsomest and most tasteful clubs of the season. The two simple rooms, a ballroom and restaurant, are decorated in subdued tints, and the music is above the reproach of the most captious. Naturally, it is Barney himself who makes the place click. He knows every patron who sets foot in the premises. Folk of the school who actually like to move around the dance floor and seek to lift a glass of wine without putting it in a neighbor's face, prefer it there.

This week's Beatrice Lillie anecdote concerns a trans-Atlantic telephone call which the droll star of "At Home Abroad" was awaiting with agitated anticipation. Finally the trunk call was plugged through from Paris and a French operator inquired if it was really Lady Peel? Auditors in Miss Lillie's apartment were convulsed to hear her reply: "Allo, 'allo! Mais oui! C'est Lady [illegible]rle qui peel!"

Tony Williams told us that he had received commissions to build two old-time Inverness opera cloaks, the first in years, and forecasts a revival of swirling capes in the evening. There actually seems to be such a renaissance afoot, and at the opening of "Jumbo," which was the dressiest lunacy in decades, there were half a dozen opera cloaks in evidence, two of them crimson lined. Dick Maney, Billy Rose's press agent, swore they were authentic cash customers and not members of the circus staff.

Miss Jane Helbig Becomes Bride of Diedrich F. Rixmann

WHITE chrysanthemums and greenery decorated Emanuel Episcopal Church, Webster Groves, for the wedding last night at 8:30 o'clock of Miss Jane Annis Helbig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Helbig, 522 Hollywood place, Webster Groves, to Diedrich Friedrich Rixmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Diedrich Rixmann of Centralia, Ill. Continued From Page One.

pastel pottery, holding roses similar to those in the centerpiece.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Jones, 5601 Washington court, were host and hostess at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at their home in honor of Miss Ruth Deibel, Miss Frances Charlot and Miss Elizabeth James. About 45 debutantes and their escorts were guests at the party.

Mrs. Jones, until her recent marriage, was Miss Laura Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ashley Gray, 9 Lenox place.

Mrs. Robert Holmes of the St. Louis Country Club grounds was hostess to a small group of the debutantes and their escorts at the St. Louis Country Club dinner dance last night in honor of Miss Lila Marshall Childress, Veiled Prophet queen.

In addition to the group of Miss Childress' friends, Mrs. Holmes had a table at the club party for 17 of her friends and at another table her daughter, Miss Caro Holmes, and her son, John Holmes and his fiance, Miss Ann Francis, entertained a group of their friends in honor of Miss Katherine Dart of Dayton, O., who is visiting Miss Holmes until Tuesday.

The guests at Miss Childress' table were: Miss Katherine Burg, and her guest, Miss Emily French of Orange, N. J.; Miss Vera Angert, Miss Elizabeth Freeman, Miss Elizabeth James, Miss Ann Shapleigh, Miss Kathleen Wallace and her guest. Miss Elizabeth Patterson of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Blanche Fischel, Miss Ruth Diebel, Miss Sally Bridge, Miss Martha O'Neil, Miss Betty Brown, Miss Frances Charlot, Miss Eugenie Evans and Miss Childress' guests, Miss Elizabeth Windell and Miss Sue Todd Roy of Louisville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Burbach, 8 Southmoor, entertained a group of the debutantes and their escorts at the annual Thanksgiving party at the Missouri Athletic association last night for Miss Virginia Moser. In addition to the younger set Mr. and Mrs. Burbach had a table for a few friends of the parents of the guest of honor, Mr. and Mrs. Byron W. Moser, 27 Washington terrace.

SEEN AT GREENFIELDS
PRUDENCE PERCHASE

WE heard a rumor about it, and you know how we are about rumors! We couldn't be happy until we'd barged right down there to satisfy our feminine curiosity. And, it's true! It's really true! GREENFIELD'S are having a big Pre-Christmas Sale all this week. Well, of course, we couldn't be content with just knowing that either! We had to go 'round and find out all about it. And, we had the loveliest time digging up all the best bargains! Just wait till we tell you about them!

* * *

THE first thing that caught our roving eye was the neckwear! Well, even a girl who's been accused of not appreciating a good-looking tie when she sees it on an even better-looking boy-friend would know at a glance that this is really exceptional neckwear. The newest designs in really fine imported silks, French moires, satins, reps, basket-weaves—we weren't at all surprised to hear that they usually sell for $1.50, $2, $2.50, and even $3.00, but we were simply pop-eyed with astonishment when we heard that you can get them for only $1.15 each, during the sale.

AND the best part of it all is that Greenfield's extended charge account service makes these gifts as easy to get as a Reno divorce. You know how it works, of course. There's no initial payment and no carrying charge. You just buy whatever you want now during the sale and pay one-third on January 10th, one-third on February 10th, and one-third on March 10th.

* * *

FATHERS are so mistreated! They'll tell you so, too, on every possible occasion. And really, a little spoiling won't do them any harm—especially at Christmas time. For instance, there's those silk robes, which you can get in the pre-Christmas sale for only $8.95. (They're usually $12.50 and $15, you know.) And then there's those silk pajamas for only $3.95 (usually $5). Just hand him either or both of those on Christmas morning and the old boy'll have a bigger grin than he had that day he got a hole-in-one!

Bride-to-Be

MISS BERTHE FREYER, who will become the bride in January of Bernard Sanders Friedman. She is the daughter of Charles Freyer, 4615 Lindell boulevard.

SCHOOL and COLLEGE LIFE

TWO committees to handle preliminary arrangements for the annual bazaar at the Washington University School of Fine Arts have been selected by Miss Dorothy Bartholoemy and Douglas Pearce, joint chairman of the general committee. The bazaar will be held Dec. 12, 13 and 14, at the Art School.

Carrying out the Oriental theme of the affair, students, members of the Art School faculty, and former students of the school are already gathering exhibits and various sorts of articles for sale. There will be paintings, sketches, leather goods, such as purses, key rings, book covers and book marks; batik scarfs, handkerchiefs and small hangings; hand-woven towels, napkins, neckties and scarfs; various sorts of jewelry and a great variety of original hand-painted Christmas cards.

Among those whose works will be for sale are Miss Sarah Matteson, instructor in weaving; Miss Agnes Booth, instructor in leather work; Miss Doris Plant, a former student of the late Victor Holm; Fred Drehr, a former student who has won the foreign fellowship, and Elizabeth Tenney, a former student who has started a fad among the women of St. Louis with her unique pottery buttons.

The committees chosen to date are as follows: Decoration, Dorothy Bartholemy, Jane Shellabarger, Alice Beedle, Nancy Stickells, Shirley Lee Baron, Marion Milks, Howard Bowen, Raymond Matteuzzi, Kathleen Daly, Dell Dawson, Ed Yates, Hubert Taenzer, John Burda and Tony Rosso; Checking and Receiving Committee, Zoe Willson, Florence Tancill, Effie Zeibig, Helen Dalies, Allison Johnston, Arlayne Sheets, Thelma Smith, Anne Kern and Elizabeth Tamm.

The annual debating contest of Hosmer Hall will take place Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. in the school auditorium.

The contest was established several years ago by Edward J. White, president of the Hosmer Hall Board of Trustees, in an effort to promote an intelligent study of our Federal Constitution and Government. Honors are awarded to the winning team and a prize is given for the best individual work in forensics. The subjects for debate this year is, "Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States should be amended to provide for national control of economic and social problems."

The affirmative will be upheld by Miss Elaine Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Cohen, and Miss Maryhope Chaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Chaney; the negative will be argued by Miss Mary Frances Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett T. Carter, and Miss Marjorie Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Dixon. Miss Jeanne Harney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. G. Harney and president of the student body, will preside. Judges will be C. Arthur Anderson, Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County; the Rev. Harold Locke Reader, D. D., pastor of the Webster Groves Baptist Church, and Elliott W. Beckett.

The St. Louis University Playhouse Club will entertain its members Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in room A-106 of the St. Louis University. Miss Rosemary Hart Case will direct a puppet show and performances will be given of "Box and Cox" and "The Interview." The performers will be Miss Kathleen Land, Miss Catherine Jett McCauley, Garvey Bridge, Jack Evans and Gerald Koetting.

Thomas P. Neill, St. Louis University, Student Conclave representative for the College of Arts and Sciences, in which he is a junior, was elected president of the Philalethic Society at the meeting held Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Forensics Room of the Administration Building. At the next meeting to be held tomorrow evening a series of "shoestring talks" will be featured.

Mr. Neill, who was chosen president by a large majority, is a member of the Key and Letter division of the debating squad. Ervin Pollack, Law School freshman, was elected vice-president; Elsie Hobelman, Arts senior, and president of the Playhouse Club, secretary-treasurer; and Gerald Koetting, Commerce sophomore and city editor of the News, literary critic.

The Fontbonne College Alumnae Association is making plans for a musical lecture to be given by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord S. J., Sunday afternoon, Dec. 15, in the Fontbonne Little Theater.

Mrs. John E. Riley Jr., president of the alumnae, at a meeting of the executive board last week, appointed Miss Lucille McDonald as general chairman in charge of all the arrangements. The following committees were appointed to assist Miss McDonald: Ticket Committee, Miss Mary Aloysia Knapp, Miss Marybelle McCoole, and Miss Alma Tackaberry; Decoration Committee, Mrs. Donald Gunn, Miss Helen Schulte, Mrs. E. D. Tenaglia, Miss Rosemary Case, Mrs. Douglas Reis and Miss Leona Hall; Refreshment Committee, Miss Eleanor Baer, Miss Vera Lo Piccolo, Mrs. James Thompson, Miss Vita Viviano, Miss Corinne Dewes, Miss Theresa Burmeister, and Miss Elizabeth Watson.

Further plans will be made at the monthly meeting of the alumnae this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Ryan Hall.

The Alumnae Association of the University of Missouri will hold its next meeting Saturday at 2:30 p. m., at the College Club, 5428 Delmar boulevard.

Miss Eva Johnston, retired dean, and Miss Mary McKee, the present dean of women and director of physical education, will be the speakers.

The hostesses will be Mrs. J. L. Orten, Mrs. E. L. Ocker, Mrs. O. J. Rotty and Miss Alice Hall.

Beta Chi, honorary horseback riding sorority of Lindenwood College, is sponsoring a horse show on the campus of Lindenwood, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in which 50 students, besides the members of Beta Chi, will take part. Races for championship will be a leading event of the afternoon. Exhibition riding, in which the 13 members of the sorority as well as others, will participate, will include three-gaited and five-gaited classes; driving, single and double; ponies in harness and in saddle and jumping. The final championship race is to be for a quarter of a mile stretch over a course within the campus.

Miss Pearl Walker, soprano soloist of Second Presbyterian Church, and a member of the music faculty of Lindenwood College, will give her annual recital at the college, in Roemer Auditorium, Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, with Paul Friess as accompanist. She will give a full program, beginning with a selection from "Aida." Compositions of Leoncavallo, Schubert, Strauss, Hahn and others will be rendered.

The Maryville College Glee Club will give its first concert of the season on Tuesday at 2 o'clock.

The nominees from Maryville for the second edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities have been announced. Miss Charlotte Perabo of Tupelo, Miss. and Miss Barbara Furstenberg of Denver, Colo. are the two students chosen to represent the college in the 1935 edition.

Three graduates of John Burroughs School now attending Harvard University have been awarded scholarships by the university for 1935-1936. The scholarships are granted in recognition of consistent excellence in studies.

Eugene H. Buder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Buder, 8 Carrswold drive, Clayton, received a Harvard college scholarship. When he graduated from John Burroughs in June, 1934, he was voted first citizen of the school. He was placed on the dean's list at the end of the first semester of his freshman year at Harvard.

Philip T. Shahan, son of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Shahan of Oakleigh lane, Clayton, was awarded a John Harvard scholarship. He graduated from John Burroughs with honors in June, 1934, and also won a place on the Dean's List at Harvard at the end of his first semester as a freshman.

George F. Tittmann, who graduated from John Burroughs in 1934 and now lives in New York City, has been awarded the Hollis scholarship. He won his "H" last spring as a member of the Harvard baseball team.

Wilbur Trueblood Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Trueblood, 751 Yale avenue, a graduate of John Burroughs School, June, 1934, is the assistant program manager of the Princeton University Triangle Club, whose forthcoming production, "What a Relief," will be presented in St. Louis during the Christmas holidays. Mr. Trueblood is also on the business board of the "Daily Princetonian," undergraduate newspaper.

Webster Groves

DR. AND MRS. MELVIN A. THORPE returned Wednesday from Chicago where they spent their honeymoon following their wedding Nov. 23 at First Methodist Episcopal Church of Webster Groves. She was Miss Helen Frances Stephens, daughter of Dean and Mrs. G. W. Stephens, 121 West Cedar avenue. They are occupying an apartment at 5863 Maple avenue, St. Louis, at present but expect to move into their new home at 23 West Fairway avenue, Algonquin Wood, the middle of this month.

Among those who spent the Thanksgiving holidays out of town are: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Alexander Schmid of Sappington and Manchester roads who left last Wednesday for Nashville, Tenn. to visit their daughter, Miss Edwine Schmid, a senior at Ward-Belmont College. They were accompanied by Miss Mary Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Stevens, 138 Jefferson road, who attended Ward-Belmont last year. The expected to return today.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Steele, 123 West Jackson road, and their family returned Friday from Pittsfield, Ill., where they spent Thanksgiving with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Dayton King. Mr. and Mrs. King accompanied them home to spend a few days.

Mrs. Lucien Miller, 449 Sherwood drive, and her young daughter, Nancy, left Tuesday for Tulsa, Ok., where they are visiting Mrs. Miller's parents. Capt. and Mrs. B. M. Harloe, 424 Park road, and family were the guests for the holidays of Maj. and Mrs. William A. Snow of Fort Leavenworth, Kan., formerly of Webster Groves. Mrs. Harloe recently returned from after spending five weeks in New York and Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Richards, 126 Gray avenue, have as their guest Mr. Richards' sister, Mrs. O. W. Connet of Baltimore, Md. She was guest of honor at a tea last Sunday given by Mrs. Howard R. Becker, 345 Way avenue, Kirkwood.

Mrs. Thomas J. Kelley Jr., 219 Portland terrace, entertained at a bridge luncheon Tuesday.

The following committee chairmen are working on the annual Christmas bazaar which First Congregatioal Church will hold next Thursday at the church under the auspices of the Women's Association: Mrs. Walter Scholz, Mrs. H. Troy Tankersley, Mrs. Frank Mead, Mrs. Ward Goodloe and Mrs. J. F. Shaffer. Mrs. C. B. Kenamore is general chairman, and Mrs. A. D. Greenlee is president of the association. Luncheon will be served from noon to 1:30 p. m., and a turkey dinner will be served buffet style from 6 to 7 p. m.

Mrs. W. D. Bassett, 125 East Cedar avenue, has as her guest her mother, Mrs. Jennie G. Huse of Warsaw, Mo., who will remain until the first of this week.

Mrs. James Tilley, 119 Portland terrace, returned last week from Hot Springs, Ark., where she spent several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur T. Chambers, as a guest at the Arlington Hotel. Mrs. Chambers will return later.

Miss Mary Jane Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Moore, 423 Belleview avenue, returned recently from New York and Westfield, N. J., where she visited Mr. and Mrs. Gentry Stuart and Miss Catherine Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Stuart, 451 West Swon avenue.

Mrs. L. M. Callison of New York arrived last week to spend Thanksgiving and Christmas with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. George F. Reddish, 245 Blackmer place. Mrs. Reddish celebrated her mother's birthday at a dinner party Thursday.

Mrs. Charles J. Becker, 156 Helfenstein road, left Friday for Maysville, Ky., with her daughter, Mrs. F. Manson Gilbert of Maysville, who came to Webster Groves to attend the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. L. J. Mueller.

Invitations have been received for the wedding of Miss Jane Ellen Moore, daughter of Arthur Moore, 745 Oakland avenue, to Douglass E. Wendel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wendel, 617 Fair Oaks. The wedding will take place at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Dec. 14, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hoke, 7441 York drive, Clayton.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Charles C. Hoke, and Max Wendell will be best man.

Miss Dorothy Akard, 542 North Clay avenue, Kirkwood, gave a party Friday afternoon in honor of the bride-elect, and yesterday Miss Mildred Taylor and Miss Anne Frisell gave a similar party at the home of Miss Frissell, 623 Westborough place, in Webster Groves. Miss Jeanne Crull, 909 West Lockwood avenue, Glendale, will entertain for Miss Moore Saturday.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Breen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Breen Sr., 309 Clark avenue, to Earl Craswell Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Peters, 307 Marshall avenue, took place Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at First Methodist Church of Webster Groves, the Rev. Cassius English Street performing the ceremony. Palms and ferns formed a background for large baskets of white chrysanthemums and standards of white candles.

The bride's gown of white velvet had a high cowl neckline, full sleeves terminating in a tight cuff and a crushed girdle. The skirt was split up the front, revealing the feet, and the train was set in at the knees in back. She wore a tulle veil held to the head by a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her sister, Mrs. Andrew Stevens, who was matron of honor, wore a rust-colored velvet dress with full corded elbow-length sleeves and a high cowl neckline. She carried a bouquet of gold and brown chrysanthemums tied with bronze ribbon. The other bridesmaids were Mrs. Russell T. Williams of Glendale and Miss Ruth Richardson. Their gowns were made like that of the matron of honor, but Mrs. William's was brown and Miss Richardson's green. They also carried chrysanthemums in the fall shades.

The bridegroom had as best man his brother, Lloyd Peters, and as ushers William H. Breen Jr. and Edward Breen, brothers of the bride; Leslie Dougherty, his cousin, and Russell T. Williams. A reception followed at the Breen home. Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Otis Peters of Effingham, Ill., grandparents of the bridegroom; Miss Mabel Peters of Birmingham, Ala., aunt of the bridegroom, and Miss Irene Turner of Birmingham, a cousin.

Mr. Stevens attended Washington University School of Engineering. After their return from their honeymoon, he and his bride will live at 6653 Berthold avenue, St. Louis.

Mrs. Emily C. Kincade of Kansas City arrived Tuesday for an extended visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Kincade, 474 Woodlawn avenue.

GIFTS in Fur

What is it to be this year? A chain of silky sables to loop about her throat? Foxes—deep, dark and frosted with the silver that is infinitely precious? A queenly wrap of ermine—or mink, superbly matched? The choice is hers—of course. But you can make her delight doubly sure by choosing that gift of fur at the new Steinberg's. For she knows—and so should you—that furs are like diamonds. Only from a reputable house can they be chosen with complete confidence. + + +

6380 Beau Brummel TIES

A Special Holiday Purchase

The Best Values We've Ever Offered at $1.00 In a Gift Box, Of Course!

Special doesn't begin to cover this purchase . . . days were spent hand-picking . . . adding . . . discarding patterns . . . until we finally arrived at a complete selection of colors, patterns, fabrics that will please any and every man . . . we know because men made the selection for men . . . that Gift Minded Shoppers would be assured of fashion right, man minded ties.

Quick Facts About Vandervoort's More Than Complete Collection

Baratheas, $1.00

Stripe combinations, colors which have never been equalled . . . triple or duo tones in reds, blues, browns, deep or bright

Rep Silks, $1.00

In regimental color stripes or deep tone combinations . . . you can take your pick from nearly a hundred combinations.

Boucles, $1.00

That rough and ready fabric in new plaids, new color combinations . . . that continue to make it a popular man's choice.

Charvets, $1.00

New spaced figures, rich browns, blues, deep reds . . . make up this group of smartly and intricately designed figures.

Wools, $1.00

In soft, rich weaves that make a perfect knot, and they're patterned in an extensive selection of plaids, checks and stripes.

Satins, $1.00

Some woven, some printed patterns, stripes, broken stripes, and spaced figures . . . rich in appearance and richer in value.

Basket Weaves, $1.00

They've been worn for years . . . and will continue for years to come, especially when patterns as new as these small checks and diamond weaves are produced in such desirable blues and reds.

"BEAU BRUMMEL" set the pace in men's fashions years ago . . . and Beau Brummel Ties set the pace in Men's Neckwear today . . . both in style and workmanship . . . that's the reason men select and buy for themselves thousands of dozens of Beau Brummel Ties at Vandervoort's year in and year out.

WEDDINGS and ENGAGEMENTS

Clements-Burke

The wedding of Miss Mary Virginia Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil A. Burke, 4139 Camellia avenue, and Harold M. Clements, son of Mrs. F. L. Clements of Houston, Tex., took place Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. The Rev. William Mullally, cousin of the bride, performed the marriage ceremony, and her godfather, the Rev. J. J. Sullivan, celebrated the mass at the Holy Rosary Church. Father Lavery, Father McMahon, Father Toomey, Father Kohnen, Father O'Keeffe, and Father Morgan were in the sanctuary.

Miss Patricia A. Burke attended her sister as maid of honor, and Miss Mary Magdalene Rapp was bridesmaid. They wore wine-colored velvet with gold accessories. The bride was in white satin. J. Frederick Schlafly Jr. and Neil Gallagher Jr., the bride's cousin, acted as groomsmen.

The newlyweds will make their home in Freer, Tex., where Mr. Clements is associated with the Humble Pipe Line & Oil Co.

Mrs. Clements is a graduate of Xavier School for Girls and her husband is an alumnus of Georgetown University at Washington.

Lake-Fixman.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Fixman, 6309 Cates avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Clarabelle Fixman, and Sam Lake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Lake, 6265 Clemens avenue.

Gudder-Carleen.

Miss Ann Carleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Carleen, 5166 Kensington avenue, became the bride of Ullus Gudder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gudder of Centralia, Ill., last Sunday at 6 p. m. in the Crystal Room of Hotel Chase. Rabbi A. E. Halpern performed the ceremony, which was followed by a dinner and reception.

The bride wore a white satin gown with a yoke of seed pearls and a long train.

The wedding party included: Mrs. Louis Fenberg of Des Moines, Ia., sister of the bride; George Gudder, brother of the bridegroom; Marian Gudder and Shirley Partegyl, junior bridesmaids; and Gertrude Ann Partegyl as flower girl.

After a short trip through the South, Mr. Gudder and his bride will reside in Centralia.

Tamsky-Goldberg

The engagement of Miss Charlotte Goldberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goldberg, 7000 Natural Bridge road, Beverly Hills, to Al M. Tamsky, son of Mrs. A. A. Tamsky, 3137 Park avenue, has been announced by parents of the prospective bride.

Cunniff-Keating

Mrs. Daniel Keating, 4322 College avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Catherine Frances, and Walter J. Cunniff, Thanksgiving morning at 9 o'clock at the Holy Name Church, Grand boulevard and Emily street. The bride's brother, the Rev. Joseph G. Keating, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a breakfast at the Gatesworth Hotel. Miss Katherine Gilbane was maid of honor, and James Keating, another brother of the bride, best man. After a honeymoon to Atlanta and Savannah, Ga., the bridal pair will live at 4848 Penrose street.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ella Cunniff, 5214 Northland avenue.

Bischoff-Eckhardt

MISS ANNALOUISE ECKHARDT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Eckhardt of Belleville, became the bride of Julius Wiley Bischoff, Tuesday at 8 p. m. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius M. Bischoff, 3150 Geyer avenue. The Rev. D. C. Boyd, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Belleville, performed the ceremony at the Eckhardt home. It was decorated for the service with ferns, white roses and ivory tapers.

The bride wore a gown of white rough crepe made with full sleeves held tightly at the wrist, and a small standing collar. Her tulle veil was held by a coronet of tulle and orange clossoms and she carried white roses.

Mrs. J. M. Hauck, the bride's sister and her only attendant, wore a gown of fuchsia velvet and carried roses. J. M. Hauck was best man.

Mrs. Bischoff is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Delta Delta Delta and Alpha Alpha Gamma sororities, and has been on the educational staff of the St. Louis Art Museum.

Mr. Bischoff is also an alumnus of Washington University, where he became a member of Kappa Sigma and Tau Beta Pi fraternities.

He and his bride will make their home in Springfield, Ill.

Lottmann-Obert

The wedding of Miss Adele E. Obert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Obert, 3606 Humphrey street, and Charles S. Lottmann, son of Mrs. Charles Lottmann, 3447 Crittenden street, took place Wednesday at 4:30 p. m. at the Messiah Lutheran Church, the Rev. William F. Wilk officiating.

The bride was gowned in white satin with a finger tip veil of tulle and carried white chrysanthemums. She was attended by her cousins, Miss Marian Moskop and Mrs. James E. Cullen, who wore frocks of turquoise blue velvet with brown accessories. They carried arm bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Victor G. Lottmann, and Eugene C. Brenner.

On their return from a wedding trip Mr. Lottmann and his bride will live at 3500 Juniata street.

Two Brides of the Week

MRS. HARRY WILLMER JONES JR., the former Miss Shirley O'Neal Coggeshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Evarts Coggeshall of Webster Groves, whose marriage took place Nov. 21.

MRS. MELVIN A. THORPE, who was Miss Helen Stephens, before her marriage Nov. 23. She is the daughter of Dean and Mrs. George W. Stephens, of Webster Groves.

—Schweig photos.

She is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

Mr. Lottmann is also an alumnus of Washington University, where he was initiated into Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity. He is a member of the Missouri Athletic Association.

Weis-Lubbe

The engagement of Miss Mary Louise Lubbe, daughter of Mrs. Herman J. Lubbe, 5627 Bartmer avenue, and Henry Birdsall Weis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin W. D. Weis of Quincy, Ill., was announced yesterday at a luncheon in the Crystal Room of the Park Plaza. Miss Lubbe gave the party in honor of Mrs. S. W. Burnham of Quincy, sister of Mr. Weis, and Mrs. John T. Reardon, also of Quincy, cousin of Miss Lubbe.

Yellow chrysanthemums and tea roses adorned the luncheon table, and each guest received a corsage of tea roses, bearing cards on which Miss Lubbe's name, with that of her fiance, appeared.

She is a graduate of the Academy of the Visitation, and Mr. Weis is an alumnus of Armour Institute of Technology of Chicago. No date for the wedding has been announced.

Klein-Ernst

The marriage of Miss Helen T. Ernst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Ernst, 7315 Winchester drive, Normandy, and Arthur J. Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Klein, 1221 Gimblin avenue, took place at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning at St. Ann's Church. The Rev. Albert Drohn performed the ceremony, which was followed by a bridal breakfast at the Park Plaza, and a reception later in the day at the home of the bride's parents. The bride was attended by Miss Loretta Goettler and Miss Anna Louise Kuppinger. Mr. Klein's attendants were his brother, Leo Klein, and Frank Ernst, brother of the bride. John Overman and Joseph Roth served as ushers.

The bride's gown of white velvet was fashioned on simple lines, with a short train. Her veil was pearl-trimmed and she carried a prayer book, adorned with lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaids wore cerise velvet with gold accessories. They wore matching halo hats and carried tea roses and rust-colored pompons.

Mittendorf-Rodermund

The wedding of Miss Lillian Rodermund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rodermund, 4282 Clarence avenue, and Eugene Mittendorf, 1932 Warren street, took place at 5 o'clock Thanksgiving afternoon at the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Twenty-first and Benton streets. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Roy Wehmueller, whose 2-year-old daughter, Darlene, was flower girl, and by Miss Ruth Sutherland. Mrs. Wehmueller and Miss Sutherland wore white dresses and carried pink roses. Robert Rodermund Jr., brother of the bride, was best man. The bride's gown was white satin, with which she wore a tulle veil. She carried white roses.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Mittendorf will live with her parents.

The bridegroom is an assistant in the auditor's office of the St. Louis Public Library, and many members of the staff, including Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian, attended the ceremony.

Kamp-Baumhoefer

A treasure hunt Thanksgiving night was the occasion for the betrothal announcement of Miss Frances E. Baumhoefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Baumhoefer, 7429 Elm avenue, Maplewood, and Winfred R. Kamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kamp, 642 North Forest avenue, Webster Groves. After the hunt, guests returned to the home of the hostess, and the winning pair presented with a treasure chest which contained the announcement. The bridegroom-elect is a graduate of Washington University in the class of 1933 and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

AMERICAN STOVE COMPANY
Co-operates With Industry's Plan To Eliminate Production Peaks By Offering for December This $110.25 MAGIC CHEF GAS RANGE

MAGIC CHEF
Number 1534-14

FOR $84.50 AND YOUR OLD STOVE

Most people buy their gas ranges in September, October and November. This causes a slump in our factories' production in December. Some months ago, a movement was started by America's leading industries to level out the peaks and valleys of production and keep their factories running on an even keel all year. By this means the workers are assured a steady income with no lay-offs. American Stove Company, as one of the leaders of this worthy movement, throws behind it the full capacity of the largest gas range manufacturer in the world. In order to induce the buying public to also lend its support, we have radically reduced the price on the above Magic Chef. Our host of dealers are co-operating by making a similar reduction. The saving is yours if you buy now.

"All American" Week in London

LONDON, Nov. 30.

LONDON went "all American" this week.

There were Thanksgiving dinners to which most American residents invited their British friends. Leading restaurants were bedecked with American colors and served traditional American Thanksgiving fare.

Americans figured in the two prominent weddings of the week.

Sheila McNeill, daughter of Charles B. McNeill, American resident of Cannes, was wed in St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, to Paul Goudine Levkovitsch.

Among the guests were Lady Alexander Metcalf, granddaughter of the late Levi Leiter of Washington; Elizabeth Lady Cheylesmore, daughter of Francis Ormond French, of Rhode Island; Lady Hadfield, wife of the British steel magnate and daughter of S. M. Wickersham of Alleghany, Pa.

Barbara Hutton, now Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, has taken a house in Hyde Park gardens, on the north end of Hyde Park, and is busily furnishing it. It will be the birthplace of her child, expected in the spring.

"The Pony Express."

COMMEMORATING THE PONY EXPRESS

Frank A. Mechau's Murals Which Will Be Placed on the Walls of the New Post Office Building in Washington.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Staff

WASHINGTON, D. C.

SEVENTY-FIVE years ago a group of daring horsemen were creating a picturesque and exciting chapter in the history of the United States mails. Over plains and deserts and mountains, through heat and cold and peril, they were riding at breathless speed, night and day, a galloping chain that carried mail between Missouri and California more swiftly than it had ever been carried before. They won enduring fame for that brief, adventurous enterprise, the Pony Express.

Although the Pony Express was not a Government project but a private business venture, it made such a stirring contribution to the postal annals of this country that it is about to receive a notable bit of official recognition. In the new Post Office Building at Washington there will be a series of murals devoted to this fragment of the "Wild West."

The murals will be painted by a young Western artist, Frank A. Mechau of Colorado Springs, Colorado. His preliminary designs were chosen from among 315 submitted by 142 artists in a competition conducted by the Section of Painting and Sculpture of the Treasury Department. The competition was open to all artists, and the selection was made by a jury of eight distinguished painters. At the same time 47 sculptors submitted 62 models for figures representing mail carriers of every period, to be placed in the same building.

Mechau, who is 31 years old, is one of the artists who made important gains in public notice through the Public Works of Art Project. He has, however, a substantial foundation of training in his work. Brought up in the town of Glenwood Springs, Colorado, he attended the Art Institute in Chicago, and later studied in Paris, where he went through various phases of art experimentation, including a fling at abstractionism.

RETURNING to Colorado in 1932, he saw the West with renewed creative interest and understanding. Native scenes and native people attracted him as never before, and he began to get them down on canvas. He joined the hundreds of artists whose work was being financed by Federal funds and painted a mural called "Horses at Night," a large canvas which is now in the Denver Public Library. It attracted considerable attention when it was shown at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington in the PWA exhibition. Last year Mechau was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship on which he continued his painting in the Rocky Mountain region. His work was of such quality that the foundation renewed the grant for this year.

Mechau has started to block out the full-size designs for the Pony Express murals. On this page are reproduced two of his preliminary sketches, done in oil. One shows express riders coralling horses at a station, with a border in which episodes along the trail are depicted. The other shows a massacre by Indians who had attacked one of the stage coaches which traveled the Pony Express road.

The artist has done a great deal of research in an effort to make all details accurate. He has also been soaking up the atmosphere of the present West, which retains something, he says, of the day when riders of the Pony Express thundered over the Central Overland route.

It was on April 3, 1860, that the Pony Express began its exciting career, which lasted only a year and a half. On that day John Fry left St. Joseph and William Hamilton left Sacramento for the first rides of the relay system covering the 2000-mile line. The mail went through in nine days on that first trip—12 days less than the time required for it to travel by stage on the southern route between St. Louis and California.

Eighty riders were employed in the service. Each rider traveled back and forth over a section of the line from 50 to 75 miles in length, stopping every 10 or 15 miles at a relay station to change horses. This change, which included the transfer of his mail container, was supposed to take not more than two minutes.

THE riders were light but hardy men and they were paid $100 a month. They carried horns which they blew as they neared a relay station to give the station attendant notice to start saddling a fresh horse. At first they wore a sort of uniform of red shirt and blue trousers, but before the line was abandoned their garb had become nondescript, merely the ordinary dress of Western horsemen.

The mere routine of an express rider's work was wearing enough—hard riding, making a fast horse cover its alloted distance as speedily as it could, over dusty, muddy or snowy roads, enduring heat and cold. There was, in addition, the danger—danger from Indians, from highwaymen, from storms and swollen streams, even from such a misadventure as riding into and stampeding a herd of buffalo on a dark night. Several riders and station keepers were killed and a number were wounded in an uprising of Piutes in Nevada. During that disturbance Pony Express riders continued to carry the mail through the perilous territory.

One of the celebrated deeds of that trying period was a ride made by "Pony Bob" Haslam, who already was a notable of the service. His run was 75 miles long, but on an eastward trip, when the Indians were "out," he found no one to receive the mail from him and carry it on, so he rode on, past relay stations whose keepers had been killed and horses stolen. At the end of 190 miles, in which he changed horses only once, he met another express rider, exchanged mail with him, and rode 190 miles back to his starting point. He had ridden 380 miles and 36 hours.

The Pony Express operated at first on a weekly schedule, later on a semi-weekly. It charged $5 a half-ounce for mail. But even at that rate it could not make money because of the heavy expense of establishing and maintaining it. Construction of a telegraph line across the West definitely put it out of business. The firm of Russell, Majors and Waddell, which started and operated the service during most of its existence, is said to have lost all its money on the venture. The enterprise had been undertaken largely to draw attention to the Central Overland route and patronage to the firm's stages, which used that route in transporting passengers and mail. The Pony Express dropped out of existence in October, 1861.

Selection of Artist Mechau to picture in the Post Office Building this episode in the life of the West is an example of the new policy which has been adopted with respect to the adornment of the Government buildings in Washington. It is a policy aimed at the exclusion of politics—and much consequent bad art—from this field of Federal activity.

IN October of last year Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau created the Section of Painting and Sculpture to have charge of such matters and named as its head Edward Bruce, a well-known artist and critic. Bruce formed a committee, which he felt to be impartial, to name the painters and sculptors who, in its opinion, were best fitted to decorate the new public buildings of the Capital.

Made up principally of museum directors and other art experts in various parts of the United States, the committee included Robert Harshe, director of the Chicago Art Institute; Justice Harlan F. Stone of the Supreme Court and Duncan Phillips, founder of the Phillips Memorial Gallery in Washington. Among the artists chosen are Thomas Benton of Missouri, John Stewart Curry of Kansas, and Reginald Marsh and Maurice Stone of New York.

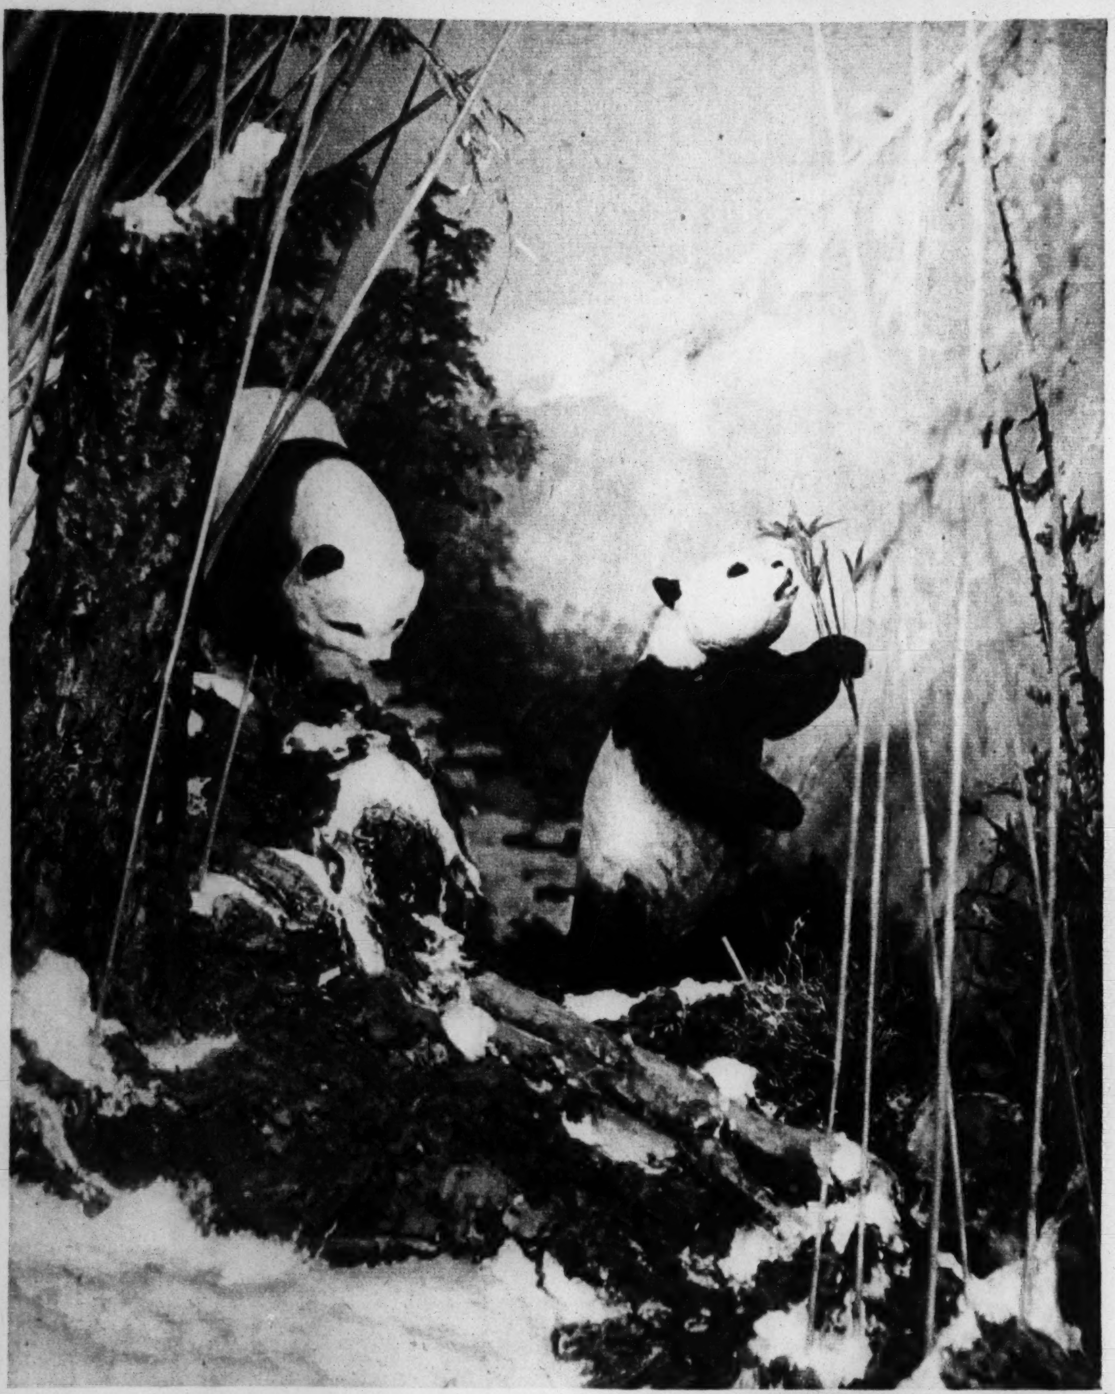
The SUCCESSFUL HUNT for the GIANT PANDA

How Dean Sage Jr. Became One of the Few Westerners to Bring Home the Pelt of a Beast Now Almost Extinct.



The pelts of the the two pandas, shot by Dean Sage Jr., stretched over bodies of felt to give the form of the animal in real life and pictured in its native habitat—the snows of the bamboo forest—on exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

WHEN one has spent the better part of two years scouring almost impassable mountains to find and shoot a very rare animal, it isn't exactly a pleasant sensation to find your rifle is empty the first time you have the beast within gunshot range. Nor is it especially comforting to recall that your quarry is a vegetarian, when you have him charging at you top speed while your back is turned towards a 150-foot drop-off. That was the disconcerting spot on which Dean Sage Jr. found himself at the crucial moment of his long search for the giant panda. The fact that he came through the experience without injury, one of the very few white men known to have killed one of these almost extinct animals, does not detract from the theatrical climax of the story.

hunting party with the panda pelt for background.

Sage is a lawyer by vocation, a naturalist and big game hunter by avocation. That he is taken seriously by zoologists, who are glad to make use of the enthusiasm of sportsmen to help them in their quest of rare specimens, is indicated by the fact that the American Museum of Natural History here sponsored his expedition into Indo-China and sent along an assistant curator to take part in the work. His contributions to the museum's collections are considered especially valuable since they include two pelts of the giant panda, as difficult to come by as anything replaceable in the museum.

"The panda," said Sage, "is a very peculiar animal. It has no relatives among any known animals on earth. It is about the size of a bear, looks something like a racoon, but is related to neither. It is a whole biological family unto itself. (The question of the giant panda's classification is still a controversial one. Some zoologists would deny Sage's statement.) Found only in a stretch of territory called the Chinese-Tibetan borderland, it lives in altitudes more than 6000 feet above sea level and subists only on bamboo. You can see what a lively time we were headed for."

The actual hunting, when at one point it looked as if the panda would get young Sage instead of vice versa, was not the only lively time the party had. The expedition consisted of Mr. Sage, his wife, Anne Tilney Sage; William Sheldon and Donald Carter, who is assistant curator of mammalogy at the museum. Counting guides, servants, bearers, there were about 50 in the party. Before they could take to the field they had to wade through miles of Chinese Government red tape to get gun-carrying permits. The fact that Mrs. Sage, in preparation for the trip, had studied rudimentary medicine and first aid and as official doctor of the expedition held clinics twice daily for the natives, speeded up the granting of the permits. At that, they had to wait two months.

When telling of this experience and other hunting trips, Sage makes a point of debunking the stories one usually hears about the dangers of big-game hunting. "It is the exception, not the rule, for wild animals to attack humans," he maintains. "Most wild animals run away from people. However, sometimes they are hurt and get desperate and bad-tempered. At times like this, they may appear to charge, but they are only frightened and panic-stricken. Quite unwittingly they often travel in the very direction of danger for them. When this happens, many believe they are bent on human destruction, when the truth is that they are only trying to flee to security and cannot reason which way to turn."

A native guide with the panda pelt.

Having thus cleared the air of storybook overtones, Sage consulted his crammed diary on the panda hunt. He told about climbing the precipitous slopes of the Chen Lliang in search of the "beishung," as the natives call the giant panda.

"We seemed to be climbing a mountain which had no top," he read from his diary. "Whenever we reached a level spot we congratulated ourselves that at last we were on the summit, but always another rise would come looming dimly at us from out of the fog. It was most weird, this forever climbing into the clouds. The altitude was about 10,000 feet. Up we struggled, up and up, inching a laborious way around precipitous slopes, with often a sheer drop from the narrow trail into the abyss of clouds below. It seemed as if forever above us towered the mighty peaks of the Chinese Tibetan borderland, rearing craggy summits thousands of feet into the heavens."

Then followed an eternity of hard work, thrashing through bamboo jungles of unbelievable density and, as the winter wore on, wading through snow and over ice ledges. Much of the hunt was in the dusk, as the beishung is nocturnal in movement, hiding in a ledge den during the day. But finally the long months of traveling, preparing and planning were about to bring results. Sage and Shelton pushed ahead with native hunters, while Mrs. Sage and Carter brought up the rear to keep the stragglers going. There were about 50 in the party, all after the much-coveted prize of this huge animal, which is all white except for the strange dark markings across the shoulders and haunches and around the eyes and ears.

"WE MADE our way still further into the recesses of the great mountain ranges and came to the beautiful valleys of Cheng Wai and the Moa Mo Gou. Here we had our first news of the presence of panda. We saw two of its pelts in a native farmhouse. The family told us they had been killed recently. On the trail we found evidence in droppings and in the chewed ends of bamboo, that they were about.

"We set spear traps. We searched acres of bamboo-covered slopes with field glasses. We hunted with dogs. We had been told by natives that a panda pursued by dogs would take to a tree. But this was all wrong. One day our dogs actually drove two pandas out of a thicket and then relinquished the chase. The pandas moved off leisurely, quite indifferent to the dogs, who appeared afraid of them. We were too far away to shoot successfully."

That incident was very discouraging to the party. The intense cold and the fog was making everyone glum and the failure of the dogs to tree the animals only added to the general feeling of depression. While they could at least say they had seen the animal, they were about ready to give up all hope of ever killing one.

And then, their luck turned. This is how Mr. Sage described the kill in his diary, written the night it happened, in a white root hut.

"All of a sudden, after a long day of fruitless hunting, I heard the unmistakable noise of breaking bamboo and the barking of our dogs. Wong (one of the native guides) said, "Beishung!"

"Even at this moment it did not occur to me that we should ever see the animal. Nevertheless, I took my gun and tried to put a cartridge into it. It was all covered with ice and snow and the shell would not go in, so I threw it away—an act which was later to be of the utmost importance—and put another shell in. And then, as if in a dream, I saw a giant panda coming through the bamboo about 60 yards away. I fired and missed. The animal was frightened by the noise, but instead of turning and running off the way it had come, he made straight for the ledge I was standing on. I fired again.

"He came right on; his head hung low and swaying from side to side. His tongue was out and he was panting. He appeared to be looking at the ground and apparently did not see me at all. But if he did not know I was there, I was due to be very much aware of his presence if he collided with me and sent me over the ledge. I frantically worked the bolt of my rifle and snapped the hammer on an empty chamber.

"In a daze thought flashed through my mind: 'No more bullets; what'll I do? He's only 20 feet away now—15—he's coming straight where I am. Can I kill him with the butt of my rifle?'

"Sudenly I felt Wong thrust a cartridge into my hands. He had sensed my predicament and had picked up the one I had discarded! I jammed it

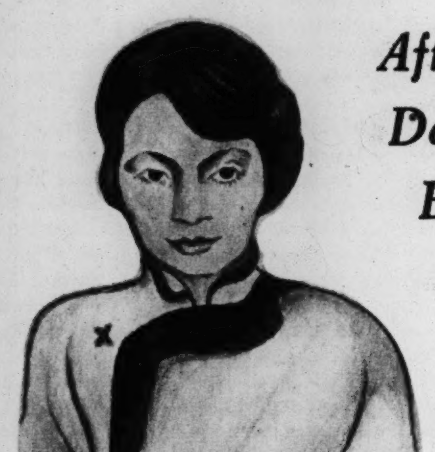
The CAPTURE of CHINA'S PIRATE QUEEN

After Ten Years of Depredations in the Bias Bay Region, 'Golden Gracious' Falls Into the Hands of the Law.



"Golden Gracious," from a drawing made in prison.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CANTON, China.

"GOLDEN GRACIOUS" has been betrayed by a discarded lover, and pursers sleep a little easier as ships fat with silks or bullion ease into the dangerous waters off Bias Bay, an island-dotted notch in the coastline just above Hongkong and the gaping mouth of Canton River. After 10 years of depredations which cost South China coastwise shipping many thousands of dollars, Tan Ching-Chao, "Queen of the Bias Bay Pirates," awaits trial in a Chinese military prison.

She has been linked with some of the most spectacular piracies of recent years. Probably her own daring contributed to her ultimate downfall, for it was this very audacity that challenged Chinese and foreign authorities to launch a concentrated drive against the thousands of pirates that lurk behind the snaky, secret channels of the Bay. But her capture was long delayed by the loyalty she had won from devoted fisher-folk. She had traits, it seems, that made her a feminine, seagoing Robin Hood.

The 31-year-old native beauty came of fisher folk, herself, down in the maritime district of Kwantung. She went early to sea with the fishermen. Long before she was grown she knew far more of boats and men than of home and the washing-paddle.

There was talk of the life on Bias Bay in her village, as there is all up and down that coast, and to her the talk seemed good. So likewise, it seemed to Li Tsen, a fisher boy, and soon, together, they were gone from the village.

To Bias Bay they took courage and quick wits, and a wisdom in the way of the sea beyond their years. These were of use to a pirate gang, and through them Li Tsen rose to command.

For six years they prospered, nefariously. But then, on a day when there was rich loot to be divided, Li Tsen was killed by his mutinous men. Over his body they called his widow to command.

Golden Gracious was not long a widow. She welded two gangs together by marriage with 24-year-old Chen Lian, leader of a band smaller than hers but desirable, and thenceforth she led them both. But before that advantageous union had entered her mind, she had taken a lover, a lieutenant in her own gang, and that liaison brought about her ultimate undoing.

But not before four years of rare audacious sorties and long interludes of fat living safe in the sheltered reaches of the Bay. Even now, with her capture but a thing of the night before last and her trial not yet come, the life of Tan Ching-Chao has become a legend of the Coast.

Her name has been linked with the capture of the Tungchow last winter with 70 missionary children—an episode which roused authorities to renewed vigor against the outlaws of Bias Bay. The steamer, one of the finest of the China Navigation Co., had just set out from Shanghai with the children, returning to the mission school at Chefoo, 500 miles north, at the end of the holidays.

It was only a two-day trip. When the ship was reported overdue on the third day, cables hummed to the great cities of the world, State Departments stirred, Chinese gunboats and ships of foreign navies in Chinese waters put on forced draft to search the seas. Cannily, airplanes from the British carrier Hermes circled like hunting eagles off Bias Bay, and there, 600 miles south of Shanghai, on the third night, the Tungchow was found.

Just as it had reached the open sea outside Shanghai harbor, at a change of watch, pirates had swarmed, shooting, over the iron "pirate grills" that separated the third class passengers from the first. Two Russian guards were killed, and Second Engineer K. McDonald was shot, but recovered.

The pirates had paid high for a tip that the Tungchow would carry $12,500 silver, but the tip was phony. And they got more than their bargain in the passengers. The children, all under 16 years old, quizzed them on politics and religion and why they did such things, made them raid the ship's stores for oranges and sweets, almost took their shirts — and actually did take the chief's sweater, which was torn into strips and divided for souvenirs long before the ship was found and the captives released.

Probably it was the pirates who breathed a sigh of relief as they scurried for shore. Not a child was harmed, and all had found their three-day captivity exciting rather than terrifying, as told in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine last March 10. The pirates had captured a junk and were preparing to abandon ship and go ashore in Bias Bay when the British Navy planes swooped down to hasten their departure.

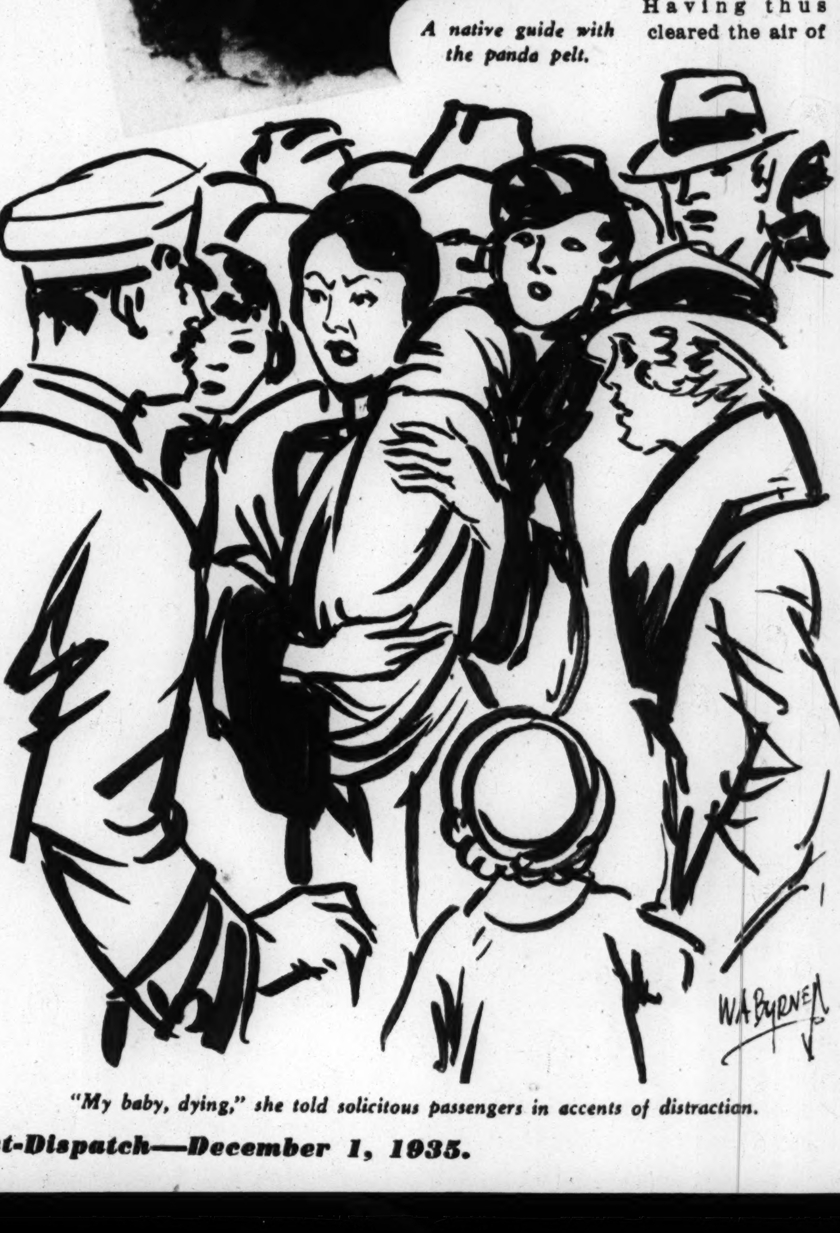
EVEN more dramatic was the ruse whereby, Chinese authorities report, Miss Tan coldly tells of boarding the Taiyi. She carried a bundle—"My baby, dying"—she told solicitous passengers in accents of distraction.

Twelve hours out the "dying baby" was unwrapped and pistols were handed out to bare-footed passengers. An officer was killed, crew and passengers terrorized and thousands of dollars worth of loot taken.

Last May, only a few months after the capture of the Tungchow, Golden Gracious in person boarded the coastal steamer Lo-Kiang at the head of 40 of her pirates. Leisurely, for four days, they went through the vaults, cargo and passengers' pockets before making off with the cream of it—250,000 silver dollars, Mexican.

But before they left, Tan Ching-Chao, in the tradition of Sherwood

(Concluded on Page 7.)



"My baby, dying," she told solicitous passengers in accents of distraction.

How the Snubbed Cinderella Got Her Revenge

And the Rich Mr. Nolde Not Only Paid and Paid, but Went to Jail as Well.

George H. Nolde.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PHILADELPHIA.

THE tale of the unfortunate Cinderella, snubbed and mistreated by her wealthy husband's family, who yet finally succeeds—generally by force of irresistible charm—in becoming accepted and in living happily ever after is a familiar one—in the movies. It doesn't often work out that way in real life. But in the ensuing story of the 18-year-old waitress who married a home-coming Harvard undergraduate, it seems the formula is coming true. At least the former waitress should be able to live happily on $10,400 a year alimony. And aside from the fact that the reputation of the dashing hero has suffered somewhat during the 21 years since the plot began, the details of what has taken place have all the simplicity and exaggeration of a fantasy by the brothers Grimm or Hans Christian Andersen. The in-laws have been thoroughly in character, if one is to believe Cinderella's side of the story. The Domestic Relations Court here did. So did a jury of 12 Philadelphians in Judge James Gay Gordon's court.

If Cinderella were inclined to gloat at this point—which, of course, she isn't; that wouldn't be in character—she would have plenty to gloat over. Even a fairy tale wife must get some satisfaction out of having her estranged husband called "dumb" and "stolid" by his own lawyer. Cinderella has had more than that. Her husband has been jailed for perjury. His divorce has been called invalid. His income has been assessed at the rate of $200 a week. And the little emporium in which Cinderella has been enhancing the charm and beauty of Philadelphia's more fortunate wives for a living is a thriving institution.

Carolyn Kern, for that was Cinderella's name, was working in a Reading, Pennsylvania, hotel when George Nolde met her. He was 21, a wealthy undergraduate, the offspring of one of the most prominent families in the town. His father was head of a profitable hosiery manufacturing concern and had a fortune estimated in seven figures. His mother, as George Nolde well knew, was anxious to keep that dignity from the tarnish of a "doubtful" connection. So when he decided to marry Carolyn in 1914, he considered it advisable to consult his family after the event. That took place before one of the marrying parsons of Elkton, Maryland, the Gretna Green of Philadelphia elopements. Afterwards Mr. and Mrs. George H. Nolde appeared, at the Nolde mansion to ask for a parental blessing.

The dowager Mrs. Nolde didn't embarrass the newly-weds with her effusive cordiality. To be exact, she told her son to give the girl $1000 and tell her please to go away. Cinderella cut herself a large slice of humble pie and made herself at home. Her husband was eventually able to persuade his parents to give him a house and allow him to take his pretty bride there to work out their marriage in peace.

"I admit that we had one perfect year, that first year," Mrs. Nolde says now, looking back at it from the eminence of 38 years. "But I do think our marriage was threatened from the start by the maneuvers of his family to separate us. Now that I am an older and wiser woman, I believe it is inadvisable for anyone to marry out of her social class or position. I did not realize it then because George and I were very much in love with each other and I had no suspicion that his attitude toward me would be that of looking down on me as being not his social equal.

"From the start George's mother, who has since died, wanted to estrange us. She impressed George with the fact that he was a man of position, I a waitress; that he had social background and I no family tree to brag about. . . . I looked on him as my Prince Charming and believed he loved me truly. But right from the beginning George's mother began inviting him to parties at their home, to entertainments and theaters, without asking me to come along. Thus George was away from me almost every evening. This humiliated me and made me miserable, broken in health and spirit."

After about a year of this, according to Mrs. Nolde's account, her husband left one night, told her to go to a movie, then came back and packed his clothes while she was away. When she got back there was no message. His family was not inclined to be communicative. She didn't see him again for years. Two years later her father-in-law had her ejected by a sheriff. Aside from the moral force that had been brought to bear on George Nolde, the young man may have been influenced against continuing with the marriage by the fact that his allowance during that year had been of the meagerest.

His wife became a telephone operator. She tried to leave the Noldes alone, never came near them and only approached them for assistance when she was ill and in need. But when old Mr. Nolde died leaving his son $35,000, she decided to see a lawyer about her rights to part of the $1200 income he would get from the bequest. Her lawyer was an old man; he dropped the case before he could do anything for her; he died.

By this time Carolyn Nolde had come up in the world. She was working in a beauty shop and making a better living. It annoyed her, though, to read in the papers that her husband, who subsequently took over an automobile agency and became chief probation officer of Berks County, Pennsylvania, was spending his money at the rate of $20,000 to $30,000 a year. His income, she felt certain, came in the form of gifts from his mother, who had openly vowed that she was not to get a cent of the Nolde fortune. When she died, her will seemed to show that there was nothing left to bequeath. George Nolde was given only the house, and some insignificant investments. Carolyn again went to a lawyer about it.

About the same time, her husband decided to take the affair to Reno. He forgot, somehow, to notify her of his intentions. No notification was ever presented to her. Her new lawyer took the case to Judge John E. Walsh's Court of Domestic Relations. That was in 1931, the year of the dowager Mrs. Nolde's death. The fight has been going on ever since.

Judge Walsh immediately pointed out that a Reno divorce is only valid in Pennsylvania when the Nevada court has accepted jurisdiction over the defendant. Nolde's attorney, William A. Gray, had documentary proof that Mrs. Nolde had given this jurisdiction. She said she had never seen the document and brought in handwriting experts to testify her signature had been forged. Her experts did what was expected of them. Nolde's experts contradicted them; the engagement was a draw. But Judge Walsh wasn't impressed. In his opinion, he said, the signature was false. So he called the divorce off and awarded Mrs. Nolde $75 a week—instead of the trifling $8 she had asked for. George Nolde, of course, took the case to a higher court.

The Superior Court sustained Judge Walsh's verdict and sent the case back to him the next year. Meanwhile, there had been a hearing to determine just how much money George Nolde did have. An officer of the Reading Trust Company, trustee for the three trust estates of which George Nolde is beneficiary, said that he had been receiving an income of $16,365 from a $407,614 trust fund his mother had created for him several years before her death. That, plus the two "spendthrift funds" established in the old lady's will, gave him a total income of $32,848—what is known as a tidy income. The $35,000 left by his father was in addition to all this. Judge Walsh wasn't amused by the fact that Carolyn Nolde had been asking for only $8 a week, that she had received a sum total of $788 from the Nolde family during the 16 years since the break-up of her marriage. He increased the alimony to $200 a week without waiting to be asked.

GEORGE NOLDE had an answer for that, too. He filed suit for divorce again, this time charging infidelity and naming a corespondent. Thus far there have been seven hearings in which Carolyn Nolde has denied every charge and the validity of every piece of testimony by the men who were sent to shadow her.

Meanwhile Judge Walsh had not forgotten an element that slipped by in the early stages of the case. In looking over George Nolde's testimony as to the extent of his income, it was discovered that he had somehow neglected to mention an item of $18,000, the annuity from another trust fund. This testimony had been given in a Philadelphia municipal court in 1929. A perjury charge was filed against him. In 1932 he was held in $500 bond—for an alleged perjury relating to concealment of more than $50,000. His lawyer (Gray) had the case put off until late last month.

When it finally came up in Judge Gordon's court, Nolde's chief defense was that he had become confused during the cross-examination, that none of the questions was asked him directly about the fund his mother had created and that he hadn't wilfully neglected to mention the information. Attorney Gray was conciliatory as he addressed the jury. "We admit that Nolde made a mistake in his answer," he said. "But the question is whether it was an innocent or a guilty mistake. Nolde has a certain amount of dumbness about him. He is the stolid type, and answers questions in his own peculiar way. He was utterly confused by a barrage of questions. His reputation for veracity has been established, however, by the foremost citizens of Reading, including Judges of the courts and leading professional men."

Judge Gordon was more explicit in his charge to the 12 men. What they should establish, he told them, was whether it was conceivable that Nolde should forget having received "such an amount."

The jury convicted him of perjury. The Judge committed him to jail pending more argument by his counsel. He has been spending his time in Moyamensing Prison, having been denied bail, while his attorney musters reasons for a new trial.

TWO SETS OF SEXTUPLETS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NOTWITHSTANDING the unprecedented survival of the Dionne quintuplets, whose daily movements and progress are recorded by a benign and powerful publicity machine, there are two authenticated cases of previous multiple births that eclipse the record of Mother Dionne. Both took place within the last 66 years, one in America and one in Africa.

"Boy or girl, Doc?" inquired James Lewis Bushnell, a wealthy Chicago grain merchant, on September 8, 1869, when the attending physician at his home appeared after a visit of the stork.

"Yes, both, and plenty of them," was the answer. As Bushnell entered the room where his wife and family lay, he counted an even half-dozen youngsters.

Of the six, four were born brown-eyed, black-haired girls and the other two were blue-eyed, blond-haired boys. They were named Laberta, Lucy, Alice, Alinca, Albert and Norbert. The sextuplets were very tiny at their birth; yet all managed to survive over a year, when Lucy died at the age of 12 months and Laberta at 14 months. Alice, Alinca and Albert are still living, having attained the age of 66, and Norbert died last March.

Alice, who proved to be the flower of the family, became a clerk in a Buffalo department store. Later she attended a local musical college, from which she won a scholarship. She married A. E. Hughes and settled in Flagstaff, Arizona, where she is teaching music to this day.

Alinca became a factory hand in a knitting mill in Perry, New York, where she has lived most of her life. Early in life she married J. A. Parker, a well-to-do peddler who died some years ago. She was left with considerable property, including the Perry postoffice building and a row of cottages. Last October 18 she met with an automobile accident while walking with a friend. She suffered a fractured left ankle, sprained left wrist and hip injuries. She was taken to the Wyoming County Hospital at Warsaw, New York.

Albert remained a bachelor and is at present an inmate of the Orleans County Home for Aged and Infirm at Albion, New York. He has a club foot.

Norbert, who died last March, was a rag peddler all his life. He married Grace Dean of Lockport and had one child, a boy, who died at the age of six months.

Bushnell, father of the sextuplets, was born in Phelps, New York. His ancestors were Americans. He died in Albion 27 years ago at the age of 74.

His wife, Mrs. Jennie Lamont Charlton Bushnell, was of French descent, as is the mother of the Dionne quintuplets, but was born in England. She was an only child. She came to the United States at an early age. She married Bushnell when she was 13, and the couple moved to Chicago, where the sextuplets were born. Mrs. Bushnell first had triplets, which died at birth. Then she had the sextuplets. At their birth she did not lose consciousness and laughingly recalled later how Dr. James Edward, the attending physician, cried out:

"My God, how many more?" as he laid out the six little mites.

After the birth of the sextuplets, Mrs. Bushnell had again triplets which did not survive their birth. Then she had quintuplets, which also died at birth. In all she had 17 children, including the sextuplets. She died in Chicago in 1880, at the age of 39. The sextuplets were born when she was 29 years old and her husband 45.

AFTER losing his property in a fire and after the death of his wife, Bushnell moved with his children to Buffalo. Later he moved to Lockport, then to Albion, where for several years he was a bookkeeper for the Goodrich & Clark Stone Company, during the prosperous period of the Orleans County industry in the New York sandstone belt, of which Albion is the center.

The Bushnell children acquired their education in the Albion public schools and made a record as being among the best students of their school days there. As far as is known, there were no grandchildren with the exception of Norbert's offspring, which died in infancy.

On May 10, 1903, Drs. Kerr and Cookman, British physicians stationed in Accra, Gold Coast, West Africa, were called to deliver a native woman of sextuplets. Their account of this incident appeared in the Medical Press of London.

"On arriving at her house we found an excited crowd in the street outside which had to be held in check by a strong detachment of police. On entering we found the woman lying on the floor, as is the usual custom in native deliveries. In a corner of the hut there were six newly born infants; we had them brought to the light to examine them and verify the case.

"The woman was four hours in labor, and the births followed one another rapidly. On the twenty-first inst. one child died; on the twenty-second inst. four of the children died; on the twenty-third the sixth child, which was a girl, died. Shortly after the children's birth the mother appeared very much exhausted, but she ultimately made a complete recovery. On inquiry we ascertained that at her first confinement she gave birth to four children, at her second and third confinements to three children each time. These, with her last litter, make a total of 16 children for four confinements."

Guarded by a grim native policeman, these tiny babies were seen and photographed eight days after their birth by John Eugene Lutzeir, the German missionary-trader, who has the distinction of procuring the first authentic photograph of sextuplets in the history of multiple births. This photograph was found in the hands of Mrs. John E. Lutzeir, widow of the missionary-trader, who now lives in Detroit.

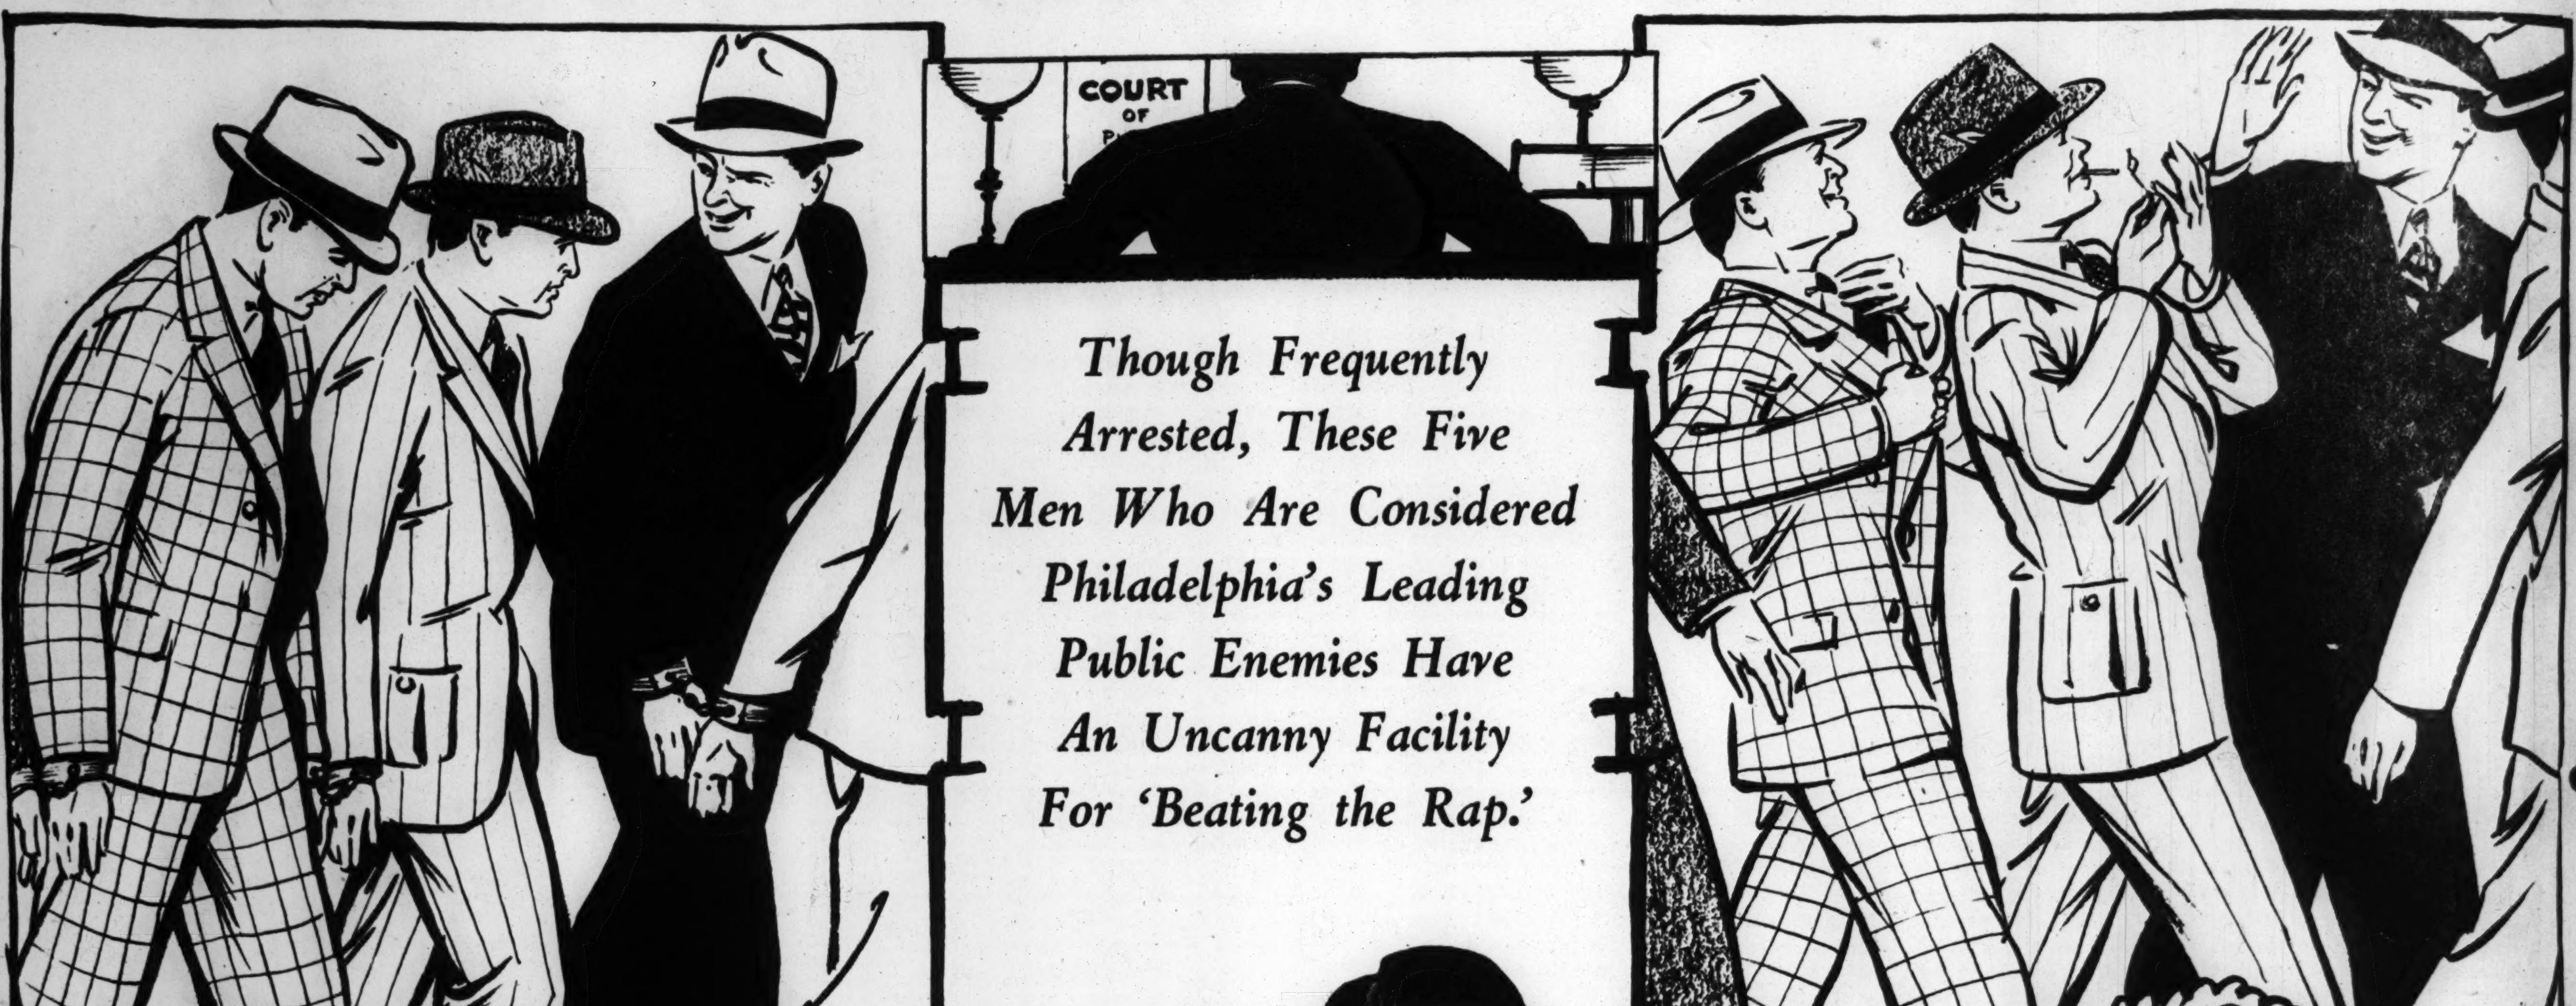
The natives of Accra, which is 400 miles north of the equator, are a fertile race. In the eighteenth century they proved a source of 600,000 slaves who were carried off to Jamaica. They live in crude mud hovels.

The climate of Accra is hot and unhealthful. The sextuplets, born during the rainy season, had little chance for survival.

THE subject of multiple births has held the interest of the human race since time immemorial. One finds traces of it in drawings of the cave men; it crops up in mythology, being bound up with the idea of miraculous birth, half-gods and animal forms; it was invested with superstitious awesomeness by primitive magic men; it was sung in saga and pictured by the arts. It was not so long ago that twinship was believed the "mark" of duality fixed upon the unborn by the mother during the prenatal period.

But not until the birth of the Dionne quintuplets has the subject of multiple births so interested civilization. Daily reports keep cropping up of the multiple birth of as many as seven babies to a litter, but none of these are authenticated. One such report came from Georgetown, British Guiana, to the effect that a native, Carola Perez, had been delivered of seven babies. Investigation revealed these babies were born in different years.

How the Evasive Lanzetti Brothers Stay Out of Prison



Though Frequently Arrested, These Five Men Who Are Considered Philadelphia's Leading Public Enemies Have An Uncanny Facility For 'Beating the Rap.'

Pius and Theodore Lanzetti.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PHILADELPHIA.

THE Lanzetti brothers have just had another run-in with the law. That is, four of them have; the fifth couldn't be found when the others were. Behind the law's latest manifestation of interest in the Lanzettis was a matter which would be pretty serious for most people—a murder. But the Lanzettis, if events take the course to which they are accustomed, are hardly likely to worry a great deal.

Certainly the immediate consequences of the recent attention given the brothers by the police were not exactly paralyzing. Ignatius, Pius and Teo Lanzetti were held in $5000 bail "to appear when wanted." William Lanzetti, arrested as a suspicious character, was freed a few minutes after he was taken into custody.

For years the Lanzettis have been engaging in such skirmishes with the forces of law and order. They are often arrested but seldom convicted. They have a habit of beating the rap. And on the few occasions when one of them has been sent to jail or prison he has managed to avoid languishing long behind the bars.

Yet these young men—the oldest is 35—are notorious throughout Pennsylvania, and are regarded by the Philadelphia police force as the chief public enemies of the city. They have been accused of a wide assortment of crimes, including racketeering, dope peddling, forgery, counterfeiting, carrying concealed weapons, kidnaping and murder. Their collective arrests total more than 100.

They have usually been freed for lack of evidence. It is possible that sometimes the evidence against them hasn't been much stronger than suspicion. But there have been many times when a person who was expected to testify against them has suddenly changed his mind and refused to take the stand, apparently afraid of inviting vengeance.

Originally there were six of the Lanzetti brothers, sons of a sculptor who was well thought of in the Italian neighborhood in which he lived. The boys went to grammar school, but didn't mingle much with other children. The young Lanzettis, who were near enough of an age to be companions, formed their own clique, and even as children were known as tough kids.

Leo, the first-born, was removed from the combination 10 years ago in a fashion typical of gangland. He was leaving the poolroom where he maintained headquarters when a storm of shotgun slugs tore into him; five masked men hurriedly departed from the scene and never were caught. Several years before he was rubbed out Leo had beaten a case in which he was charged with receiving stolen goods, but had been forced to do time for dope-peddling. The sentence in the narcotic case was three years, but Leo was out long before that time had expired.

Leo's demise left Pius, William, Lucian, Ignatius and Theodore, familiarly known as Teo, to continue the name of Lanzetti on police blotters. Pius, according to detectives, succeeded Leo as the "brains" of the mob and still directs their underworld activities.

These Lanzettis are personable fellows—young, dark-haired, dark-eyed, usually well-groomed and suave of manner. Their faces, which frequently wear an expression of soulfoul melancholy or romantic dreaming, might be the faces of artists. All but Teo are bachelors, and they seem to have avoided entanglements with the "molls" who so often figure in the careers of men of the underworld; perhaps this is one of the reasons why the brothers have evaded drastic penalties so long—no women to "rat" on them.

Pius, who is 35, has a record of 18 arrests. He was first haled into court when he was 20 years old. The charge was suspected of larceny and receiving stolen goods. The youth was promptly discharged for lack of evidence. Then he was accused of conspiracy and attempted larceny, and again was freed. Other charges followed—possession and sale of narcotics, disorderly conduct and so on. Finally he received a sentence of three years in the county prison, but was let out on probation after part of the time was served.

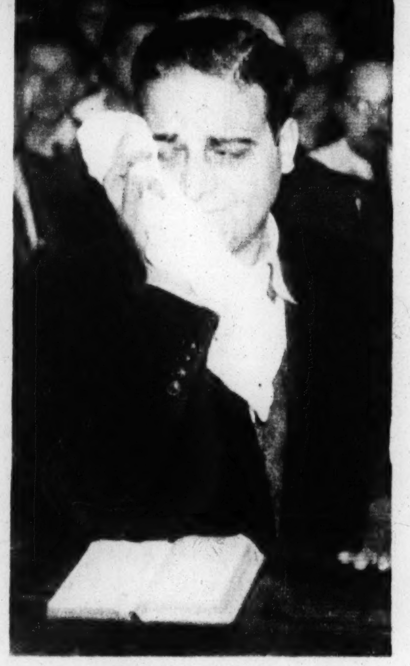
Pius had to serve three months in jail along with his brother Ignatius, for a threat, made in court, against Assistant District Attorney Vincent A. Carroll. The threat was to blow his head off.

A bit of shooting got Pius a prison term. Two detectives raided a place run by the Lanzettis, a fight ensued, and both officers were shot. Judge Harry McDavitt sentenced Pius to spend 14 to 28 years in prison, but the sentence later was shortened to six years, and the head of the Lanzetti gang was paroled some time before he had completed the term.

In 1932 Pius and two of his henchmen were arrested on a charge of kidnaping. They were alleged to have taken Emil Tinucci, a hotel owner, to a lonely barn in New Jersey and forced him to hand over several hundred dollars. When the time came for him to testify, Tinucci was found to have undergone a change of mind. He said the money he handed over had been in payment of a gambling debt which he owed the Lanzettis. Pius had to be discharged again for lack of evidence. Judge McDevitt made it clear that he hated to do it, and scolded the witness who changed his mind as "a loathsome coward who made a travesty of justice."



Ignatius Lanzetti.

About a year ago Pius and Ignatius were arrested again following the murder of Albert Marrazzo, a member of the Philadelphia underworld, who was the fifth member of his family to be slain. Marrazzo had witnessed the killing of his brother-in-law, John Lerro, and his wife had an idea he was "executed" in the fear he might expose the perpetrators of that slaying. Pius and Ignatius were not long in custody.

A little later Pius was in the toils again, suspected of being the chief of the numbers racket in the city. Magistrate O'Malley wanted to hold him in $25,000 bail, but there was the familiar situation—lack of evidence—and Pius was released on a writ of certiorari.

William Lanzetti, 33, has been arrested more frequently than Pius, but usually on minor charges, such as being a suspicious character, which didn't detain him long. He got a month and a half for highway robbery, but not long afterward was acquitted of vagrancy and larceny of an automobile. The most recent of William's convictions was for running a lottery; he got a year for that.

Ignatius, in addition to the difficulties in which he was involved in company with Pius, has been charged with dope-peddling, and once was sentenced to a year for that offense. A few years ago he was charged with complicity in the shooting of "Toney" Volpe and the murder of Joseph Brun, underworld characters, but beat the rap.

Lucian began his career as an arrestee at 17. His first time up in court he got 30 days for disorderly conduct, and later incurred another 30-day sentence as an inmate of a disorderly house.

Also, he was convicted with William in the lottery case and drew a year's sentence. But in many other cases, including one charge of burglary, he has got off without penalty.

Teo, 25, is the youngest of the brothers. His brushes with the police started about eight years ago. Since then he has been arrested on accusations including larceny, corner lounging, disorderly conduct, possession of liquor, suspicion of aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill. Usually he has slid out of the arms of the law without too much difficulty. In 1929 he was sentenced to a year for carrying a concealed weapon; it was just after he had been mysteriously shot in the leg.

A dresser and quite handsome, after a fashion, Teo is the only one of the brothers who has been publicly associated with a woman. An incident along this line occurred in connection with a counterfeiting case two years ago. Mrs. Eva Martino, young and pretty, was taken before Federal Judge Welsh, charged with passing counterfeit $20 bills.

Teo was questioned in the case and said he knew nothing about it, but he was an interested spectator at Mrs. Martino's trial. Her defense was that she did not know the money she passed was bad. She said, in answer to a question, she didn't know where her husband was. Judge Welsh sentenced her to 18 months in prison and took occasion to say, "You are a tool in the hands of a ruthless mob."

As Mrs. Martino was being led out of the courtroom she began to sob. Whereupon Teo hurried to her side, put his arms around her and kissed her.

That kiss, so far as the public knows, is the entire record of romance in the lives of the Lanzetti brothers, except for the fact that in June, 1934, there was an announcement to the effect that Teo had married Frances Euban, a waitress in a Philadelphia hotel, and had taken her to Georgia for their honeymoon.

The Lanzettis have their fingers in all sorts of pies. At one time they were said to have managed an ornate gambling casino near Philadelphia; a well-known radio singer, now dead, was reported to have lost $11,000 there one night. Before repeal, the brothers monopolized the local "bottle and cork" trade; that is, they sold "empties" to the makers of bathtub gin.

It is generally believed that the principal source of income for the Lanzettis is the numbers racket. And detectives say that sometimes they employ a stratagem to avoid paying off; that when players are striking numbers too frequently and cash is low, the Lanzettis have a member of their mob tip off the police, with the result that the "banks" are raided—which provides an excuse for not settling with winners.

The murder which occasioned the recent roundup of Lanzettis was that of Joseph Gabriel, a young organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and business agent for the Finishers' Union, Local 156. Gabriel was found shot to death in an automobile September 4. No weapon was found in the car, which belonged to Gabriel's brother-in-law, Alphonse Rossi, also a labor organizer. Two bullets had entered Gabriel's right temple and there were powder marks on his face.

THE Amalgamated Clothing Workers offered a reward of $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the slayer, but for several weeks no arrests were made in the case. Then, on October 24, Ignatius Lanzetti and Felix d'Arenza, an associate of his, were held without bail for further hearing on suspicion of the murder. Magistrate John J. O'Malley was told that the union for which Gabriel was business agent parceled out work to 40 or 50 shops and that D'Arenza, who had a tailoring shop, had been dissatisfied with the amount of work he received.

Mrs. Minnie Gabriel, widow of the slain man, told a detective that her husband had been threatened and bullied by the Lanzetties.

And a detective declared the police would have evidence against the two men "unless the witnesses are intimidated."

On November 8 Ignatius and D'Arenza were again before Magistrate O'Malley. With them were also Pius and Teo Lanzetti and John Amato, a Lanzetti henchman. But the police admitted that they were unable to produce evidence linking these men with the killing of Gabriel. Detective George Knott said the witnesses he wanted to call were afraid to come to court.

Michael McEnery, attorney for the Lanzettis, insisted that the police had nothing on his clients, and the Magistrate had to agree that the court showing in support of police suspicions was not convincing. He felt justified in going no further than to place the three brothers and their two associates under $5000 bail "to appear when wanted."

It was the next day that William Lanzetti was arrested as a suspicious character, and quickly set free. The police said they were looking for Lucian. It was a job to which they have become well accustomed in the last decade or so—looking for a Lanzetti.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

COLE PORTER
HAL HORNE

THE ACE SONGWRITER, WHO WORKS BEST WHILE LYING ON HIS BACK

COLE PORTER'S fabulous career is the kind that ordinarily people would like very much to debunk. When one hears how he wrote "You're the Top" while riding down the Rhine in a canoe stuffed with silk pillows, one resents it as an unwarranted insult to those who live by toil and tries hard not to believe a word of it. When his friends say that he writes smash hits during the gaps in a scheme of life that calls for at least three or four big parties a night, and only the most casual recourse to pencils and music paper, that he wrote "Miss Otis Regrets" at a noisy brawl in Tony's, on Fifty-second street, one would prefer telling them they lie in their teeth. But unfortunately there is so little concrete evidence one way or the other in his sketchy biography that one is forced to believe the fables or admit one doesn't know anything about him. Very few do know much about him, despite the fact that his admiring friends could populate a small city, if they weren't scattered over most of the civilized part of the globe (and a good many unheard-of hinterlands and unmapped islands).

What is irritating to those who worship hard work is not that Cole Porter is successful without doing any, but that the kind of music he writes so well isn't a bit simple to write. It requires a great deal more than mere cleverness or talent as a melodist. Those who admire him most say that he has more musical skill than Sullivan and as much cleverness as a rhymster as Gilbert. Whether or not this is true, he is certainly not a slipshod composer and his verse—though always of the moment—is good enough to squeeze rhapsodies out of the New York critics.

They say he hasn't done any hard work since his first musical comedy, "See America First," perished after a dismal week on Broadway in 1915. On the last night a writer named Harrison Rhodes took young Porter aside and advised him not to work so hard. A good artist, he said, must live first and mellow his talent by having fun. The composer might have answered with the question he has since made the theme of one of his most amusing songs: "Which is the right life, the simple or the night life?" But instead he jumped to his own conclusion. His changed outlook won him a Croix de Guerre from the fun-loving French. And nowadays he is known as the only dangerous rival his friend Elsa Maxwell (world champion party-thrower) has. His reputation is trans-Atlantic, English, Continental and Mediterranean. His personal charm has been made a by-word by charm connoisseurs like Herbert Bayard Swope, Neysa McMein and Alexander Woollcott.

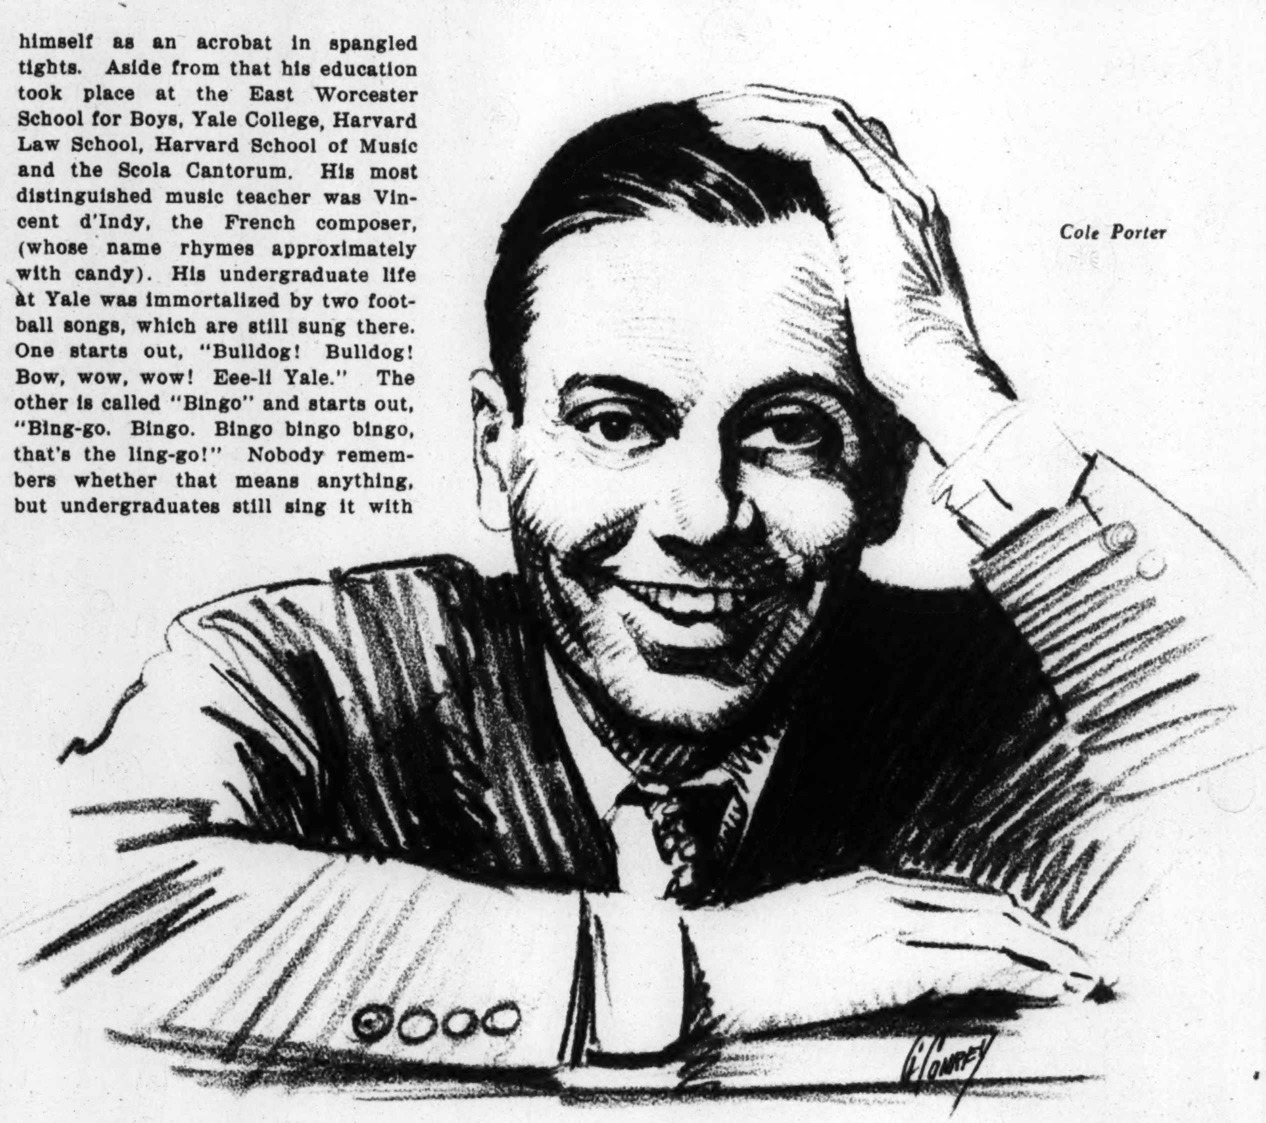
It was those three who invented a parlor game in which they were to decide which had the most "personality." Cole Porter won by a length, though all he had said was that he was sorry, but he wasn't playing.

One has evidence, though, that there is something more to Cole Porter than the easy-going, engaging, laughing, quaffing, dandified, unreflecting fellow he wants to be considered. The evidence is his work—the meticulous, neo-classical development in his more workmanlike composition, the dextrous rhythmical contortions of his songs and the tight, clever rhyme schemes of his lyrics. There may be intentional affectation in this behold-the-lilies-of-the-field attitude—which for years made him an outcast with the producers. But, according to his own protestations, people are confused by his methods of working. He gets all his best ideas, he says, while chattering at parties. He works best while lying on his back, smoking a cigarette. He not only composes without benefit of piano, but without recourse to pencils and staffed paper—until the work is almost completed.

BUT he doesn't shun the labor of revamping. The music for "Anything Goes" had to be rewritten at least twice and last summer, when it was being revised for London audiences, he rewrote some of it again for C. B. Cochran, the producer, who radioed his request for revision while Porter was somewhere in the middle of the Indian Ocean. Without a qualm he changed the rhyme schemes of "You're the Top" by such local interpolations as "a dress by Patou" for "a dress by Saks'," Tallulah Bankhead for Irene Bordoni, an Ascot bonnet for one by Bendel. Finally, to show that there were no hard feelings, he dashed off the verses:

"You're the grace
  Of the Brontosaurus,
You're the pace
  Of a Cochran chorus. . . ."

In getting his enviable stand at the corner of Tin Pan Alley and Park avenue, Cole Porter has certainly done less confessed toil than most world celebrities who started out as Indiana farm boys. But to begin with, he wasn't an ordinary farm boy. His family were well-to-do, and he was the heir to a sizable fortune which his grandfather, a frustrated Forty-niner, made out of West Virginia coal fields he had bought thinking they were timber lands. His early childhood was spent laboriously learning to play the violin and the piano; his parents were convinced he had talent. His play time was largely occupied in watching the life of the Hagenback-Wallace circus, which has winter quarters in Peru, the town of his nativity. He fancied himself as an acrobat in spangled tights. Aside from that his education took place at the East Worcester School for Boys, Yale College, Harvard Law School, Harvard School of Music and the Scola Cantorum. His most distinguished music teacher was Vincent d'Indy, the French composer, (whose name rhymes approximately with candy). His undergraduate life at Yale was immortalized by two football songs, which are still sung there. One starts out, "Bulldog! Bulldog! Bow, wow, wow! Eee-li Yale." The other is called "Bingo" and starts out, "Bing-go. Bingo. Bingo bingo bingo, that's the ling-go!" Nobody remembers whether that means anything, but undergraduates still sing it with great gusto, as if it did. Almost none of them know who wrote it.



Cole Porter

A couple of years ago, as if to erase the stigma of having written such balderdash, he appeared at an Elsa Maxwell party, where the guests had been ordered to come as their opposites, wearing football togs of the Walter Camp era. La Maxwell, herself, incidentally, came as Herbert Hoover; Ina Claire, as Bishop Manning; Mrs. Cole Porter, as a housemaid.

Porter undertook to study music seriously (at the Scola Cantorum and with d'Indy) after his Broadway flop and his subsequent experience in the war. He enlisted before America's entry and served for a time with the French Foreign Legion, carrying a portable piano around with him on his early campaigns. He never got to do much fighting, for when this country decided to go in Cole Porter was transferred to teaching gunnery to the apostles of that great political principle—and got a reputation for wearing the smartest uniforms in Paris, for giving parties in which the champagne went so fast that it had to be cooled in a tin bathtub, for owning one of the snappiest apartments in the Faubourg St. Germaine. When the war was over he was awarded France's most prized military decoration, because it had been so amusing having him there, not for his bravery. A more appropriate trophy he brought back with him was Mrs. Cole Porter, the divorced wife of Edward R. Thomas and the daughter of William P. Lee, prominent citizen of Louisville, Ky. Soon afterwards he did the songs for "Hitchy Koo" and "Greenwich Village Follies." The most successful was "I'm in Love Again."

After these two moderate successes Porter became so irresponsible that the producers wouldn't allow him in their offices. He was tagged a playboy, a Park avenue playboy. Broadway crosses probably more streets than any other in New York, but it never crosses Park avenue. Porter decided to forget about song writing. He was next seen exploring the provinces of France as an emissary of the Club des Gourmets. He had a house in Paris, occupied Browning's palazzo on the Lido, was one of the first to discover the possibilities of Antibes as a resort. For four years he snubbed the muse.

Then one day in 1927, lying in the sand at Lido, he noticed that his neighbor was Ray Goetz, a New York producer. That is how he happened to write the score for "Paris." Goetz had anticipated it would be a terrific job getting Porter to do any work for him; Porter was delighted to get the chance. He went back to what he calls work with a vengeance. "Paris" starring Irene Bordoni, was a hit. "Fifty Million Frenchmen" and "Wake Up and Dream" were both hits. "The New Yorkers" failed to make money, but it had some good songs and Porter couldn't have lost much by it, even though the show cost $100,000 of Whitney money. "Nymph Errant" was a hit in London, "The Gay Divorcee" was a hit in New York and "Anything Goes" is a smash hit in both cities at this writing.

The last had a long, sad history. The book was to be by P. G. Wodehouse and Guy Bolton; its plot included a shipwreck. Just before it went into rehearsal, the Morro Castle catastrophe put shipwrecks outside the pale as entertainment. Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse had to revamp the entire show at a minute's notice. They saved the ship and most of the Cole Porter music, but it was a near thing and everybody was sincerely worried. Crouse gives an amusing account of Porter going away to commit suicide over the week-end at Neysa McMein's Long Island house, changing his mind and coming back to town to jump out of a window of his penthouse on the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

BUT at 43 he seems to have suffered no lasting effects from his vicissitude. He is a slight man with bulging brown eyes that look like Eddie Cantor's and one of the most engaging smiles ever seen in the street after 4 in the morning. He has an up-turned nose, a prominent upper lip, thinning hair, a bored look and speaks French like a Frenchman. His personal customs are unpredictable. In New York he usually gets to bed by 5 and gets up at 10 to start working. At 5 in the afternoon he is ready to get dressed and begin the business of amusing the town again. Away from New York he likes hunting, swimming, gourmandizing and long voyages to strange places. He is fond of cats and other graceful things. It is said his apartment has walls 14 feet thick; this is probably not true. It is true, though, that a radio manager refused to allow him to sing an altered version of "You're the Top," because he himself, the composer, had given orders that no one should be allowed to parody his favorite composition on the air.

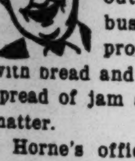
"But I made the rule," said Cole Porter.

"Quite," said the other. "And I enforce it."

That story is from Hubert Kelley, a magazine writer, who says that Porter told him that during the period when "You're the Top" was most popular he was getting more than 300 parodies in the mail every month. His songs are unique in being that popular without loss of a certain quality that distinguishes them from others. Two of them have been transcribed into braille music. One of these is "Don't Look at Me That Way."

MAX PUTZEL.

THE MAN WHO OWNS SIX MILLION JOKES

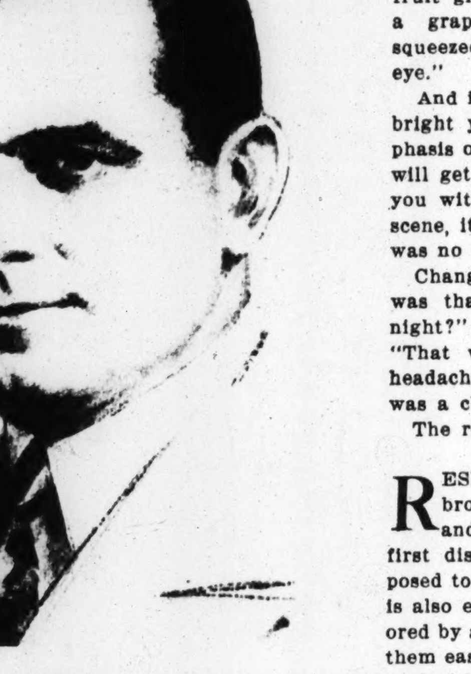


BEING funny is serious business. Ask Hal Horne. He should know, because he made a new industry out of mirth. And any business that today can provide a man not only with bread and butter, but a generous spread of jam as well, is no laughing matter.

Horne's offices in a Fifth avenue skyscraper constitute probably the largest gag factory extant. In steel filing cabinets ranging along the walls of several rooms some 6,000,000 quips and jests are housed, all neatly filed, cross-filed and counter-cross-filed. In other rooms are stored magazines which contain the earliest known printing of a number of these jokes. Some of these publications are more than a hundred years old, but the jokes they contain have often been dusted off and used for the 1935 trade. After all, who could remember back a century ago. Those jokes are the stock in trade of a man whose business is being funny for money. And business is good.

Clients consist of a long list of comic strip artists, stage, screen and radio comedians, playwrights, columnists, governors, senators, house organs and advertising agencies. Here's a typical pleased client. He was the president of a small college who was scheduled to make a commencement address. Recalling the few polite handclaps that greeted his efforts the year before, he sent an S. O. S. to the gag mill. A number of jokes, pointed just enough to add piquancy to the address, were sent him. The following year he sent in another order, but on the letterhead of a different college. He volunteered the explanation that he had received a great many compliments on his address the year before, said compliments being restricted to the humor. One especially was from the chairman of the board of trustees of the college he now headed, asking prexy to take over the helm of the institution from which he was writing because, as the chairman put it, he was "a far-seeing educator who appreciated humor." Horne doesn't mind. He rather likes it if his humor is someone else's reward.

Most of the customers, however, are script writers who have a basic idea of the slant they want the comedy to take, but appeal to Horne for gags to "spike" throughout the script. To assist him, Horne employs a staff of 15 girls who do nothing but clip jokes from magazines and newspapers from all over the world. He has found that, in a year's time, out of every 10 jokes in print his files already contain verbatim copies of nine. The tenth is apt to be a rehash of something they already have but containing enough difference to get into the file.



Hal Horne.

Thus, when a script writer is in a quandary, Horne or one of his "adapters" goes to work on the difficulty. An adapter is a bright young man who, in addition to being able to think up an occasional new joke, has the happy faculty of being able to take a stock situation from the files and give it a peculiar twist to fit the type of comedy or the manner of delivery of a particular comedian. Chances are that the funny bit that sent you rolling on the floor last night was carefully culled from the hoary wheezes carefully preserved in one of Hal's filing cabinets. With the barnacles removed, it serves as the newest example of what a man will laugh at.

The only really new jokes, says the gag master, those that can be said to be original during the past year, are the current lampoons of the New Deal.

The rest of them are only rehashes and contortions of old smoothies.

When a joke is sent to the file, it is catalogued under one of several hundred classifications such as absent-minded, courtship or anatomy. The anatomy file is further subdivided into ears, nose, eyes, halitosis, fallen arches and the like. Courtship gets split up into date, kissing, necking, father, suitor, engagement, love and flirtation.

The one joke to rate a file of its own is the classic: "Who was that lady I seen you with last night?" Hal Horne's collection numbers almost 400 reply variations to that question.

The standard answer is: "That was no lady, that was my wife." But there are a great many more. For instance, "Who was that lady I seen you with last night?" "That was no lady, that was your wife."

Again, "Who was that lady I seen you ——?" "Dear me, such English."

Or, "Who was that lady I seen you ——?" "Oh, that was a grapefruit girl." "What kind of a girl is a grapefruit girl?" "Whenever I squeezed her, she hit me right in the eye."

And if that isn't enough, one of the bright young men will shift the emphasis on a word and this is what you will get: "Who was that lady I seen you with last night?" "That was no scene, it was an accident." Or, "That was no ewe, that was a ram."

Changing the question to: "Who was that lady I saw you with last night?" come the replies as follow: "That was no eyesore, that was a headache" or "That was no saw, that was a chisel."

The reader gets the idea.

RESEARCH into jokiana has brought forth kernels of wisdom and sober truth for Horne. The first discovery was that a pun, supposed to be the lowest form of humor, is also easiest to sell. It is much favored by after-dinner speakers who find them easy to remember and drop them around like fishhooks among the poorfish listeners, hoping that the serious thoughts sandwiched in will be caught on the baited humor.

The second was that college magazines use the roughest jokes and if some of their material appeared in a commercial magazine the postoffice and the vice suppression societies would be after the publishers.

Does one think that Joe Miller was an early wit who tossed off a bon mot every other syllable? If so, one's thinking is all wrong.

"He was," says Mr. Horne, "an English actor of the seventeenth century, morose and taciturn. He hung out in a London tavern and when anybody made a wise crack, it would be hung on Joe Miller as a gag since he was the last person in the world to crack wise. That was a gag in itself. Joe Miller actually never wrote a joke in his life. But years after his death an enterprising wag collected all the gags he could think of or steal, put them together in a book, and in 1739 perpetuated the hoax by publishing what he called Joe Miller's Joke Book."

Anyone with so screwy a business to take seriously must have a screwy background. Horne has. A Bostonian by birth, he was at Harvard for two years. He earned part of his tuition fee as a police court reporter and the rest by making death-defying leaps through the flames twice daily at Wonderland Park, an amusement resort near Boston. He left college to enter the war and the war to go to Hollywood where he became interested in movie publicity.

He soon found that when he injected a bit of humor into his releases, he stood a better chance of grabbing free space on the amusement pages. So he decided to make a study of humor. He set for himself the routine of coming to his office every morning at 7:30, at which time he was to sit down and write twenty jokes, to be finished by 9:30. As he carefully explained it, he wasn't content with doing nineteen and he refused to do twenty-one. Just twenty jokes in two hours was all he wanted. Neither did he expect that every one of these jokes would produce a belly-laugh. All he required of himself was that he turn out something that had a touch of humor to it. In this way he accumulated almost a thousand jokes in a short period.

One day an associate, hearing of this independent research into the humor situation, turned over to him a file of gags he had himself collected and catalogued at one time. Horne started to go through them and the third one brought him up with a start. It was one he thought he'd made up all by himself in his daily two-hour stint. (College boy calling his dad "the kin I love to touch"). Reading further, he found a number of gags he was hearing on the radio. And his associate's collection was several years old.

Right then and there he got the idea for a systematic collection. He bought a number of magazines, subscribed to many more, and put some girls to work clipping and classifying the jokes they contained. Up to this point the collection was all expense and no income. Then he heard that one movie company was going to sue another over the use of the line "Half the girls in the world are working girls, the other half are working men." Mr. Horne traced the gag to a 1924 issue of a Canadian newspaper and offered to go back still further, but the first movie company had had enough.

He resigned his publicity job and Hal Horne, Inc., was born. Today, he is recognized as the leading expert on gags. So far as jokes go—and they go pretty far, sometimes—he speaks with the voice of authority.

HORNE and the resources of his collection have been called in an endless number of times to settle plagiarism suits. He says there isn't a case on record that he knows of where the plaintiff has collected. In his opinion, "You can't steal what somebody thought up a century ago. You can, of course, but there's scarcely any liability."

A short, stocky man in his forties, he looks as if he could be glum enough to be the proprietor of a laugh factory. He tells you he used to be the life of the party and he liked nothing better than being a toastmaster. A tablecloth to him was a signal to get up and talk. Now he's content to let it be the background for the filet mignon.

He does offer this idea. Says he, "A social structure is doomed when jokes are flung at it. The best example is prohibition. When people saw how things really turned out, they began to make fun of it. They could not take it seriously and so did not obey the law. It is not too much to say that prohibition was actually laughed off the statute books."

By the same token, Horne does not think the New Deal is doomed as yet. True, he says, there have been jokes about it, but not enough to indicate that its trend is out of the picture.

RUTH ARELL.

The Case of the Military Loan Shark

Ellis Parker, a small-town detective living and working in Mount Holly, New Jersey, is nevertheless a nationally-known figure in police circles through the remarkable number of major crime mysteries he has unraveled. His skillful analysis of fragmentary evidence immediately suggests that celebrated fictional detective, Sherlock Holmes.

The Eighth in a Series of True Life Detective Stories Tells How Ellis Parker Tracked Down a Murderer by the Clews That Couldn't Be Found.

By FLETCHER PRATT

"She said she had dreamed of seeing her brother's body lying in a clump of bushes on the edge of a military reservation."

PINNED to the door was a note: "Along the Rancocas Creek, three miles out of Mount Holly. Back at 2 p. m."

There was snow on the ground and ice in the streets; the air was decidedly winterish, with a wind like a knife blowing through it. I thought of Ellis Parker, only a couple of weeks out of bed after a serious illness, out on the endless and racking task of tracking down some criminal in the freezing slush along Rancocas Creek and sighed with sympathy; then, as it lacked only five minutes of 2, I sat down to wait.

At one minute of 2 the door downstairs banged; someone came up the stairs two steps at a time, and the next moment Ellis Parker, the poor sick man I had been sympathizing with, was standing in the hall, looking the picture of health, with a string of fish in one hand, remarking that the fish had been running good since about 7 o'clock.

"Cold?" he said. "No, I wouldn't call this bad. Best day of the year. Does a man good to get out when he can. Usually don't get much chance to get out in this business."

"Then you haven't any crime wave on now?"

He laughed. "There isn't any such thing as a general crime wave," he declared positively. "There is always some crime going on, because people always bring up their children in the same way, more or less. That's the way to prevent crime, right in the home before it starts."

. . . You can say, though, that crimes do run in waves in one sense. There will be an outbreak of robberies, for instance, and for a couple of months we'll get nothing but robberies. Then maybe it will be suicides or bank holdups, one right after another. Not by the same persons, either. One just seems to get the idea from another and off they go. Now take 1921 and 1922; that was the big murder year. We caught Louis Lively, the mulatto, in the fall of 1921. In March of 1922 John Brunen was shot, and in December of 1921, the ninth I think, the same day that Lively was electrocuted, I got the first news of the Camp Dix case.

THAT'S a good many years ago now, and most of my records went when the old building was burned in 1926, so I may be foggy on a few of the details, but I remember the case quite well. It was just the kind of day today is, with a little snow on the ground, cold and freezing, when I heard someone out there and looked up to see a soldier come in. After him came another one and then a lot more, till the whole office was full of them. They all had stars and spangles on, too, so I knew they were officers and there must be something important going on.

One of them came in and introduced himself as Colonel Quinlan of the Intelligence Department over at Camp Dix, near Wrightstown. He introduced most of the others.

"I'm afraid we have a murder case at the camp, Mr. Parker," he said, "and General Summerall, who has heard of your work, sent me over to ask you to take charge of the investigation. We can't seem to do much with it on our own resources."

"I thought some of your people at camp were experienced in police work," I said, to make conversation.

"They are. Normally, the Provost-Marshal and the military police handle anything that comes up. If they have difficulty in finding the culprit they call on us in the intelligence department. But murder is a little out of our line, and I may as well say frankly that this business has us baffled. It's murder, and it's murder that absolutely hasn't a clew. We have a car outside here, if you'll be good enough to come back to the camp with us." I had heard that before; both things. To people unfamiliar with police work, murders never have any clews, and they always want you to come right over. I sat still because I knew that I could do more good right there.

"How do you know it's a murder?" I asked. "Suppose you give me some of the details. I assume you've been over the ground and that in your position you know what to look for. It will save a lot of time if I have the details before I start."

"Well, we know it's a murder because Captain Baker, the medical officer, who examined the body, says the man had been shot through the head and an intensive search failed to show any weapon near the spot."

"That seems reasonable unless somebody carried the weapon away. Then it might be suicide. Go on."

"I think I'll go back to the beginning," said Colonel Quinlan. "The man — we believe — was Sergeant Michael Gregor of the Eighteenth Infantry, which has been stationed at Camp Dix with the other regiments under General Summerall's command. He was a good soldier, with a World War record, who had re-enlisted in the regular army after the war. On September 8 he turned up missing. We assumed that it was a case of A. W. O. L., of which there has been a good deal lately, and did nothing in particular about it. After three days it became, technically, desertion, but not wishing to be too hard on a veteran of good record, we merely sent a man up to Philadelphia to accompany the police in making the rounds of the usual hangouts, with instructions to bring Gregor in. They didn't find him.

"AFTER a couple of weeks without anything further the only explanation seemed deliberate desertion, and we began to take the steps usual in such cases—communicating with his family and so on."

"Just a minute," I broke in. "How much family has he?"

"His next of kin was given in the records as a sister in Muncie, Indiana. She was no longer at the address when the Intelligence Department in that district tried to trace her last October. They located her in St. Louis at the beginning of this month and—here's the curious thing, Mr. Parker—only day before yesterday we had a letter from her. She said she had dreamed of seeing her brother's body lying in a clump of bushes on the edge of a military reservation. She described the place minutely, even to the snow on on the ground and the position he was lying in. Yesterday afternoon, just the day after the letter came, a detail working along the edge of the reservation near the artillery range found the body lying exactly as she had described it."

I grunted. I don't believe in dreams and that sister seemed altogether too well informed to suit my taste. But that side of the matter could wait. You have to take everything in order in a murder case and test each step as you go. Over in Monmouth County they put a man on trial for murder once and while they were trying him the man he was supposed to have killed walked into the courtroom.

"What about the identification?" I asked. "Didn't you"——

"Well, he's been out there exposed to the elements for three months now—and the elements haven't been exactly kind," Colonel Quinlan interrupted. "The body is very much decomposed. We made identification through some keys he had and a string of rosary beads he wore. The medical officer says the body must have been there for the whole three months or pretty close to it, to get into that condition. There haven't been any other men missing at Camp Dix over a three months' stretch."

That wasn't perfect for identification, but it would stand till we got something to the contrary. "What about the body and the bullet-wound?" I asked next. "Have you a copy of the doctor's report?"

"Better than that," said the Colonel. "I have the doctor. Captain Baker," he called, and one of the other officers came in. Quinlan introduced him and told him what I wanted.

"The body was lying on its left side," he reported. "Both bullets entered the right side of the head; one just above the right ear, one a little lower down and behind the ear, and both came out, nearly in the same place at the top of the head." He put his fingers on his own head to show me where he meant. The picture the angles made was that, if the man had been standing upright when shot, both bullets must have come from below at a rather sharp, upward-pointing angle.

"Could the wounds have been self-inflicted?"

"The one over the right ear might have been, although the possibilities would be against it. The other one certainly not, and both together an absolute impossibility. Either would have been instantly fatal."

"Was there anything to indicate how close the gun was held—powder burns, for instance?"

The doctor hesitated. "I looked for that. Of course, decomposition had gone so far that it is almost impossible to say with accuracy, but I think there were no powder burns," he offered finally. "I noted that there was no flash burning of the hair around the wound at the back and the hair was in a good state of preservation."

"What kind of bullets were they?"

"Impossible to be certain. Might have been a standard army .45, although it might have been a .38 or even a .32."

I turned to Quinlan again. "You didn't find either of the bullets?"

"No, of course not. The army .45 has a high velocity; enough to carry the bullets to some distance, even after passing through a man's head."

"Well, what did you find, aside from the keys and the rosary? It would be useful to know what the man had on him."

The Colonel pulled out a notebook. It was a big help in this case, dealing with those army men. They are trained observers and have a systematic way of setting down what they observe. I got all the information I could use out of them.

"I put it down here. In his left upper tunic pocket there were the remains of a pack of cigarettes—Camels—and some United Cigar coupons. In the left trousers pocket three keys on a keyring and remains of a package of matches. Left lower tunic pocket empty. The right upper tunic pocket held a number of small slips of paper that had once been written on in pencil, but were so weathered as to be illegible. Stub of a pencil, a pair of dice and a photo of a woman in the right lower tunic pocket. Right trousers pocket empty; hip pocket empty. That was all."

"Army tunics have buttons on the pockets. I'm interested to know whether they were buttoned or unbuttoned."

THE Colonel frowned. "Some were unbuttoned and some buttoned, I think. What do you say, Captain Baker?"

"The left lower tunic pocket, the empty one, was unbuttoned. I think one of the others, too. Probably the right upper, as I remember. Is it important?"

I didn't answer. "No footprints or other ground marks near the body?"

"No. There wouldn't be. Three months of weathering would take care of that. Besides, any possible marks there might have been were pretty thoroughly obliterated by the party that found him. I tell you the case hasn't a single clew, not a single thing on which we can start an investigation. Will you come over and give us a hand with it?"

"I'll be glad to give you a hand," I told him, "and if it seems necessary I'll come over to the camp and look around. But I don't think it would do any particular good right at present. You seem to have all the facts that could be gained by observation. And I wouldn't say there are no clews. On the contrary, the case presents several very striking features."

"Those slips of paper?"——

"No. Nothing you found. The striking clews are the things you didn't find."

"The things we got from his pockets are about what one would expect"——

"With one or two highly significan differences. You have not reported finding any handkerchief."

Colonel Quinlan started. "But I don't see the importance of that."

"Everything is important until you have found an explanation for it. And every man, in the army or out of it, usually carries a handkerchief. Another thing—no purse or money."

"That's explainable. Soldiers seldom carry purses and"—he smiled—"rarely have any money. They spend it."

"When was Gregor paid—the last time?"

"Either the last day of August or the first of September—I am not sure. We can check up if you wish."

"You bet I wish. You have the key of the case there, I think. I want to know how much money he was paid on his last pay day; whether there was any place he could spend it in camp; whether he got leave to go out of the camp between pay day and his disappearance; if he left the camp, with whom he went and where and how much money he spent; how much money was found in his chest or locker, or wherever he kept his things in the camp."

"I can answer the last question right now, because we looked over his gear while we still thought it was a desertion case. There wasn't any money at all."

"ALL the more remarkable. Taken in connection with the absence of a handkerchief this total lack of funds only a week after pay day is very suggestive. Another thing of which your list makes no mention is a watch."

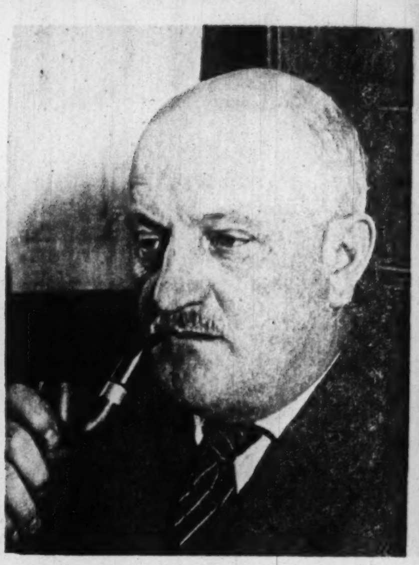
"But all soldiers don't carry watches."

"Some of them do, don't they? Neither do all of them carry purses or money and a few, I suppose, don't carry handkerchiefs. To find a man lacking one of these three common articles almost every man has is not surprising; when two are missing, however, it calls for comment; and the lack of all three is almost incredible. Especially so, when you consider that two of the pockets were empty—the left lower tunic pocket and the right trousers pocket—while all the others were jammed with a collection of junk. Moreover, the detail of the unbuttoned pocket is interesting. Gregor was a Sergeant, you said. I believe I'm right in supposing that he was supposed to be especially neat about such details. Therefore I suggest that the left lower tunic pocket was unbuttoned and its contents removed by the murderer.

That impressed them a lot. "Very neat, Mr. Parker," said the Colonel. "But, after all, we knew we had a murder on hand already, and the purpose of the investigation is to establish who committed the crime."

"That's what I'm trying to get at," I told him. "This evidence is negative, but it helps to supply a motive. With material clews lacking we must search for the murderer through such psychological clews as his actions give us. On what we have so far it looks like a money killing. Now if the murderer is another soldier—and I'm not altogether satisfied with the dream letter from the sister as yet, but we can check on that—if he is a soldier, we know he will turn out to be one who habitually spends more than he gets. And as your soldiers haven't much place to spend money, he probably spends it in the usual way in such cases—gambling. . . . Now, there's one other thing I want to bring up. Correct me if I'm wrong. Isn't a soldier supposed to carry a gun? What happened to the one Gregor was carrying, if he had one?"

Colonel Quinlan cleared his throat.



Ellis Parker.

"That's a feature I omitted to mention. They don't always carry guns, but you're right about Gregor's gun being missing. Fortunately army guns are registered. Gregor had a .45, No. 399274, and it hasn't turned up anywhere."

"The murderer probably has it, then. Another piece of evidence to point toward the idea that the body was plundered of everything valuable. What I really brought up the question of the gun for, however, is to solve the curious inconsistency of the bullet wounds."

"Both made by the murderer, close together. What's the inconsistency?"

"The inconsistency between their positions and the facts we know about the killing—the inconsistency that makes it important to settle, if we can, whether the bullets that killed Gregor came from a .45 or a .38. Look here; measure the angle at which those bullets entered his head, and try to reproduce the circumstances at the moment they were fired. The body was found in a clump of bushes. You can assume that the murderer was concealed in the bushes, down near the ground. If he fired upward as Gregor went past the first bullet would be the one that hit him above the ear, Gregor staggered on then, a pace or two, when the other shot was fired, striking him in the back of the head. Does that picture appeal to you as accurate?"

I COULD see the officers glance at each other. They knew a good deal about weapons, of course, and I could see they weren't satisfied. "Must have been a darn good shot with a revolver to do that," murmured one of them, and Colonel Quinlan added, with a frown: "Why, from the angle of those bullet wounds, the murderer would have to be right on top of Gregor when he fired. I don't see how Gregor could have missed stepping on him when he went past."

"Neither do I. I'll take that up in a minute. But there's something more curious than that. You know that a .32 or a .38 will kill a man all right, but the force of the bullet isn't quite enough to knock him off his feet right on the spot. Therefore, if Gregor was shot with a .32 or .38 the little reconstruction I have just given you could be right, even though it seems far-fetched. But a .45 carries punch enough to knock a man down the minute it hits him. So if Gregor was shot with a .45 the reconstruction couldn't be accurate. The first bullet, hitting him where it did, would knock him down. There wouldn't be any staggering, and no opportunity for the murderer to fire the second shot at all. That's why I was anxious to get at one of the bullets. However, there's another way to settle the question. What about the dead man's hat?"

"He wasn't wearing a hat, but a garrison cap. It's missing; never found."

"DIDN'T I say that what you found wasn't so important as what you didn't find? Our unknown murderer is beginning to emerge as a character. I said before he was probably a gambler. Now we know in addition that he's very careful. When we catch up with him we'll find that he has a perfect story; there will be no connection between him and Gregor at all, and he will be able to account for everything in a way that will take a lot of work to unearth the real facts."

"How does the lack of the garrison cap prove that?"

"Everything proves it. In the first place, the murder is performed off at this lonely spot where no one ever goes and where the body is only discovered through a kind of accident, three months later. Do you know what your ordinary criminal would do after killing a man in a place like that? He'd bury the body and trust to its never being found. But our man is both more clever and more nervy. He knows that the body will stand as good a chance of remaining undiscovered above ground as underneath, at least in as shallow a grave as he could dig in the time he had.

"So he rifles the body quickly, then hurries off somewhere to fix up a story, probably to arrange an alibi for himself. You'll find he's been up to some hocus-pokus with clocks or something like that."

The army men smiled. "Not much chance of that, Mr. Parker. You can't juggle time in an army camp where several thousand men do things on the minute."

"Well, he'd try to establish an alibi by some method. Having taken what he wanted from the body, which was probably money, he took everything else that would help in tracing the crime to any particular person. The money, of course, the watch—I'll bet we never find that watch—the murderer's too smart to pawn it. The handkerchief I don't quite understand; he may have taken it or Gregor may have been without one. The shells from the gun—you didn't find any empty shells, did you?"

"No. We looked."

"The shells from the gun then. The garrison cap, now; he must have taken that away for some special reason, because I'm sure the question of identifying the caliber of the bullet wouldn't occur to him. It wouldn't make any difference from his point of view."

I sat there for a couple of minutes trying to think of some reason why the killer should want to walk off with that cap and I couldn't. It was Colonel Quinlan who gave the answer.

"Perhaps it wasn't his cap, or it was marked"——

"MARKED! Thanks, Colonel! That's it. Of course it was marked. I got off onto the question of that cap and forgot what I brought it up for. Look here; I was talking about the path of those bullets and saying that if Gregor had been shot with a .45, as seems very likely, the reconstruction with the murderer hiding under a bush and shooting up at him wouldn't fit. And neither will any other. You can't conceive of any way in which one man could remain on his feet long enough for another man to put two .45 bullets through his head. Therefore, Gregor wasn't on his feet when the bullets were fired; he was lying on the ground with the murderer standing over him, which makes the angles work out all right. But if Gregor was on the ground when he was shot the murdererer must have put him there. . . . Was he a big man, by any chance?"

"Yes. Big and powerful."

"Better and better. Then the murderer got him on the ground by knocking him down with something, unexpectedly. The blow probably smashed the cap and it was the smashing, not the bullet holes in the cap, that the murderer was trying to hide from us by taking it."

"But what if Gregor wasn't shot with a .45?"

"I was coming to that. It holds for a .38, too. Will you make a little experiment right here? Colonel Quinlan, you're a tall men; suppose you stand up in front of the desk there, with your hat off. Now, Captain Baker, indicate on his head where the first bullet went through. Now, any of the rest of you try to follow that line and see where it comes out on the floor. You see, it's almost at his feet. To have shot Gregor while he was standing up the murderer must have been, as you said, right on top of him. I don't think it's possible; if he had been that close Gregor would have seen him and the shot would have gone in the front of his face instead of the side."

"Very nice," the Colonel agreed, "I compliment you on the way you worked out all the details. The next thing, though, is to get down to cases. What are our chances for locating the man who did it? Or do you think the sister is mixed up in it?"

"No, I don't. I just thought that business about the dream and the letter sounded funny. But this isn't a woman's crime; it was done

THE CHEWING-GUM LAXATIVE

"His company," said one of the officers. "The rest of the regiment wouldn't have enough contact with him; at least not enough to know that he had money."

"We can start from there, then," I told them. "The first thing is that check-up on Gregor's doings after pay day. The next is to bring the men of that company in here for questioning."

One of the officers whistled. "There are a hundred and seventy-five of them," he said, doubtfully.

"But it's the only way of getting at the man we want. I suppose none of the hundred and seventy-five are leaving?"

"Not unless the murderer gets frightened and deserts."

"No. He won't do that. The man we're after is too clever. He knows that if he starts running we'll be after him and catch him, too. He's taking a chance on our not finding a needle in a haystack. He would have deserted before if he were going to."

"Meanwhile," asked Colonel Quinlan, "is there anything else that we can do at our end? General Summerall has authorized me to place the resources of the entire division at your disposal."

"You can help a lot by checking several points. If I'm right about Gregor being shot while he was lying on the ground those bullets are still there, in the ground, right where he lay. Dig up the ground around the spot and sift it for the bullets; even one of them would be a big help. I suggest also that it would be a good idea to check over Gregor's clothes if they are still available and make sure his cap is missing. You might notify the Philadelphia and Trenton police to be on the lookout for the gun and you can write to the sister and ask whether Gregor owned a watch. I'd also be interested in knowing whether he has ever been mixed up with any women to amount to anything. I'm not clear on that motive question yet. Has the body been buried?"

"Yes," said the medical officer.

"HAVE it exhumed, then, and see whether you can find any traces of a heavy blow on the head. It would probably be a blow hard enough to fracture the skull or almost. The most likely places are on the left temple and square in the back of the head."

That was how I got that case and that was about all the thinking I did on it. The rest was just spade-work. They started bringing those soldiers in the next morning and from then on we had them here in the office in batches of five or ten a day. All kinds—from the kind who were so stupid they had to think a while before they could remember their own names to the real bright type who snapped every answer out, smart as a whip.

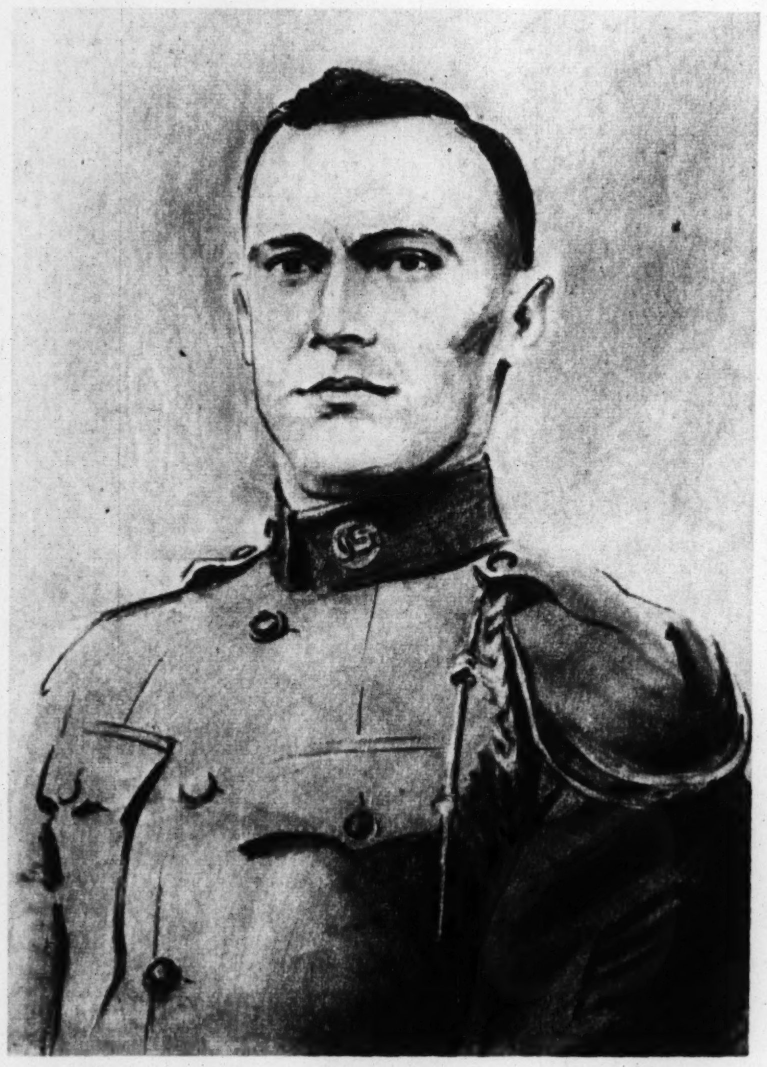
What did I do with them? Well, I worked out a regular procedure, which I applied to every man who was brought in. Clifford Kane took them into the outer office and photographed and fingerprinted them. That takes a while. While he was handling one, I'd be questioning another. I started in by getting each soldier's name, where he came from and his full history, as much as he would give it, and the details were checked later against his service record and what his officers had to say about him. Then I asked where he first met Gregor and when, and what he knew about him. Finally, after those questions were settled, I'd ask each one what he was doing on that September 8 when Gregor disappeared, making him account for every minute of the day as far as possible and checking his answers with the regimental records.

Incidentally, I might mention that while this was going on I gradually got the different reports in from Colonel Quinlan. Nothing had turned up on the watch or revolver, but he had sifted the ground around the spot where the body was and got two .45 bullets out of it. On the question of whether Gregor had any money the records showed he had been paid on the first of the month, and had had no leaves since then. There were no deductions from his pay, so he must have had a considerable sum of money with him. The medical officer reported the body had been exhumed and there was a big bang over the temple that just missed being a skull fracture; too much decomposition to make out what the blow had been delivered by, but not enough to disguise the fact that there had been a blow. That accumulation of evidence showed I was on the right track, so I went right along with the questioning, pretty sure I'd strike oil sooner or later. Imagine it, a hundred and seventy-five of them. I had a whole drawer full of stenographer's reports when I got through.

The important questions, of course, were the ones about what kind of a man Gregor was and the alibi question. I was still after that question of motive, looking for someone with an animus against him. It came out all right as we worked along through that company, clean and sharp. Gregor, it appeared, had set himself up in business as an amateur banker. He loaned money and charged interest on the loans—interest all the way up to ten per cent a month. On pay day he'd hang around and collect. Some of his debtors might owe money in other directions, too, but you can bet that he got his cut first. As a sergeant he was in a position to see that anyone who didn't pay up got a lot of dirty jobs and extra duty, and if that didn't work, Gregor was big enough to take him off somewhere and knock his block off.

When I got that much out of the stories of the soldiers, the details of the crime began to come clearer. Taken in conjunction with the date it showed that it probably wasn't a planned crime, as I had thought in the beginning. You see, it was a week after pay day. Gregor had probably had a loan out with the murderer, who failed to kick in when the time came. After waiting a week, he probably took him out there to beat him up, and the debtor laid for him with a club or something, knocked him out and then shot him. The murderer had done all his planning after the crime, when he worked fast and well.

That also supplied the clue to the weathered slips of paper found in Gregor's pocket. They must have been I. O. U.'s at one time. I had them dug out of the lot of Gregor's effects and sent them along to a handwriting expert. The medical officer had thought that the pocket containing them was one of the two left unbuttoned, so the I. O. U. signed by the murderer certainly would not be among them. It would be the reason for the crime, and the first thing he'd destroy. Therefore if any of the signatures could be identified, these men would automatically be eliminated as possible murderers. The handwriting man, by the way, got three or four signatures out of the mess, which was a tribute to his skill, but it didn't do us much good, because by the time he made his report I had already eliminated the men he mentioned through the questionings.



Grover Duncan.

The alibi question was the important one now, and I'll show you why, because it isn't what you'd suppose. Suppose I say to you, right now: "A murder was committed just three months ago today. I want you to tell me what you were doing every minute of the day that day. I want you to tell me where you were and who you talked to." Could you do it? You bet you couldn't. You'd fish around to remember what day of the week it was, and you would be able to figure out what you had done in a general way, but not with all the details.

THAT'S what I was counting on. When a man gave otherwise intelligent answers, but confessed frankly he couldn't remember a thing that happened that day, I took him off the list of suspects right away. The stupid ones I kept on it temporarily while I asked their officers about them. There's always a chance that a really smart man will fake stupidity when he has something to hide. Finally there were those who remembered, or said they remembered, nearly everything about that September 8. I put them on an extra-special list of hot suspects. They were either liars or too smart for their own good.

There were about ten of them out of the hundred and seventy-five. When we had worked all through the company, after about four or five weeks of questioning, I had those ten brought back one at a time, and put them over the jumps again. Right in front of me, I had Miss Yoos' transcript of what they had said before, and I was careful to ask the same questions. Every time there was a discrepancy I pointed it out to the man I was questioning. "How do you explain that?" I asked.

In nine of the ten cases there were discrepancies. The men either broke down and admitted they had been overworking their imaginations, or just owned up they didn't remember. The tenth man not only repeated every detail of his doings on the fatal September 8, but when I went on with the questioning, gave me an accurate account of how he had spent the days of September 7 and September 9 in addition.

Then I knew I had my murderer.

Nobody who was not repeating a story he had made up in advance and carefully rehearsed a dozen times could remember that much about his actions on three consecutive days, now about four months away.

He was Grover Duncan, a young private, slightly built and dark, with a thin, pinched face, looking as though he had t. b. He had a good army record with a reputation for exceptional intelligence, but some of his officers thought he was a gambler. (I was careful not to ask the other men, to avoid a tip-off.) He corresponded at every point with the deductions I had worked out. That should have been the big moment of this story, and it would if I had been writing it as fiction.

But in actual police practice things don't work that way. You know who committed a crime long before you can do anything about it. In this case all we had on the criminal was the certainty he had done it, not a speck of evidence. I got hold of his revolver and fired some bullets from it to send to a ballistics expert for comparison with those that had been found in the ground near Gregor's body. They hadn't come from the same gun, which meant that Gregor had been shot with his own weapon, the gun that was missing. I had Duncan's belongings searched quietly, but there was no trace either of the watch or the handkerchief.

So you see where we were. His story, when I came to test it, proved to be a masterpiece. I worked out a time table for him, giving his movements for the day. Every detail of it that could be checked against the camp orders and troop routine checked up perfectly. There were, of course, a couple of gaps; the longest one was an hour, and he accounted for those by saying he had been playing cards or talking with other soldiers in the barracks.

The only way to get anything definite on him was to find some material evidence that would prove his connection with Gregor, and the only articles that would be any use were the gun, the handkerchief and the watch. The handkerchief was pretty hopeless; I didn't know why he had taken it, and it might not be distinctive if we did get it. Therefore, there remained the watch and the gun. Since he didn't have them among his effects he had probably sent them away somewhere — but where?

I had Colonel Quinlan get his service record out for a clue. Duncan, it seemed, came from somewhere in Illinois and had been transferred to Dix from Camp Logan a few months before. So his connections were probably far enough away for him to communicate with them by mail. I had his mail watched—never mind how—to find out who he was writing to.

Right there I got the only break in this case. Duncan did what so many clever criminals do—tried to cover himself still further. He wrote to a fingerprint expert in Chicago. I got in touch with the Chicago police and had them look him up and ask to see that letter. I think I still have a copy of it—lucky I kept it at home with my things instead of with the records that burned up. Here it is:

"I am writing for information. We had a man killed here who was struck in the head and shot twice. First; is it possible to find any two fingerprints alike? Second; would it be possible to get fingerprints off clothing or anything fuzzy?"

That clinched it: I knew Duncan must be it, because we hadn't made public the discovery of Gregor's having been knocked out before being shot. Only the medical men who had made the autopsy knew it—and the man who had knocked him down.

Arguing that he probably had done that with some weapon, I went over to the section of the Camp Dix artillery range where the body had been found. He must have gotten rid of it somewhere around there. His time table, as I had worked it out, didn't give him much time for a getaway after the murder, no matter which of the time gaps it filled, and he had a lot to do in that time. He couldn't have taken much time to dispose of anything, and the weapon would have to be fairly bulky for so slight a man to have struck such a blow with it. Therefore, he couldn't have taken it far.

I WENT over to that stretch of scrub and bushes and went through it with Cliff Kane helping me. I didn't want to call in the army people because that would have tipped off Duncan and I wasn't ready to drop the axe on his neck without more evidence. We found it after about a three-day search—a section sawed off a billiard cue, about three feet long, as fine a club as you ever saw. Hopeless for fingerprints, of course, but it was useful all the same, along with the letter.

Aside from the fingerprint expert, Duncan hadn't many correspondents. He wrote to his family seldom, and besides that didn't look like a good place for him to send the gun and watch. But it only took a very short vigil over his correspondence to know that he was writing frequently to a girl in Huntington, West Virginia.

I had the army intelligence people help out on that end. They made inquiries, careful ones like all their work, and in about two weeks they came back with the information that Duncan had gone around with this girl a good deal while he was at Camp Logan. She wasn't living with her husband then, but now she was back with him again.

I reasoned he hadn't thrown the gun away; he'd try to get rid of it by the same method as the body, that is, leaving it around, but in a place where you normally wouldn't look for it. So I went at this feature of the case slowly, as I didn't want to do anything to the girl, who couldn't possibly be guilty, and I didn't want to break up her home.

I spent about three days making her acquaintance, then, without telling her how serious a matter it was, I mentioned Duncan. She brought out the story of the gun on her own accord; "Yes," she said, "he sent me a gun for a present."

"When was this?" I asked.

"About the middle of September."

"Have you still got it?"

"No. I traded it to my brother for another gun. I don't like a .45; they're too heavy. He gave me a little .32 for it. Want to see it?"

I SAID no and asked where her brother was. She said he'd gone over into Kentucky, just across the line, so I started out after him. It hasn't anything to do with the case, but that was the worst trip I ever made in my life. Washouts all along the roads, and at one place we went along the edge of a precipice with one of us holding the car so it wouldn't slide off where the road had washed down to a slant.

Trailing that brother was a whole case in itself. He was the floater type anyway, and I think someone must have tipped him off that he was wanted for something without saying what for. I never did find out, because I wasn't interested in that side of it; all I was after was that gun. I spent a day or two trying to locate him at the Kentucky address, and then discovered he'd left for Knoxville, Tennessee.

Of course, I suppose I could have wired ahead to the police there to pick him up, but I wanted him to be a witness for the prosecution against Duncan when I did find him, and it's a poor trick to antagonize your witnesses. So I went on to Knoxville by train. I missed him there by half an hour, and it was two more days before I picked up a trail that led me back to Charleston, West Virginia, where I finally found him.

When I explained what I wanted he looked relieved; so relieved that he handed the gun over without a question. It was an army .45, No. 399274.

That made the last link. I wired Colonel Quinlan and he had Duncan in the guardhouse that night.

When I got back I laid the gun, the copy of Duncan's letter to the fingerprint man and the section of billiard cue all in a row on my desk, then had Duncan brought in. It broke his nerve; he confessed to all the details, and went to prison for thirty years. It seems he had pounded the watch to pieces a day or two after the crime; he took it because it was a watch he had sold Gregor and he was afraid a connection with him might be traced through it. I never did find out why he got away with the handkerchief; perhaps Gregor didn't have one, after all.

The Capture of China's Pirate Queen

Forest, gave two silver dollars to each passenger. One had lost a brother, shot down in resisting the pirates. To that one she gave $70—"for a funeral."

But there were lean days ahead. One night the lover whom Miss Tan had scorned, slipped away from the gang, threaded the swampy inlets through the shore and hurried to Canton, where he told authorities he would lead them to the Pirate Queen.

It was not to be done in an hour. More than one fisherman along that coast had had reason to thank Golden Gracious for some vagrant act of kindness. They hid her when she asked, or directed searchers falsely.

For weeks she and the remnant of her following lived the lives of muskrats in the swampy upper reaches of the bay, hiding in the dense marsh growth by day and slipping away to new refuge by night.

Ultimately she was taken, penniless, ragged, completely exhausted.

The Successful Hunt for the Panda into my gun and fired into the beishung's fur. He was less than 10 feet from me! At the moment Bill Sheldon shot from above and the animal, struck simultaneously by both of our bullets, rolled over and over and came to a stop against a tree 50 yards below. We had killed a giant panda!"

And as if to reward them for all their trials and tribulations, two days later they killed another. Then came the long trek back to civilization. On their way they narrowly escaped ambush and capture by a roving band of Chinese bandits. They were paddling down stream in a native small boat when they came to a sharp bend in the river. Normally, they should have been carried along down to the right. But some cross-current caught them and sent them to the left, into what probably was an old bed of the stream. Immediately there was much shouting and firing of guns. The Sage party hastily made for shore and found shelter.

When the noise had died down, they found out that these bandits had gotten wind of their trip and had planned to waylay them around the bend. Had it not been for the tricky current, which sent them away from the bandits, they faced capture and possible death or long imprisonment for ransom.

Aside from this, the expedition suffered only the routine hardships inherent in travel in the interior of Asia. Besides its main purpose of getting specimens for mounting, it gathered a certain amount of anthropological data. What was most interesting in this was some evidence which may contribute to the confirmation of the theory that the American Indian is of Tibetan or Indo-Chinese origin. All the information that can be found to support or break down this theory is, of course, of great scientific value.

Probably Sage will be better satisfied, however, to be remembered for the two stuffed absurdities now inhabiting a realistic showcase in the American Museum. Without them most sensible people would categorically deny the existence of anything so outlandish and silly to look at as a giant panda (Ailuropoda, or Pandarctos, melanoleuca).

A different movie star will appear in this space every week. Accompanying each player will be three costumes this particular person wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by June Knight in these roles in the following movies:

Lillian in "The Broadway Melody of 1936"; Sue in "Cross Country Cruise", and Toby Brown in "Wake Up and Dream."

BILL AND WINTER SLEEP

THE CHARACTERS

BILL BUNNY—A discontented little rabbit.
BETTY BUNNY—Bill's faithful wife.
RIP RACKEY—A tired old raccoon.
HARRY HOARDER—A thrifty little squirrel.
WILLIE WISDOM—A wise old owl.

Poor Bill! Winter is always a big problem for him. Each year, when cold breezes blow, some of his friends journey South. Others go to sleep and sleep all winter. And some, who have stored food in their snug little homes, stay indoors when the weather is cold. He is one of the few residents of Hickory Hollow who live very much the same in winter as they do in summer. We see him talking about this with Rip and Harry as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BILL BUNNY—You say you feel sorry for me staying out all winter? Why, I like snow.

HARRY HOARDER—Yes, but you never sat indoors, where it was nice and warm, eating nuts and watching a blizzard from your window.

RIP RACKEY—Nor did you ever lay in your nice warm bed and go asleep so soundly that you never even knew there ever was a blizzard.

BILL BUNNY—But the food I eat wouldn't keep if I tried to store it away. And I don't think I could sleep all winter.

RIP RACKEY—You never tried sleeping. I have trouble getting the children to bed because they don't want to sleep that long, but once they are asleep, they don't wake up until it's warm again.

BILL BUNNY—Well, do you think I could sleep all winter?

RIP RACKEY—Of course you could. Is there any difference between you and me? (Bill thinks this over. And, after awhile, he decides to take Rip's advice. He hops away and soon meets Betty, who is returning from market, and tells her of his plan.)

BILL BUNNY—Just think. All we have to do is stay in bed and sleep.

BETTY BUNNY—Well, you go ahead. I'm going to live like we bunny folks have always lived. (They go home and Bill puts on his pajamas and, saying good night to Betty, goes to bed. Betty noiselessly leaves the room. Putting on her shawl and hat, she goes in search of Willie Wisdom, who she finds perched in a tree, and tells him all about Bill.)

WILLIE WISDOM—Oh, I wouldn't worry about Bill. He's one of those folks who thinks the other fellow has got it nicer than he has. He'll get awful tired of laying in bed. And it won't be long before he'll be up and hopping round again.

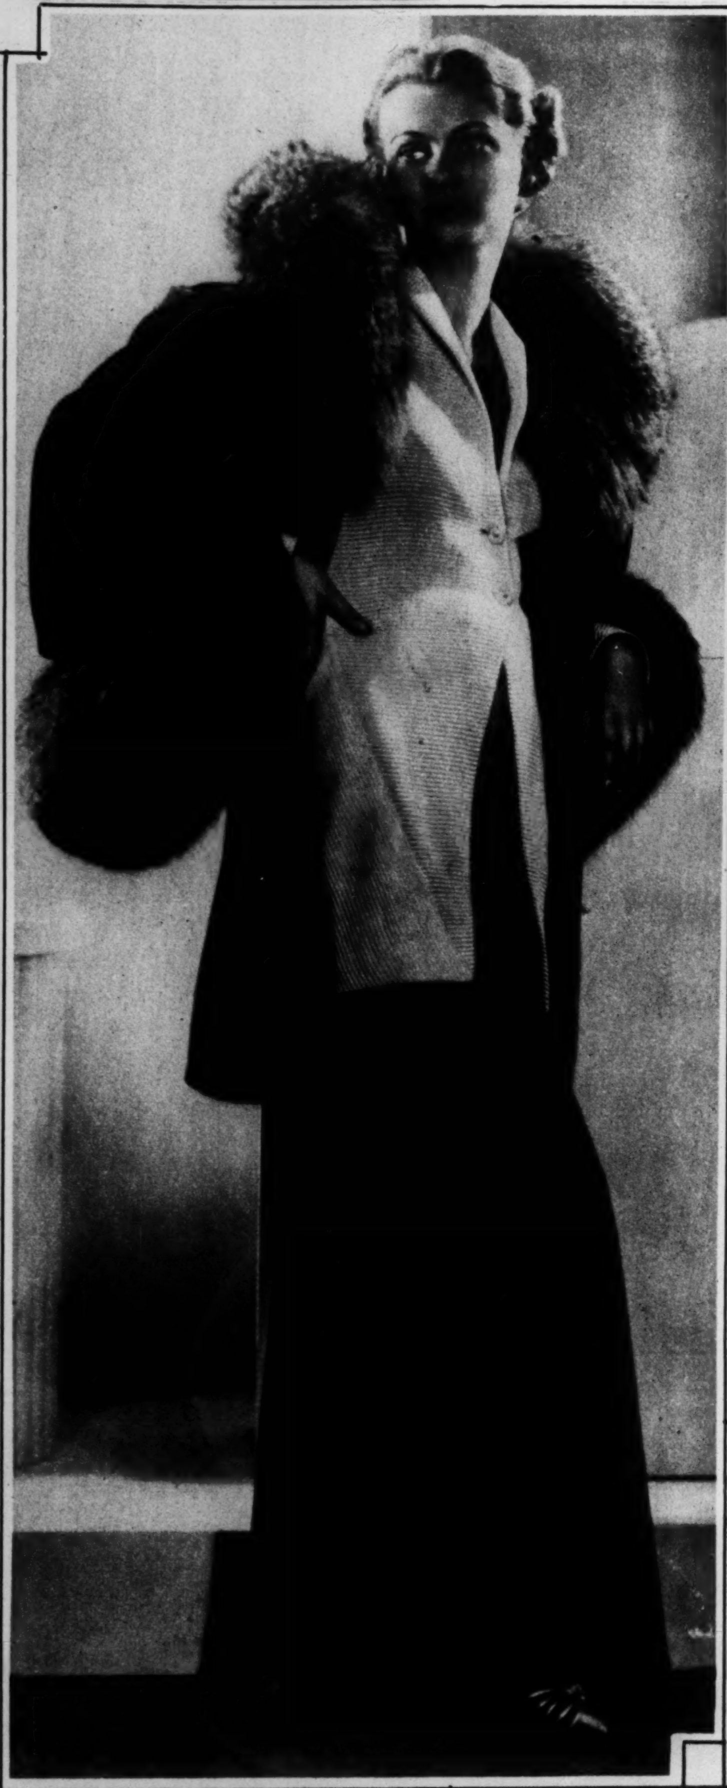
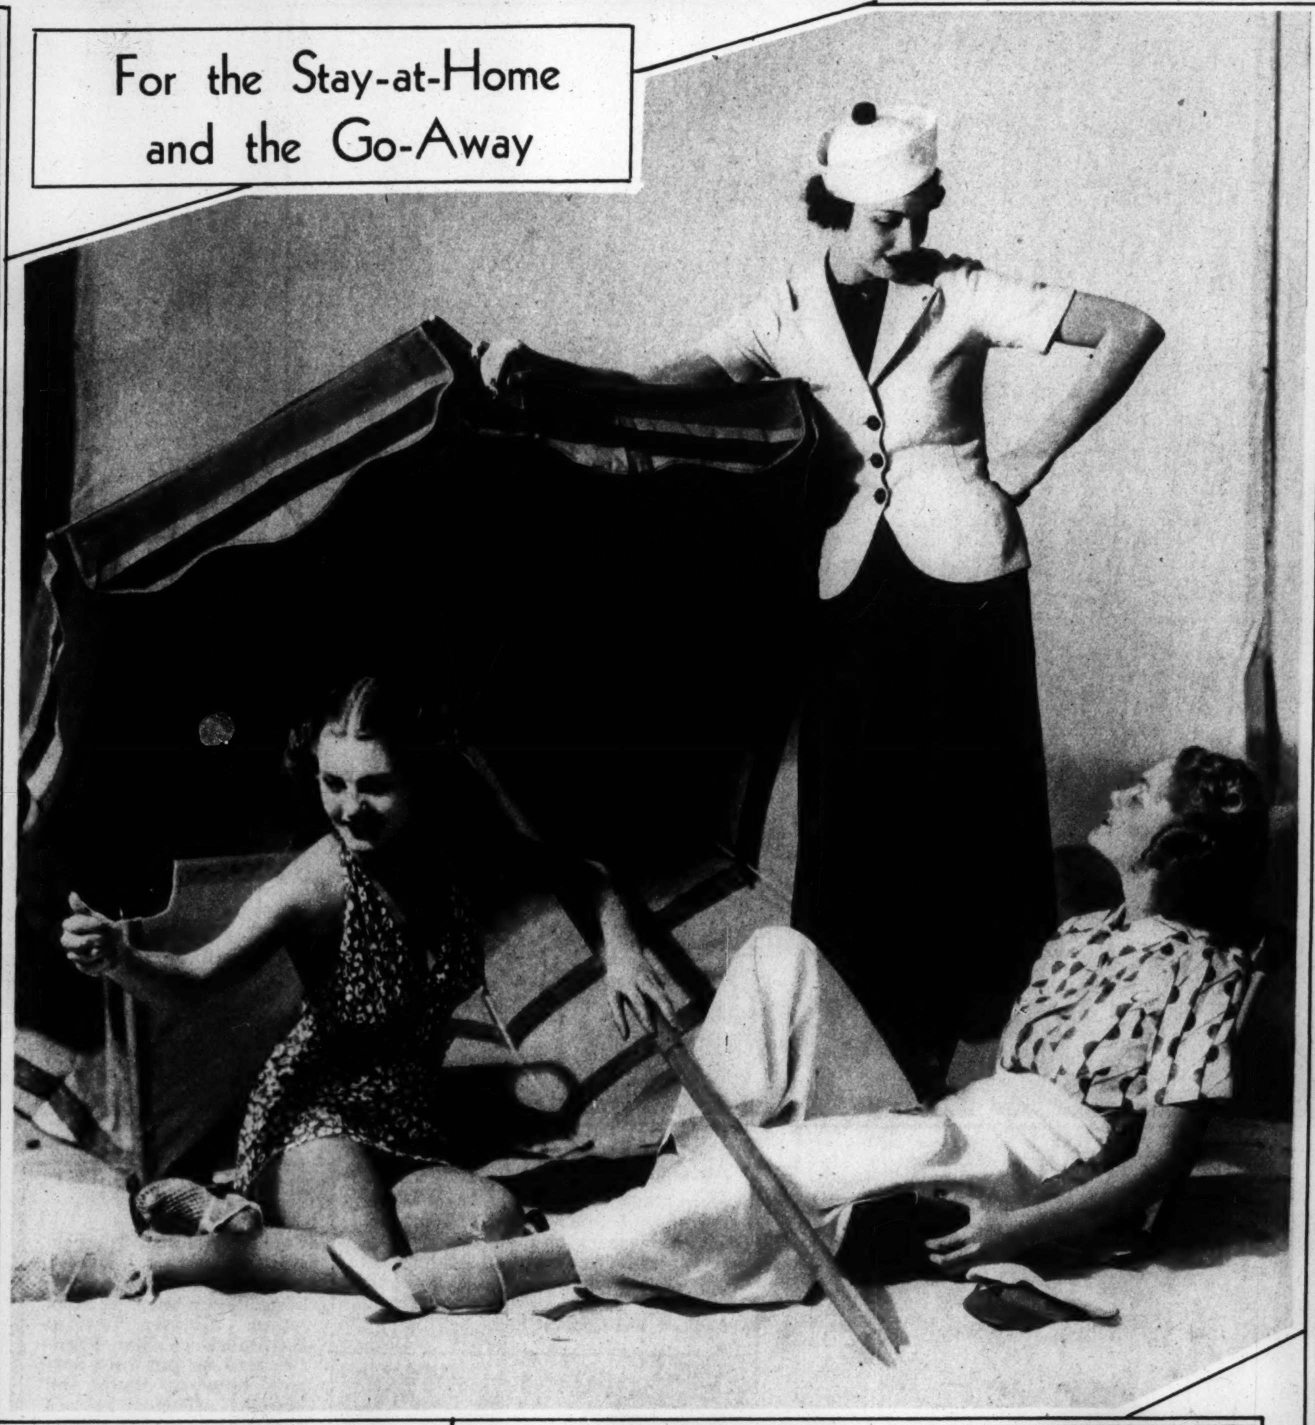
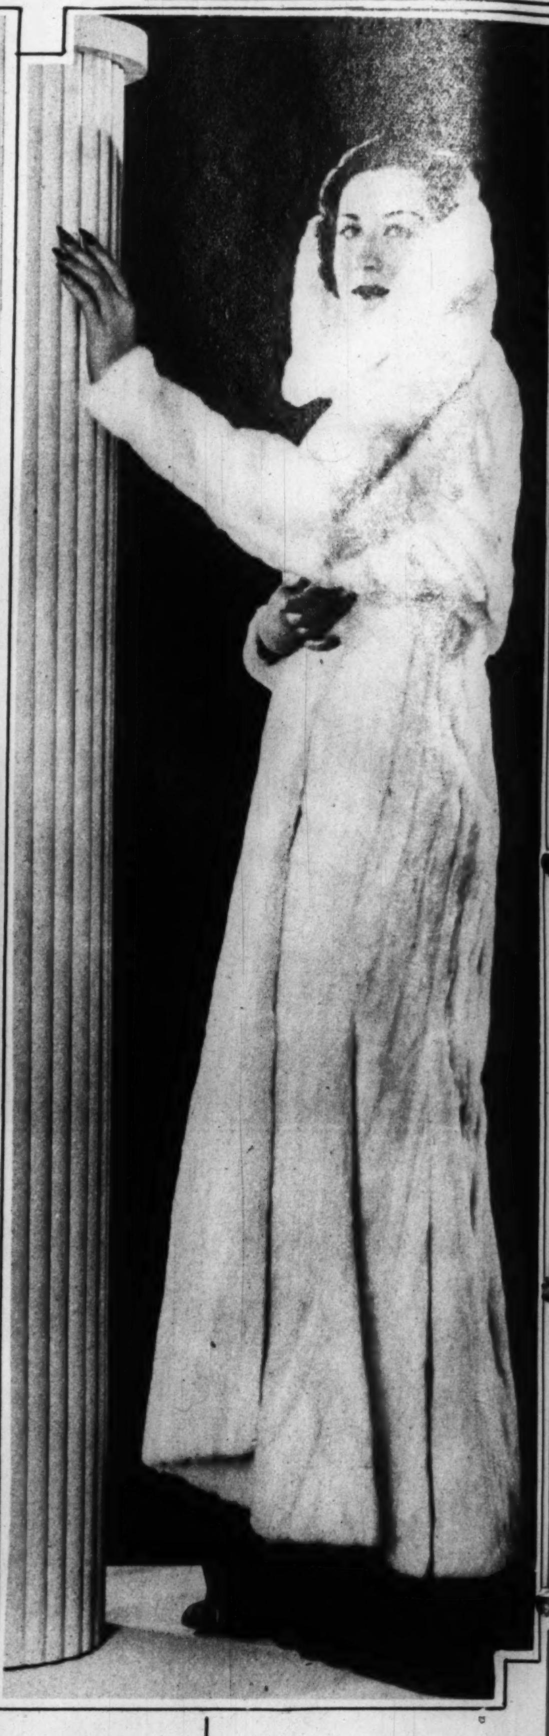
For the Stay-at-Home and the Go-Away



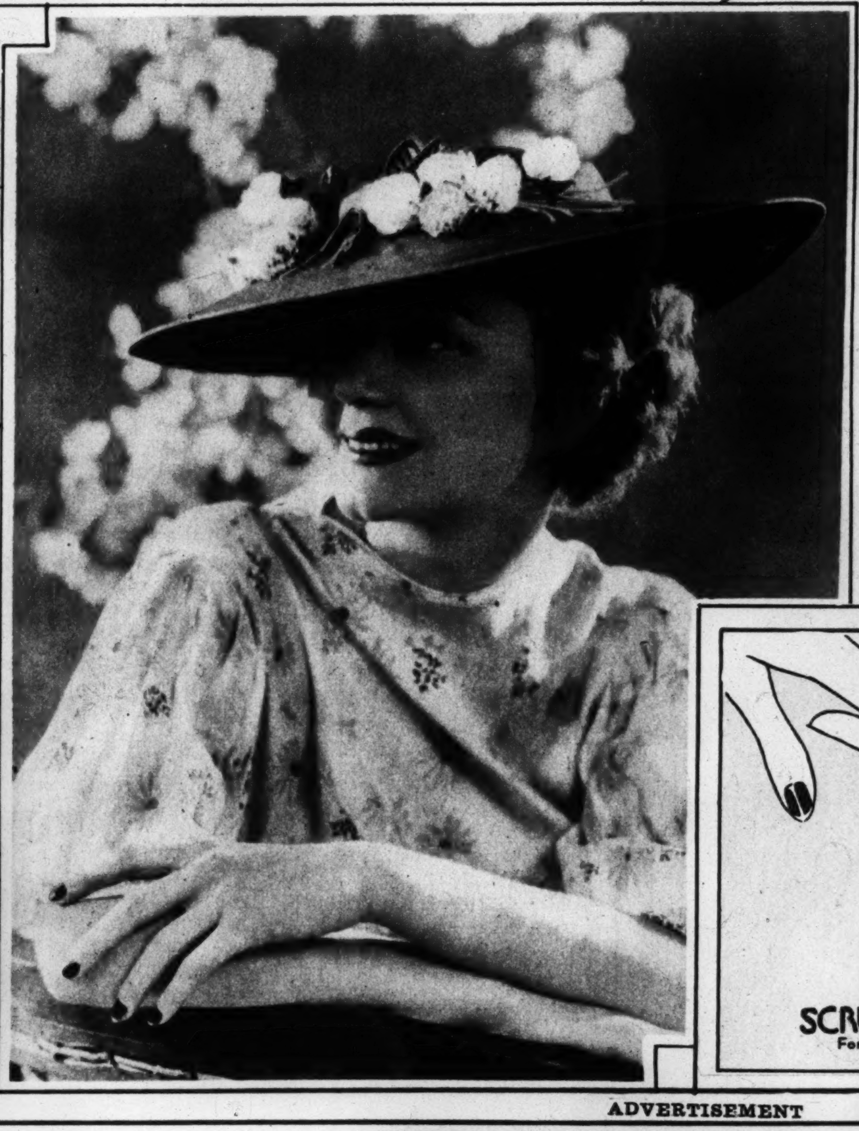
Practical solution: Evening wraps are designed with notorious disregard for such cold facts as the drafts that live in taxis, the icy blasts that play on the sidewalk during second-act intermissions and the hardships of the trip home. This corded silk tunic with long sleeves is intended to meet the pneumonia bugs halfway.



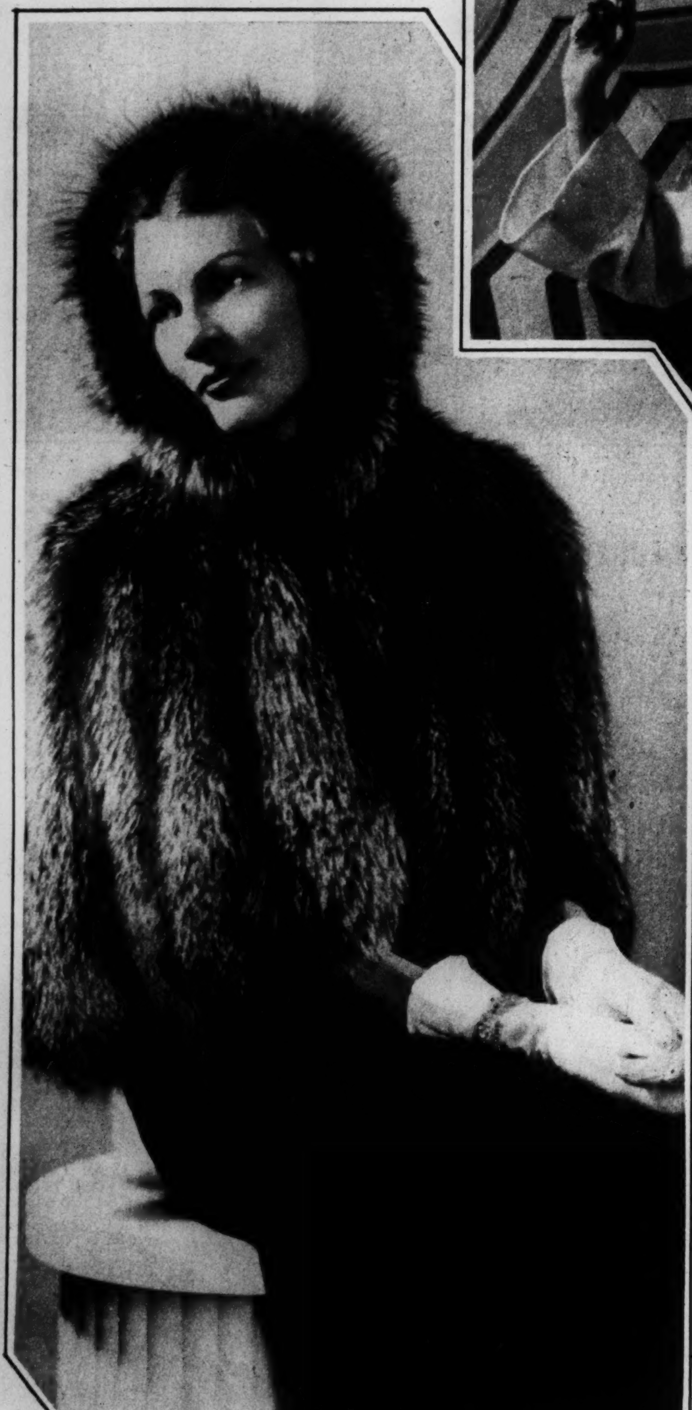
For those who run: Florida will be decorated by beach costumes of this stamp. The bathing suit is printed sheer cotton. The lounging costumes typify the designers' intentions towards those who bask and those who merely look on.



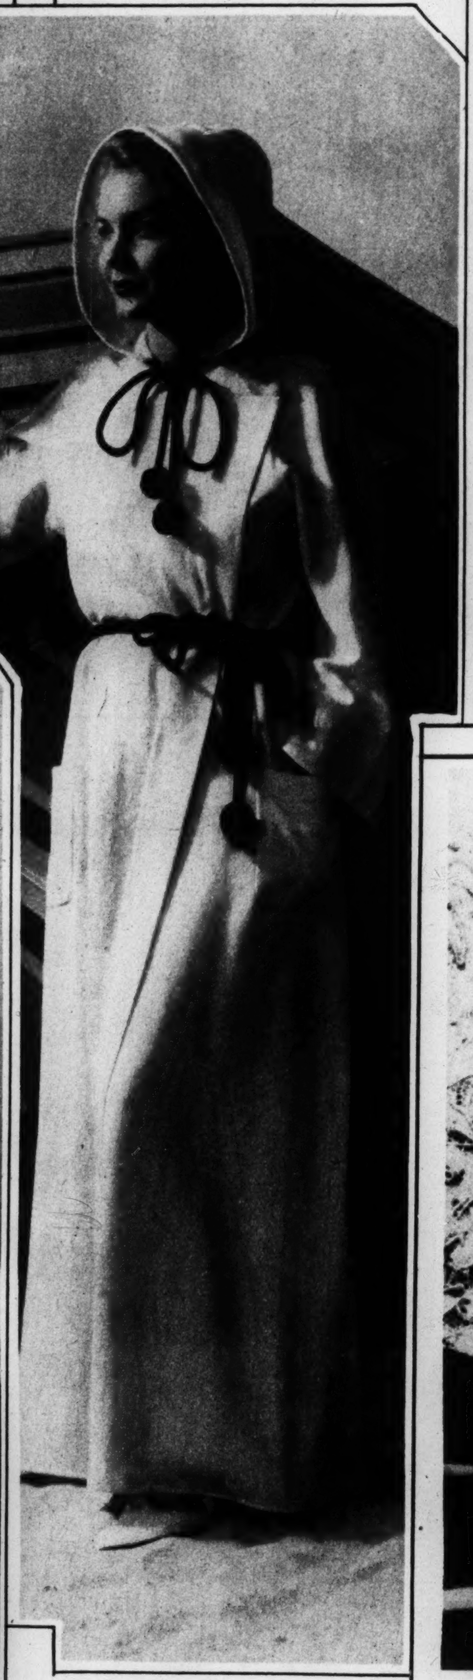
Full length: This white ermine wrap is distinguished by the bloused back and dolman sleeves intended to emphasize the fitted lines of the body of the coat.



In case of sun: This shantung straw is done in a soft apple green and is intended to be used with light print dress.



What has become of the cowl collar: This short silver fox cape boasts a double-duty hood, which falls back to become a cowl.



Monkish: A beach coat of white washable flannel that apes monastic robes; the dark red corduroy cords give it a somewhat lighter touch.

2 Things to Do
TO EASE COLD INSTANTLY

Discomfort and Aches Go Almost Instantly This Way

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets in ⅓ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness instantly.

The pictured directions above show perhaps the quickest, simplest and most modern method yet discovered to combat cold and sore throat.

Your own doctor will approve this way. Millions of people have discarded "cold killers" and patent nostrums for this modern way. It relieves the average cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Note that all you do is this.

Two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a full glass of water.

Three Bayer Aspirin tablets, crushed and dissolved in ⅓ glass of water as a gargle. Gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back to permit this medicated gargle to reach the irritated membranes of the throat.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally acts to fight a cold almost instantly. AND—eases the aches and pains that accompany most colds.

The gargle acts instantly like a local anesthetic to soothe pains in the throat and to ease throat irritation.

Try this way. You will be amazed at how quickly you can ease a cold. Be sure, though, to get Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN. They dissolve almost instantly in the stomach. Hence start working almost instantly. And also, dissolve thoroughly enough in water for use as a gargle.

Why BAYER Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

In 2 Seconds by Stop Watch

A Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach — Genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Only Red Light, sensational Carter halfback, is not fooled by the surprise play. If he can bat down the pass it will save Carter from certain defeat.

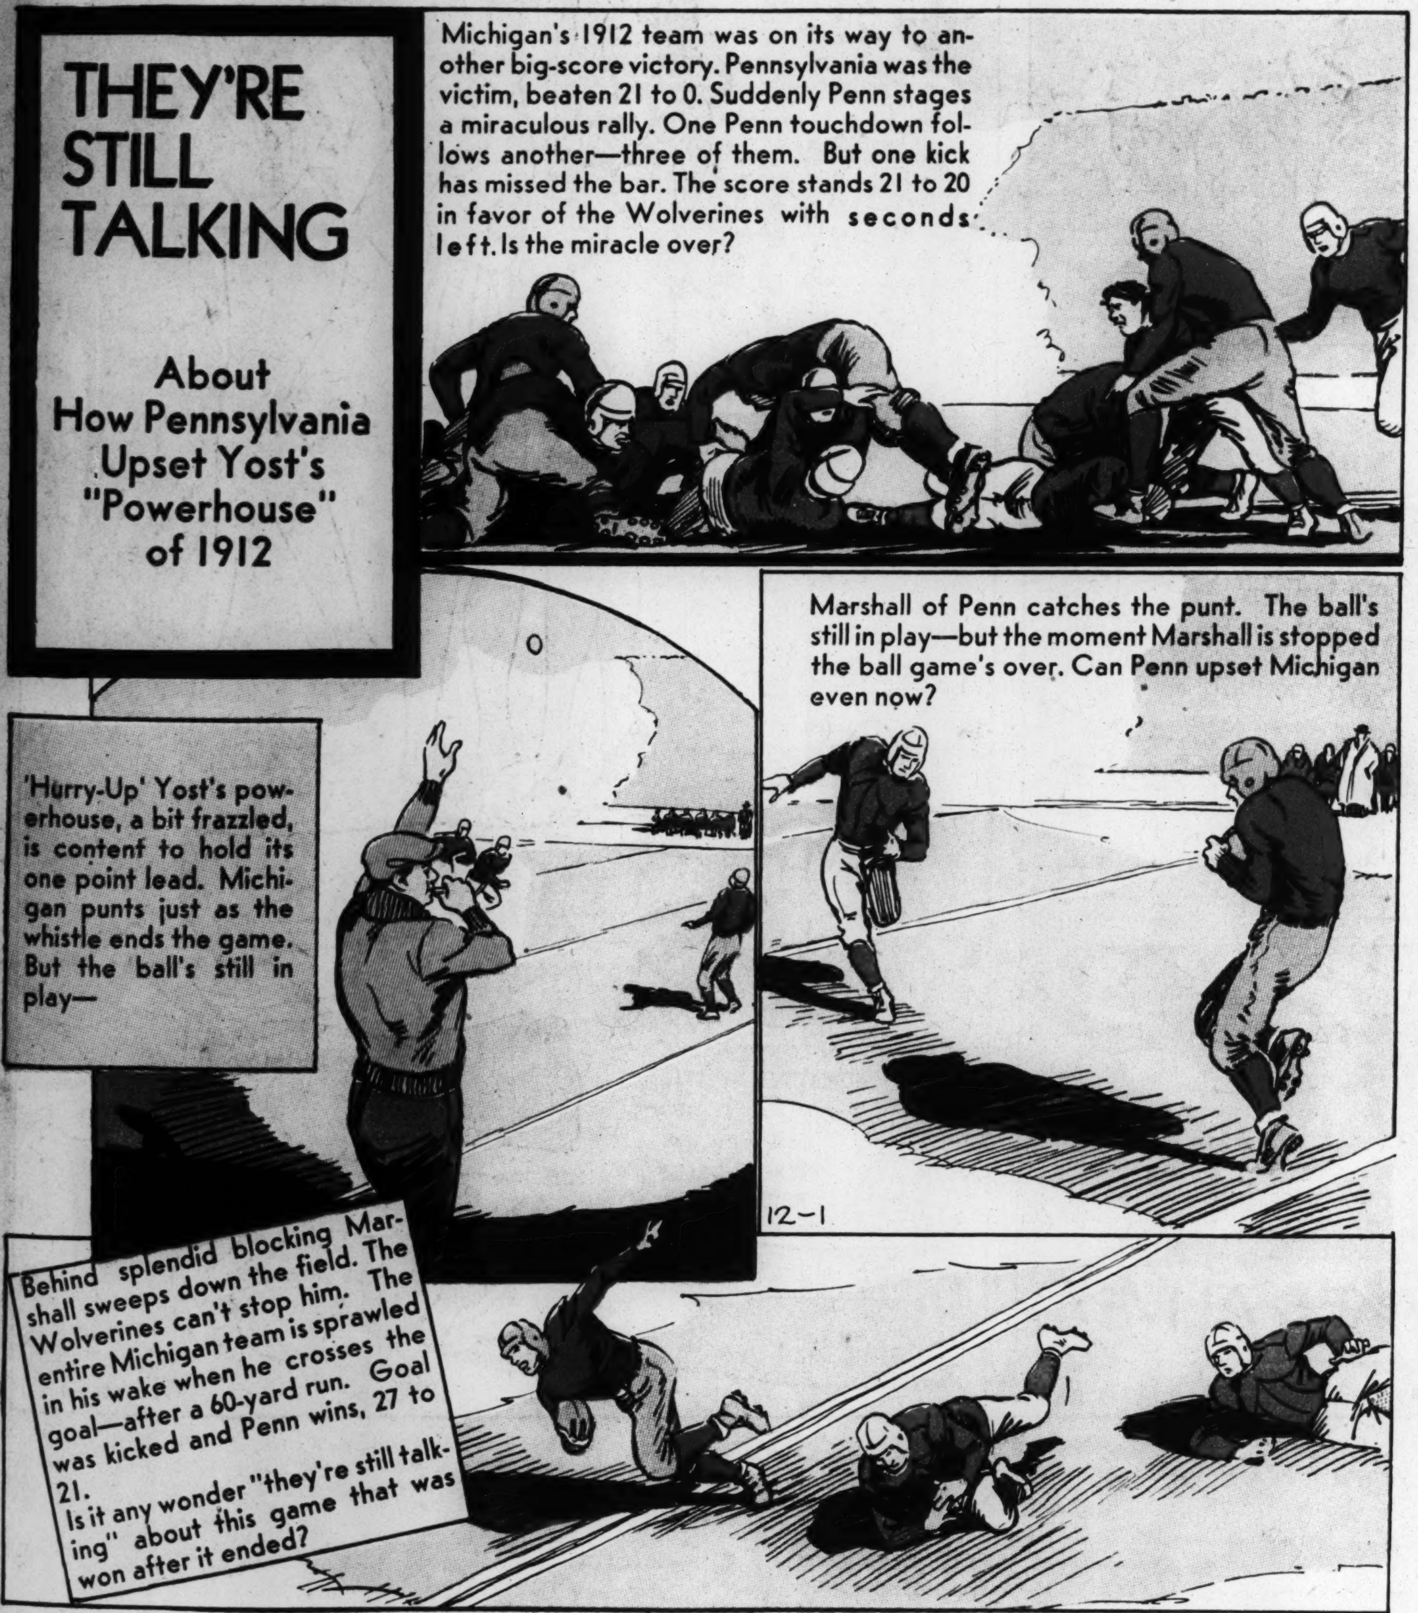
But Red doesn't knock the ball down! He intercepts the rifle-like pass which would have meant the title for Shaw Tech!

A powerful sraight arm disposes of the first would-be Shaw tackler as Red races for the goal. But another takes up the chase!

Candidates for Carter's Basketball Team Report Next Week!

THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About How Pennsylvania Upset Yost's "Powerhouse" of 1912



Michigan's 1912 team was on its way to another big-score victory. Pennsylvania was the victim, beaten 21 to 0. Suddenly Penn stages a miraculous rally. One Penn touchdown follows another—three of them. But one kick has missed the bar. The score stands 21 to 20 in favor of the Wolverines with seconds left. Is the miracle over?

'Hurry-Up' Yost's powerhouse, a bit frazzled, is content to hold its one point lead. Michigan punts just as the whistle ends the game. But the ball's still in play—

Marshall of Penn catches the punt. The ball's still in play—but the moment Marshall is stopped the ball game's over. Can Penn upset Michigan even now?

Behind splendid blocking Marshall sweeps down the field. The Wolverines can't stop him. The entire Michigan team is sprawled in his wake when he crosses the goal—after a 60-yard run. Goal was kicked and Penn wins, 27 to 21.

Is it any wonder "they're still talking" about this game that was won after it ended?

Number One back may throw a forward pass from point A or may make a lateral pass to Number Five back, who may throw a forward pass from Point B, or run. However, before Number One passes to Number Five, he should fake a forward pass by a forward motion of the right arm, directing the ball into the outstretched hand of his left arm for support and deception. He should then withdraw the ball from the left hand and throw a spiral bowl pass backward and slightly laterally to Number Five.

Here Number Six has run directly in front of Number Four, while Number Two circles wide, ending his progress back of Number Four.

The receiver takes the pass aided by one or two decoys—who attempt to draw the secondary away from the spot designated for the catch.

WHAT MAKES ME SO RESTLESS? WISH I COULD STOP WORRYING ABOUT MY JOB
MY NERVES ARE JUST ABOUT "SHOT"
WONDER IF I'LL EVER GET A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP AGAIN?
NEXT MORNING
NOT A WINK OF SLEEP AGAIN LAST NIGHT! I TELL YOU I'M JUST ABOUT ALL IN, EFFIE!
THIS HAS BEEN GOING ON LONG ENOUGH, TOM. IF YOU'RE NOT GONNA TO FIND OUT WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT, I AM!
LATER THAT MORNING
...AND YOU SAY HE'S SIMPLY TO TAKE A CUP OF HOT OVALTINE AT NIGHT JUST BEFORE HE GOES TO BED?
THAT'S IT---OVALTINE, THE SWISS FOOD-DRINK. IT'S REALLY SURPRISING THE WAY IT HELPS TO PROMOTE SOUND SLEEP ENTIRELY WITHOUT DRUGS--- SEE, EFFIE, IT TELLS ABOUT IT HERE!
WELL, THIS IS INTERESTING!
WELL, I'M CERTAINLY GOING TO GET A CAN OF OVALTINE TODAY.
IF TOM IS ANYTHING LIKE MOST OF THE OTHER POOR SLEEPERS I'VE SEEN, IT OUGHT TO WORK LIKE A CHARM.
OVALTINE, PLEASE.
THAT NIGHT
WHAT'S THIS, EFFIE? SOMETHING TO MAKE ME SLEEP? BUT YOU KNOW I DON'T BELIEVE IN TAKING DRUGS!
BUT THERE AREN'T ANY DRUGS IN IT---IT'S JUST OVALTINE AND HOT MILK. FLORENCE BEVANS SAYS IT'S SIMPLY MARVELOUS THE WAY IT HELPS SO MANY "BED TOSSERS" GET TO SLEEP!
YOU MEAN TO TELL ME THAT A SIMPLE, PLEASANT-TASTING DRINK LIKE THIS CAN HELP ME GET TO SLEEP? RIDICULOUS! I'LL BET YOU A DOLLAR IT DOESN'T WORK!
I'LL TAKE THAT BET!... BUT DON'T ARGUE, DEAR... IT'S AFTER 10 O'CLOCK, SO HURRY ALONG TO BED.
WELL, IT CERTAINLY DIDN'T TAKE LONG FOR HIM TO LOSE THAT BET!
NEXT MORNING
WAKE UP, MR. SKEPTIC. IT'S 8 O'CLOCK AND TIME FOR BREAKFAST.
8 O'CLOCK! GREAT GUNS! YOU DON'T MEAN TO SAY I SLEPT ALL NIGHT---AND JUST WOKE UP!
HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!
WE BOTH WIN, HONEY. YOU GET YOUR DOLLAR AND I GOT THE BEST NIGHT'S SLEEP I'VE HAD IN MONTHS! I FEEL LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON!
DON'T THANK ME, DEAR... THANK FLORENCE AND OVALTINE!

OVALTINE is a delicious pure food concentrate—originally created in Switzerland as a strengthening food for invalids, convalescents, and the aged.

Then physicians noted that, when taken as a hot drink at bedtime, it was also a remarkable aid to sound, restful sleep. As a result, Ovaltine has become world-famous as a drugless aid to natural sleep—and its use has spread to 54 different countries today.

This is how its action is explained . . . First:—A hot drink of Ovaltine tends to draw excess blood away from the brain. Thus inviting mental calm and "conditioning" the mind for sleep.

Second:—Ovaltine gives the stomach a light digestive task to perform. In this way helping to do away with that "hollow," restless feeling that keeps so many people awake.

Ovaltine not only helps to bring sound sleep quickly—but, in many cases, helps to improve the quality of sleep. That is why so many users report that they awaken in the morning vastly refreshed—nerves calmer, mind clearer by far. Filled with new energy to last them buoyantly through the day. Looking and feeling like different people, as a result of the sound and restful sleep they've had

Don't Take Our Word For It
—Read What These Users Say:

DON'T take our word alone for the remarkable results of Ovaltine. Disregard, if you wish, the fact that its use is approved by thousands of physicians—read what these actual users say:—

For example, Mr. Robert Martin, 30 Pasadena St., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes:—"I have been a chronic sufferer of insomnia for the past year. Refusing to take opiates for relief, I was finally advised to try Ovaltine. Today I have no trouble at all getting seven full hours of sleep each night. So, if you have skeptics as to what Ovaltine will do, you may refer them to me."

Another delighted user, Katherine Kraus, 509 W. Venango St., Philadelphia, Pa., says:—"I was unable to sleep at night and I began to think nothing would do me any good. The very first night I drank Ovaltine I slept soundly until morning. After 2 weeks, I feel like a different person. I wish I could tell all the sick, nervous people what a blessing Ovaltine is."

These letters cover, of course, only two individual experiences. Naturally, we do not claim or guarantee that similar results will occur in every case where Ovaltine is used. But these statements are so typical of thousands we have received, that we believe a thorough trial of Ovaltine is justified by every intelligent person in cases of "nerves" and sleepless nights.

Ovaltine is a delicious pure food first created in Switzerland and now made over here. When taken as a hot drink at bedtime, it helps to promote sound sleep in a surprisingly short time.

By this method you avoid the use of drugs and when you awaken in the morning, you feel refreshed — clear-eyed, alert. Thousands of users report, too, that it has brought them new strength and energy as well as steadier nerves.

So remarkable are the results accredited to Ovaltine that, during the World War, medical authorities made it a standard ration for rebuilding invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers. It is also advised and extensively used as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged—and highly recommended by physicians for nervous, under-nourished children.

Phone your druggist or grocer for a tin of Ovaltine now. See for yourself how remarkable it is. Or, if you prefer, mail the coupon at the right for a 3-day, trial supply. You'll be glad you did.

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES MAKE A HERMIT OUT OF YOU!

PIMPLES may be the bane of your life between the ages 13 and 25.

During these years, important glands develop. This causes disturbances throughout the body. The skin becomes oversensitive. And harmful waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin, and make it break out in pimples.

But these adolescent pimples can be cleared up—by eating Fleischmann's Yeast. This fresh yeast clears the skin irritants out of your blood—and makes the skin healthy.

Eat a cake of Fleischmann's fresh Yeast 3 times a day, before each meal, until your skin has become entirely clear. Start today!

RFC RECOMMENDS MERGER OF FRISCO, MO. PAC., M-K-T

Its Railroad Division Urges Consolidation of Three Southwestern Lines in Interests of Economy.

ALL OBLIGATED TO FEDERAL AGENCY

Suggestion Made in Analysis of Missouri Pacific, Now in Course of Reorganization.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. — The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in a report to its railroad division made public today by Chairman Jesse Jones, recommends consolidation of the three major Southwestern railroads centering in St. Louis, the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis-San Francisco, and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas, in the interests of economy.

The report, nearly 2500 pages in length and in course of preparation for a year and a half, consists of a detailed analysis of the Missouri Pacific. But in studying this line the experts of the RFC have gone into the entire railroad economy of the Southwest.

Jones made the report public without comment, but it was said at the RFC that it would be of use primarily in connection with Missouri Pacific reorganization. The Van Sweringen brothers, Cleveland financiers who have nominal control of the line, are already pushing their plan of reorganization. There has been active opposition to the Van Sweringen plan in the RFC's railroad division.

"Every Promise of Gain."

"There is every promise of gain and practically no threat of loss in a consolidation of the Missouri Pacific, Frisco and Katy systems and its consummation should be given very earnest consideration," the report states.

Along with this recommendation are detailed tables and charts showing how economies could be effected by the consolidation.

"The lines of Missouri Pacific, Frisco and Katy are so located," the reports say, "as to complement one another to a high degree. Each carrier would contribute to a consolidation strength in some essential in which the others are weak. The substitution of a single line for double or three-line traffic routes would improve the position of all from a traffic solicitation standpoint so that the revenues of the combination should materially exceed the aggregate of the three as now organized.

"Coincidentally, total operating expenses would be decidedly reduced through elimination of unnecessary duplicate or triplicate service and utilization by all of the best of available rates and facilities resulting from the consolidation. At the same time the interests of the public would be amply protected by the competition of Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Rock Island and many other capable carriers."

Jones Gives Out Report.

Jones, as he gave the report to correspondents, said that each correspondent could have a copy of the report if he would promise to take it with him. It consists of five thick volumes of mimeographed pages liberally interspersed with graphs, charts and maps.

The staff of the railroad division has made repeated inspections of the entire Missouri Pacific and connecting systems in preparing the report. The report is signed by John W. Barriger III, chief of the railroad division, a former St. Louisan, and by W. W. Sullivan, examiner in the division who is largely responsible for assembling it. It is the most extensive report on any railroad ever issued, according to RFC experts.

Short Lines a Major Problem.

The report contains a vigorous denunciation of the practice of short line railroads levying excessive charges on trunk systems such as the Missouri Pacific. This adds a great burden to freight charges, which makes it difficult for the railroads to meet other forms of competition, according to the report.

"In the aggregate, the short line railroads divert from the trunk line carriers many millions of dollars of revenue annually," the report states. "The relations between the short, industrial, and tap lines on the one hand and the trunk lines on the other therefore constitute a major problem in an otherwise complex situation.

"Competition from other means
